CERMAK GAINS AFTER FAINTING; SLEEPS BETTER

Doctors More Hopeful Than Before.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., March 3.—[Special.]—After a sudden heart attack late today, which lasted only a few minutes, Mayor Cermak of Chicago again was reported to be improving tonight. His pulse during the heart attack could not be felt for a short time, physicians explained, until stimulants were administered, starting the heart to beating.

The late bulletin tonight revealed that the heart attack was accompanied by "moderate cyanosis," or blueness of the face. It added:

"The heart attack passed away in a few minutes and his condition has been good ever since, with a pulse rate of 108 to 120 and good volume. Respiration has varied from 24 to 30."

"We believe the mayor is gaining rather than losing ground," the bulletin, issued through Dr. J. W. Snyder, concluded. The blueness of the skin was caused by improper oxygenation of the blood, the doctors said, and probably was a result of gases forming in the stomach following the absorption of more food by the patient than he has had in a week.

Gets Too Much Food?

A syncope was defined as a temporary suspension of consciousness due to cerebral anemia. The doctors denied that the attack was syncope anginosa, which is defined as a cardiac spasm caused by closure of the coronary arteries.

"I feel that it has done the mayor absolutely no harm," declared Dr. Tice. "His stomach, unaccustomed to food, was too full as a result of the forced dieting which was imposed today. As a result he lost consciousness. He was given a stimulant, but it was time for his stimulants anyway.

"The attack should not be made to seem more important than it was. He is now resting comfortably and his condition is the same as it was this morning."

At 8:15 p. m. Dr. Jirka issued the following bulletin:

"Mayor Cermak ate his supper, then fell asleep, and has been sleeping ever since. Pulse 120, respiration 30." He added that supper had consisted of soup, toast, tea and pudding, and that the mayor's sleep had started at about 7 p. m.

Earlier Reports Optimistic.

The momentary attack was the only outstanding feature of a day which previously had found the mayor in the best condition he has enjoyed for several days. The stimulating effects of his second transfusion lingered with him, and several encouraging bulletins were issued by the doctors. He remained in the large oxygen chamber which has been his home now for 60 hours.

This evening the patient's pulse had dropped to 118 and his respiration to a range of 22 to 26. Dr. Tice pointed out that this latter recording was a most hopeful sign.

It means that the mayor is breathing slower and with less effort and therefore is not exhausted by the gasping which previously sapped his strength. The mayor's respiration has at times reached 40 and higher.

Previous Despair Revealed.

How close the physicians have been to despair at times despite their cheerful sickroom demeanor was indicated in a bulletin today which noted various reassuring signs in the mayor's condition and ended with the declaration that the possibility of recovery could now be "reasonably" considered.

"Then the consideration of the possibility of recovery was unreasonable before?" Dr. Tice was asked.

"The bulletin speaks for itself," he said.

"This has been the most comfortable and encouraging day the mayor has spent this week," he added.

"He has eaten more than any day since I have been down here. That is of the utmost importance."

Physicians Agree on Progress.

Moreover, the other physicians in the case were unanimous in their opinions for perhaps the first day since the mayor was brought to the hospital with a bullet in his back fired by Giuseppe Zangara in an attempt to assassinate President Elect Roosevelt. Many times their statements to

F. D. ROOSEVELT WILL TAKE OATH AT NOON TODAY

(Pictures on Back Page)

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—At 50 minutes past noon tomorrow, eastern standard time [11:50 a. m., Chicago time], Franklin Delano Roosevelt will take the oath as President of the United States and deliver his inaugural address.

At 10 minutes past 1 Herbert Hoover, by then the former President of the United States, will leave the capitol for the Union station and the train for New York.

It will be the last time, thanks to the recently ratified twentieth amendment to the constitution, that a President is sworn in on the traditional 4th of March. Hereafter the date will be Jan. 20.

Faces Gigantic Task.

When Mr. Roosevelt is sworn in he will assume a gigantic task. The whole country is waiting for him to move forward in some plan for solution of the banking situation, which has become nation-wide.

The focus of the inauguration ceremony will be the high, canopied platform erected on the steps of the capitol's east front. It is here that the oath will be administered by Chief Justice Hughes, with the President elect resting his hand upon an old Dutch Bible which has been in his family for three centuries.

Speaks from Rostrum.

It is from this rostrum that he will deliver his inaugural address to the notables massed upon the seats constructed on the east plaza.

The newly sworn in Vice President, John N. Garner, will be there, below him the members of the house whose speaker's gavel he will just have relinquished, and the members of the senate over whom he will preside for the next four years.

The black robed associate justices of the Supreme court will supply a somber counterfoil to the glitter of gold braid upon the uniforms of the corps of foreign diplomats and the medals glistening upon the chests of the chief of staff, the chief of naval operations, and the commandants of the marine corps and coast guard.

Stands on Capitol Roof.

In the other spectators' seats will be other dignitaries, and engulfing them a crowd composed of everybody who can possibly browbeat, cajole, or swipe a ticket from a senator or congressman. Grand stands have even been erected on the roof of the capitol.

Preceding the presidential ceremonies will be the colorful ceremonies in the senate chamber attendant upon the swearing in of the Vice President elect. Speaker Garner is scheduled for a swift journey through the capitol, for he will be adjourning the house one moment and a few minutes later will be taking the oath of office to succeed Vice President Charles Curtis.

President to Review Parade.

Following his inaugural address and the departure of Mr. Hoover President Roosevelt will leave the capitol and go to the White House for lunch. Following him will march the inaugural parade down Pennsylvania avenue, reaching the White House by the time Mr. Roosevelt has finished his lunch and taken his place on the elaborate reviewing stand erected in front of the executive mansion.

The parade over, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain some 2,000 guests at a reception in the White House.

INAUGURATION PROGRAM

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—The schedule of tomorrow's inaugural events will be as follows, time being eastern standard:

10:15 a. m.—President Elect Roosevelt and family attend church services.

11:05-11:30 a. m.—President Hoover, President Elect Roosevelt, Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Roosevelt, and official party drive from White House to capitol.

12:50 p. m.—President Roosevelt sworn in and delivers inaugural address.

1:10 p. m.—Former President Hoover leaves capitol for Union station.

2:30 to 4:30 p. m.—President Roosevelt reviews parade.

5 p. m.—White House reception.

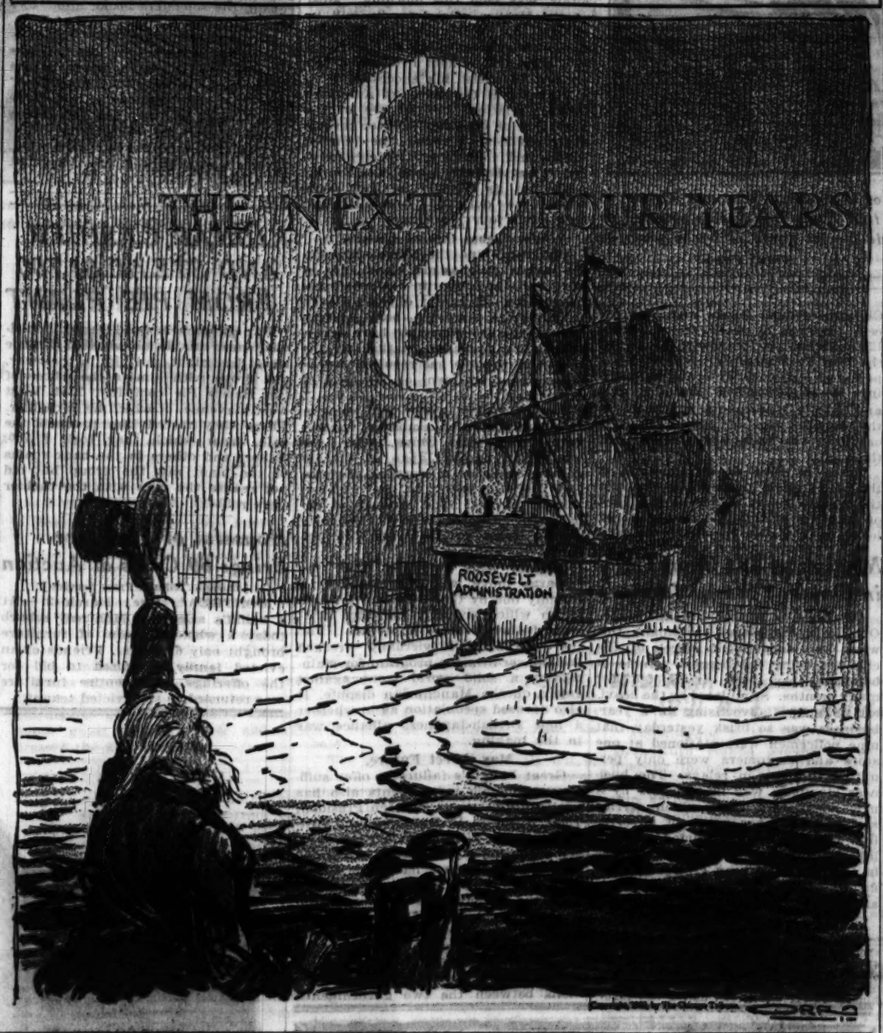
BON VOYAGE



Need Marines at Reception of Democrats

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—They had to call out the marines tonight to keep Democrats from pushing diplomats, to keep diplomats from punching Democrats.

It was all very well bred and well meant, if a bit rough.

It was simply a modern manifestation of that old law that you can't pack too many fish into one tin. And the inaugural committee had tried to jam too many social sardines into the Pan-American Union building this evening for the reception to the governors of the several sovereign states.

The result was chaos, smashed silk hats and torn satin gowns, fainting spells and profanity. Some of the littlest fish from out of town swam into the best social pools in the Spanish patio inside the building. Some of the social register sardines got stranded outside on the white marble steps, swept by a chill March wind.

Call Out the Marines.

Finally, when all the people inside were trying to get out and all the people outside were trying to get in, somebody sent for the marines. Gallantly the boys steadied the revolving door through which the matron with the diamond tiara, the diplomat with the Baccardi breath, swung their way. Heroically they calmed the possible panic.

Inside, in the palm court, two saucy parrots shrilled their comments on humanity; outside William Gibbs McAdoo, high hat in hand, fought his way up three marble steps, slid back one, as the crowds pressed in.

Inside, on the two staircases, hundreds—no, thousands—struggled slowly up to the receiving line. Outside Senator James Hamilton Lewis folded his opera cloak about him and philosophized on this and that.

Red Sashes Fare Poorly.

Inside, from an upper balcony, half a dozen elegant diplomats wiped perspiration from half a dozen foreheads. Outside, at the curb, Mrs. Jesse Jones, wife of the Texas millionaire, hugged a policeman's arm to keep herself from being pushed into the gutter by a large gentleman with a diamond decoration on his chest.

The diplomats had been requested to wear full decorations. Many a scarlet sash will never be quite the same after tonight. Many a diplomatic rosette will have to be pressed out by the ambasadorial valet tomorrow, for ladies' shoulder straps, gentlemen's coat tails, diplomats' decorations were all at the mercy of the crowd and confusion. Folks who know their history said it was the worst rough and tumble since Thomas Jefferson held his famous inaugural free-for-all.

Only tonight's melée was not a free-for-all. Indeed, it had been heralded as the "most exclusive" event on the program. Admission was by card, but the incoming guests were caught up in such a swirl that they could not have got their hands into their purse for a ticket if the pasteboard had been an admittance to heaven itself.

HOOVER IS PAID $625 FOR 3 DAYS' WORK—HIS LAST

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—President Hoover received his last government pay today. It consisted of a check for $500 and another for $125, these representing three days of work in March.

For tomorrow's services, as he finishes his term of office with the signing of bills at the capitol, Mr. Hoover will receive no pay. When he began his term of office his salary check covered a full day's pay for inauguration day.

Today's pay came, as usual, in two checks, so that the President might indorse one and return it to the treasury in accordance with his plan of voluntary pay reduction.

107 Police Stage City-Wide Slot Machine Raids

In a general raid 107 policemen from the state's attorney's office visited stores, shops, and restaurants in the city last night and confiscated 124 slot machines. No arrests were made.

Nearly eighty places of business were visited, some yielding two and three boxes. The biggest yields were on the north and northwest sides. All the machines were taken to district stations for later delivery to the state's attorney's office. Many of the stores operated the machines under protection of injunctions.

PROCLAMATION OF GOV. HORNER ON BANK HOLIDAY

Following is the proclamation issued at 4 o'clock this morning by Gov. Horner calling the three day bank holiday:

"In view of the acute financial emergency now existing not only in the state of Illinois but throughout the entire United States and which has become more serious in the past twenty-four hours, and because of the action taken by many states throughout the Union, the banking systems of which have daily transactions with the people of this state; and in view of the fact that the national government has yet taken no action to meet this country-wide emergency, I deem it necessary for the preservation of the public peace, safety, health, and welfare of the people of the state of Illinois to make the following proclamation:

"I, Henry Horner, governor of the state of Illinois, do hereby declare and proclaim the days of March 4, 1933, and the ten days immediately following to be public holidays in this state, pursuant to law.

"During such time all banking institutions and trust companies conducting a banking business or trust business within the state of Illinois shall not be open for the transaction of banking or trust business; except that said banks and trust companies shall, during the ordinary business hours after March 7 of said holiday period:

"1. Pay to their depositors [whether time or demand] not less than five per cent of the respective deposits of such depositors as of the close of business on March 3, 1933, provided that such payments shall be made only on checks, drafts, and receipts dated subsequent to March 3, 1933, and

"2. That payments may be made in excess of said five per cent for welfare purposes of any organized public welfare association and for the payments of taxes or other obligations to the state of Illinois and any subdivision thereof.

"Furthermore, after March 7 of said holiday period such banks and trust companies may take new deposits when qualified to do so under the laws of this state, but such deposits shall be payable on demand in full and such money so received shall be held solely for the repayment of such deposits.

"After March 7 of said holiday period the banks and trust companies acting in a fiduciary capacity may perform and discharge their duties in such capacity, provided that in the exercise of such fiduciary functions debtor and creditor relations shall not be altered.

"Dated at Springfield this third day of March, 1933, at 11:30 o'clock p. m.

"Henry Horner,
"Governor of the State of Illinois."

ILLINOIS AND N. Y. AGREE ON A BRIEF MORATORIUM

Chicago Institutions and Gov. Horner Take Action.

Exchanges to Be Closed

"Trading will likely be suspended on the Chicago Board of Trade as a result of the bank moratorium," according to Gale Smart, a director. "If the banks aren't open we can't remain open. The board will meet at 9 a. m. to take action."

Paul H. Davis, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, said trading on the exchange will be suspended as a result of the bank action. "The board of governors will meet this morning to take official action," he said.

A decision on whether the New York Stock exchange shall be closed during the three day holiday will be reached at a meeting early this morning. It is said to be certain that the New York exchanges will all be closed.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Chicago banks this morning will go on a three day holiday, according to an announcement made at 3:30 o'clock this morning by Gov. Henry Horner following an all night conference with members of the Chicago Clearing House association and officials of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank. During these three days no deposits can be withdrawn.

Almost simultaneously came the announcement from New York that, after a similar conference in that city, Gov. Lehman had proclaimed a two day legal holiday which will affect all banks in that state today and Monday.

In Illinois the three day holiday will be followed by a seven day period during which banks will restrict withdrawals of deposits.

Iowa Also Acts.

The action on the part of New York and Illinois, following similar action in the last 24 hours by three other states, Missouri, New Mexico, brought the total number of states with banking holidays to thirty-two.

At 4 o'clock this morning the governor of Iowa declared a holiday for banks in that state, making the total thirty-three.

Through the night in Chicago those attending the conference at the clearing house here had been in almost constant touch by telephone with the meeting in New York. Conversations were also held at frequent intervals with two separate sessions in Washington, one held by President Hoover and members of his cabinet and the other held by President Elect Roosevelt and his advisers.

Following these conferences Gov. Horner was called into the Chicago meeting and decided to act.

Gov. Horner's Statement.

Following is the statement of Gov. Horner commenting on his proclamation just made:

"For the last several days I have have been in constant conference and communication with representatives of the banks of Illinois in an effort to determine on the best course of action in the present emergency.

"It has been hoped and believed that, in spite of bank holidays in states surrounding Illinois and throughout the country, the banks of this state would be able to withstand the strain that has been placed upon them. That was my viewpoint until this hour.

Tried to Avert Necessity.

"Yesterday I issued a statement to the effect that a bank holiday did not seem to be necessary in Illinois at that time. The greatest effort has been made to avoid such a necessity. The banks of Chicago alone have paid out more than $350,000,000 in the last two weeks in an effort to stem the tide. It has also been expected that the national government might take some general action, but no word in that regard has been received by me.

"The picture has materially changed since yesterday.

"Finally, after a day of unprecedented withdrawals from the banks of this state and at the request of the Chicago clearing house banks and the Illinois Bankers' association, and with the approval of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, I now deem it essential to the welfare of our citizens, and necessary for the protection of the depositors who have not yet withdrawn their funds, to declare the bank holiday referred to in my proclamation this day issued.

"Henry Horner."

Reason for the Action.

Heavy withdrawals from Chicago and downstate banks following the succession of moratoria in other states were the immediate reason for the de-

Roosevelt Resists Move to Make It National.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—Facing the gravest peace time condition of the country within the memory of living men, Franklin D. Roosevelt will be inaugurated President at the capitol shortly after noon tomorrow.

With the banks of Illinois and New York acting for a temporary limitation of deposit withdrawals beginning tomorrow, and with gold pouring out of the country the new President will be impelled as soon as he takes the oath to initiate heroic action to steady the financial situation and restore public confidence.

Act Swiftly and Certainly.

The steps Mr. Roosevelt purposes to take to halt the panic may be disclosed in his inaugural address, which he revised, added to and completed tonight following a series of conferences which included talks with Democratic leaders and an hour's discussion of the crisis with President Hoover. Whether these measures will include a national moratorium for banks, which he has been strongly urged to invoke at once, Mr. Roosevelt would not divulge as he dismissed his counselors and went to bed shortly before midnight.

The President elect refused to identify himself with any course of action before actually taking the reins of power. He gave his advisers to understand, however, that once sworn in he will act swiftly and certainly. It was indicated that the inaugural address would be only a preface to the measures that will be invoked before Monday morning to deal with the crisis.

One of these steps will be the convocation of the 73d congress in extraordinary session possibly next week and in any event not later than March 13. In expectation of such a move Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey of the house, who will be speaker of the next house, notified members that their continued presence in the capital is desired. Hundreds of railroad reservations on outgoing trains tomorrow were canceled tonight by congressmen.

Confers with Bankers.

While Mr. Roosevelt was sitting in conference with Democratic leaders at the Mayflower hotel and holding long distance telephone conversations with the governors and bankers of Illinois and New York President Hoover was standing by at the White House for any last minute action that might be agreed upon. With him were Attorney General W. D. Mitchell, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, and Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles financier and close friend of Mr. Hoover.

When the members of the White House group learned that Mr. Roosevelt declined to take any action, they dispersed. Mr. Mills returned to the treasury, where the federal reserve board was engaged in another night session similar to the one that kept it at the council table until 2 o'clock this morning.

The reserve board is concerned not only by the outflow of gold from the country, which has now reached an aggregate of 200 millions in the last few weeks, but by the inroads on the gold reserves of the federal reserve banks that will take place if Illinois, New York and other financial centers suspend banking facilities.

These Measures Discussed.

The principal measures discussed in the series of conferences of the outgoing Republican and incoming Democratic administrations that crowded the day were:

1. A national moratorium applying to banks for a limited period as a means of halting the panic.

2. Temporary suspension of gold payments by the treasury and an embargo on the export of gold as a means of thwarting foreign withdrawals of gold.

For more than three hours tonight the President elect discussed anti-panic policies with his advisers. Present were Jesse Jones and Harvey Couch, Democratic directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation; Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, leading Democratic authority on the federal reserve system; William H. Woodin, who will be Mr. Roosevelt's secretary of the treasury; Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, secretary of state designate, and Prof. Raymond Moley, Mr. Roosevelt's economic expert.

New York and Chicago bankers had sought throughout the day to obtain a national moratorium on banking beginning tomorrow morning. The Hoover administration was inclined to favor the plan. Mr. Roosevelt, however, would not agree to it before assuming office, though not definitely foreclosing adoption of such a course afterward.

Banks to Restrict Withdrawals.

The point was raised in the Roosevelt conference that a national moratorium could not constitutionally be proclaimed, at least not without the authority of congress. Whereupon one of the conferees remarked that, whether a national moratorium is or is not proclaimed, there is going to be one, because banks with one accord will close their doors or restrict deposit withdrawals in more than three fourths of the states until the wave of hoarding is stemmed and public confidence restored.

Senator Glass absented himself from the conference for an hour while he visited the treasury and conferred with federal reserve board members. Shortly after he returned the conference broke up. None of the participants would talk as they departed. Mr. Woodin told the reporters they would "have to ask the boss: he will do the talking." A request for information was transmitted to Mr. Roosevelt through one of his secretaries. The secretary came back with the word that "the governor says there is absolutely nothing he can say: he is undressing and going to bed."

The banking moratorium, suspension of gold payments and a gold export embargo were among the subjects discussed when President Elect Roosevelt called on President Hoover at the White House at 4 p. m. This was to have been purely a courtesy call.

A Conference of State.

Mrs. Roosevelt accompanied the President Elect and Mrs. Hoover was at the President's side. But the call of courtesy was quickly transformed into a conference of state. The women withdrew and Mr. Hoover sent for Mr. Mills and Gov. Eugene Meyer of the federal reserve board while Mr. Roosevelt summoned Dr. Moley.

Mr. Hoover was in favor of taking some positive action in the few remaining hours of his administration in an effort to halt the panic and urged Mr. Roosevelt to join him in sponsoring a move. Mr. Roosevelt declined. He was unconvinced that the situation warranted such extreme measures as were being broached.

The attitude of the President elect is attributed to confidence that what he will have to say in his inaugural address will go farther toward calming the country than extreme measures which would only increase the alarm.

Reserve Board Meets.

The suggested suspension of gold payments and gold embargo are said to have been discussed not unfavorably during a session of the federal reserve board that lasted until 2 o'clock this morning. Members of the board declined to talk for publication beyond saying that no decisions were reached. Early in the morning, however, rumors were afloat that the board was flirting with the gold suspension proposal and to these reports has been attributed the sensational rise of prices on the stock and commodity markets later in the day. If the country were to go off the gold standard, prices would go up.

All sorts of panaceas have been urged upon the President elect since his arrival yesterday. One after another he has thrust them aside for the time being, at least. Early today in his first conferences in which Speaker Garner and Senators Hull of Tennessee, Bulkley of Ohio, and Swanson of Virgina participated the suggestion to rush a bank deposit guarantee bill through congress before tomorrow noon was thrown overboard. Mr. Roosevelt emphatically declared that he would initiate no legislation of any sort until he actually had assumed office.

President Hoover also decided to take no steps for emergency legislation to guarantee time deposits which he regarded favorably. Senator Glass spent a large part of the day trying to induce the house leaders to put through the Glass banking reform bill, but without success. With the pressure for emergency legislation removed and the appropriation bills passed, congress found it had time on its hand and suspended operations till tomorrow morning.

Both houses agreed to a resolution bringing the District of Columbia within the Couzens resolution passed several days ago. It gives the controler of the currency power to restrict bank deposit withdrawals.

The house adopted a conference report on the so-called Fletcher-Steagall bill providing for a postponement of delinquent payments due on farm mortgages held by the federal land banks. House approval of the measure sends it to the senate, where its adoption is expected. The measure provides also that federal land bank loans may be made to individual farmers instead of through stock purchases as at present. It likewise enables the land banks to reamortize farm mortgages over a 40 year period.

Federal banking authorities marked time today, awaiting the coming of the new administration.

Excess reserves of member banks, the major credit reservoir of the country, seem to be settled upon as the crucial factor. These excess reserves, representing the idle funds of the banks, determine, together with the ability of the banks to borrow, the staying power of the banks.

Excess Reserves Decline.

A billion dollar demand for more currency during the last month and gold withdrawals amounting to 200 million dollars, both of which had to be met out of the excess reserves, have made huge inroads into them. The excess reserves of the member banks in New York have dropped from 400 millions to 12 millions in a month.

Chicago member banks, the only others for which March 1 figures are available, still held 112 million dollars of unobligated reserves, but the low ebb of the New York reserves was causing grave discussions in Washington.

In the past two weeks, the federal reserve banks have hurled 800 millions worth of their own credit into the money markets. By buying government securities and by discounting bills for member banks, the reserve banks have sought to allow the member banks to convert their assets into cash that would go to holding up the crucial excess reserves.

Although definite data on the borrowing power of the member banks are not available they would seem on the basis of rough estimates to form a mighty bulwark of defense. If the assets of the New York member banks which are eligible as the basis of loans from the reserve banks continue to represent the same percentage of total loans and investments as they did a few months ago, New York member banks alone could borrow two billion dollars from the reserve banks.

Together with an estimated borrowing power of 335 million dollars in the Chicago member banks and with excess reserves in these two cities of 124 millions, the borrowing power of the New York member banks makes a potential reservoir of credit amounting to $2,459,300,000. Even if gold and money movements continued at the terrific rate of last week this credit in two cities alone could fight them off.

There is some doubt, however, if the banks would desire to borrow from the reserve banks up to the full limit of their power. Such borrowing would leave them almost hopelessly in debt.

HOOVER CABINET CLEARS DESKS FOR SUCCESSORS

Foreign Relations Offer Larger Problems.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—President Hoover and members of his cabinet cleared their desks today preparatory to turning the ship of state over to the new Roosevelt administration at noon tomorrow. The final Hoover cabinet meeting, a short affair, was held this morning. Most of the Hoover official family will be checked out of Washington by Monday, although Secretary of the Treasury Mills will remain over for a day or two to assist his successor.

A glance at the status of American foreign relations on the eve of the departure of President Hoover reveals that relations between the United States and three major foreign powers—Great Britain, Japan, and France—are not as friendly as they were when the outgoing administration took office four years ago.

War Debts One of Causes.

War debts and the Hoover-Stimson far eastern policies are responsible in part for the rifts in international friendships. Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's campaign, both through and outside the league, to have Japan called the aggressor nation in the row in Manchuria has resulted in ever increasing resentment on the part of Japan.

Great Britain's action last week in declaring an arms embargo against both Japan and China, after the league had named Japan as the aggressor, came as a startling surprise and disappointment to the Hoover-Stimson group. The attitude of department officials cooled instantly toward Great Britain when the embargo was announced.

Officials said privately that the embargo move was interpreted as a friendly one by Great Britain towards Japan which probably indicated Britain's future course of action. For the time being it virtually wrecked the Hoover-Stimson program for maintaining a solid world front against Japan on the Manchurian dispute. It also aroused speculation as to whether a new British-Japanese alliance was in the making.

May Affect Future.

Great Britain's failure to offer sufficient economic inducements also has cooled the relations between President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt and British officials. Within the last few days, the plans for a joint British-American war debt conference have appreciably slowed down. Reports are current that the negotiations set for March 5 may be delayed indefinitely.

Difficulties over war debt payments which led to French default of its $20,000,000 Dec. 15 payments has not aided in the preservation of good relations between the two governments.

NewspaperAds BoomTrade in Omaha; Stores Jammed

Omaha, Neb., March 3.—[Special.]—Old times reappeared in Omaha this week and department stores of the city are doing the biggest volume of business they have transacted for many months. Stimulated by the heavi est newspaper advertising for a year, business was so brisk yesterday that nine policemen were stationed at one store and customers were only permitted to enter in relays. The business stampede was inaugurated by a new department store which carried several newspaper pages of advertising. Other big stores started advertising and as a result all the big stores in the city have been crowded to the doors for four days, and the people are buying, not just looking.

SALESMAN FOUND DEAD.

Jefferson, O., March 3.—(AP)—Police authorities reported today that Wayne Hughes, 48, a salesman of Williamsville, a suburb of Buffalo, N. Y., arrested on a charge of issuing worthless checks there, had hanged himself in the county jail during last night.

CONGRESS SINGS SWAN SONG; A REPUBLICAN STRIKES UP TAMMANY

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—The 72d congress sang its swan song tonight. The main chant was "Sweet Adeline."

Representative John Clark, Republican from New York, started it over by the Republican committee table. By the time he reached "for you I pine," six of his colleagues, most of them dry, some of them lame ducks, had joined in and the show was on.

Mr. Crowther of New York, a Republican, leaped upon his seat and announced that the next song "would be that grand old song, 'Tammany.'" He and his fellow vocalists, Republicans all, gave it with a vigor that would have done honor to the tiger's cubs themselves.

Then for the edification of lame duck Republican John C. Schafer, former locomotive engineer from Wisconsin, the songsters broke into "I've Been Working on the Railroad."

Mr. Crowther burst into "The Sidewalks of New York" and the galleries followed him. When the merrymakers finally launched into "Old Black Joe" even the few Democrats who were present, rushed over and joined the Republicans in the celebration.

KIDNAP CASHIER AND STEAL $1,700 FROM PIE PLANT

Two gunmen stopped Frank Schleicher near his home at 4855 Roscoe street last night, put him in their car, and drove with him to the offices of the Harris Pie company, 1751 West Austin avenue, of which he is cashier. There they forced him to open the safe, from which they took $1,700. Bakers and others in the back rooms of the plant saw the group but did not realize the men with the cashier were robbers.

Houseful of Furniture Brings 69 Cents at Auction

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., March 3.—At a bailiff's sale in a Montreal suburb today a whole houseful of furniture brought only 69 cents. Friends of an evicted family organized to bid for the offerings. The entire furniture was returned to the evicted tenant.

BRITAIN, FACING A HUGE DEFICIT, TO SPEND MORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 3.—Higher expenditures by the British government for the year beginning April 1 are almost inevitable, according to estimates issued today. Available figures also indicate that a deficit for the current year is certain. The civil department is planning to save $15,000,000 [at par] but the army already has been granted $7,500,000 more than in the previous budget and the navy is expected to demand an additional $10,000,000.

This year's deficit expectations are based on the expenditure of $105,000,000 above budget specifications, chiefly for unemployment benefit and the $95,550,000 war debt payment to the United States last December, for which no provision was made in the previous budget. It is also indicated that the beer and income tax returns will not reach expectations.

Home department estimates issued today ask $79,300,000 for police and courts, an increase of about $1,775,000. Police expenditures are to go up nearly $1,000,000 to $51,400,000. Palaces, parks and public buildings administration will require $40,800,000, a decrease of $2,520,000. The grant for maintenance of palaces personally occupied by King George is to be reduced by $10,000 to $153,000, but other royal palaces will cost $17,000 more.

CO-ED KILLED IN AUTO CRASH.

Blair, Neb., March 3.—(AP)—Thrown from a trailer when it broke loose from an automobile and crashed into a concrete culvert, Miss Gretta George, 19, Dana college co-ed, was killed today. She was the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. C. George of Blair.

POLICE PATROL IS STOLEN WHILE ON CALL AT HOSPITAL

Policemen George Clancy and Stanley Kaczmarek of the Pekin Inn station had driven the vehicle there and had left it for a few minutes while they carried a sick person into the institution. They notified their station and a police radio call was broadcast relating the loss.

A few minutes later members of Truck company No. 11 of the fire department reported that the patrol wagon had been abandoned by a colored man in front of their headquarters at 9 East 36th place. It was recovered there.

TODAY, we welcome our new President and pledge him our loyalty and active support.

CUMMINGS GETS TEMPORARY JOB IN NEW CABINET

Goes to Philippines Post Eventually.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—President Elect Roosevelt today announced his selection of Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut as his "temporary" attorney general.

Mr. Cummings' appointment was made necessary by the death yesterday of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who was to have filled that post. The President elect also made known that Mr. Cummings was to have gone to the Philippines as governor general, and that after a permanent appointment of an attorney general is made Mr. Cummings will then take charge of the Philippines.

The announcement, given to the press by Stephen T. Early, press secretary to Mr. Roosevelt, was as follows:

"Mr. Roosevelt had expected to announce today the selection of Mr. Homer Cummings of Connecticut to be governor general of Philippines. Because of the untimely death of Senator Walsh he has asked Mr. Cummings to assume the post of attorney general for a few weeks before going to the Philippines."

Cummings Issues Statement.

The statement was issued after Mr. Roosevelt had conferred with Mr. Cummings, and the latter, upon emerging from the Roosevelt suite at the Mayflower, was asked concerning his acceptance of the temporary appointment.

"Whatever he wants, that's all there is to it," Mr. Cummings said, who is a former chairman of the Democratic national committee, and then he dictated a formal statement.

"The death of Senator Walsh amounts to a national tragedy," he said. "The circumstances which have led to my appointment as attorney general have filled me with sorrow. Senator Walsh was a friend of twenty years' standing and one for whom I had the highest admiration and respect. I shall endeavor to carry on the duties that have been assigned to me in his spirit and hope that the conduct of the office will be helpful to our country in the present very difficult situation."

Roosevelt to Attend Rites.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by their son, James, visited Mr. Walsh's widow today at the senator's late residence, where his body lay in a bower of roses. Mr. Roosevelt announced that he will attend the state funeral services to be held for Mr. Walsh at the capitol on Monday. Afterward, the senator's body will be sent to Helena, Mont., for burial.

The President elect spent his last day as a private citizen busy in many conferences, including a lengthy session with President Hoover, which went far beyond the customary social call always paid by the President elect upon the man he is to succeed.

Tomorrow morning, prior to the solemn inaugural which will install him into his grave duties, Mr. Roosevelt, his family, the members of his cabinet and their families, all will participate in a special religious service at which divine blessings will be asked for the new administration.

Arranged by Roosevelt.

The services, arranged by Mr. Roosevelt himself, will be conducted by three Episcopal prelates, Dr. Endicott Peabody, rector at Groton school, where Mr. Roosevelt received his preparatory education; Dr. Frank Wilson, rector of Mr. Roosevelt's home church at Hyde Park, N. Y., and the Rev. Robert Johnston, rector of St. John's Episcopal church in Washington, where the services will be held.

Mr. Roosevelt's first visitors today were the Vice President elect, John N. Garner, and Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio.

Later, Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, the new secretary of state, came with Prof. Raymond Moley, economic adviser to the President elect, and both, with briefcases under their arms, went at once into conference with the President elect.

Ickes Among Callers.

Senator Claude Swanson of Virginia, the new secretary of the navy, came to pay his respects, as did also Mr. Roosevelt's secretary of the interior, Harold L. Ickes of Illinois. Mr. Ickes was accompanied by his wife and two sons.

Reports concerning other appointments to be made soon to the "little cabinet" included several that Archibald McNeil, committeeman from Connecticut, would become third assistant postmaster general.

Forbes Morgan, an uncle of Mrs. Roosevelt by marriage, will be made an assistant secretary of commerce.

BANKING 'CULPRITS' SHOULD BE JAILED, SENATOR LEWIS SAYS

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago today advised his colleagues that the best way to end the current bank panic and restore public confidence was to jail dishonest bankers and arrange for the guarantee of bank deposits by the federal government.

Referring to an unnamed "number of bankers" as "highwaymen, culprits, and traitors to the public trust," the veteran Democratic leader asserted on the senate floor that these men must be jailed. No names were mentioned specifically by the senator.

"The world should be told," he asserted, "that the United States has not lost confidence in its banks. The loss of confidence is in the bankers, few as they are, who have prostituted every undertaking, betrayed every trust, violated every obligation and committed every available crime by which they could profit. They are the culprits who have terrorized the American public.

"Confidence is lost by the people because they feel the conduct of some bankers, who have been exposed, represents an example of what is transpiring everywhere."

CABINET WOMAN URGES MINIMUM WAGE STANDARD

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Legislation fixing a permanent wage minimum standard for women will be favored by Miss Frances Perkins [Mrs. Paul C. Wilson, in private life], the nation's new secretary of labor disclosed upon leaving for the capital today to assume her cabinet post. Miss Perkins also favors a temporary minimum standard for men workers.

The first woman to sit in a president's cabinet believes however that this legislation is a matter for the states and not for congress. She said today that she would labor to "persuade" the states to enact the reform.

"A basic wage for New York's 1,500,000 women wage earners is essential," she declared. "Newspaper surveys here in the last few days have revealed that hundreds of women in this city are working for as little as $4 a week. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman in a message to the legislature the other day said he had been informed that some of these unfortunates were toiling as much as sixty hours a week for less than $6 a week."

As to the business slump, Miss Perkins had this to say:

"The depression is feeding on itself. We must have mass consumption or we will never get a market for mass production."

Miss Perkins is "not familiar with what the labor department's immigration policies have been recently," but as far as deportation is concerned, she has "a bible"—the Wickersham commission report, which criticised some past proceedings.

About herself, she was more reticent. Her Manhattan address is unknown except to her closest friends. Her husband will not go to Washington. He is ill with influenza. Her ten year old daughter will remain in school.

PILOT ROUTS AUTO THIEVES.

Everett McMillan, 3104 West 64th street, an air mail pilot, whose automobile has been stolen five times in the last year, early yesterday routed two men who attempted to steal the car from in front of his home. He fired several shots at them.

CERMAK ILLNESS THINS PILGRIMS TO INAUGURATION

Many State and City Leaders Stay Home.

Most of the air of jubilation that under other circumstances would have marked the occasion was missing yesterday when two groups of Illinoisians, including downstaters as well as Chicagoans, left for the inauguration ceremonies at Washington today.

The latest reports on Mayor Cermak's condition at that time were unusually encouraging, but the fact that the head of the Democratic party in the state was not yet out of danger checked any tendency toward jollification. Even conversations on the platforms before the trains pulled out were subdued and restrained.

Many Cancel Reservations.

In addition, the Illinois group was much smaller than had been expected, and there were cancellations of reservations right up until train time.

Gov. Horner, who had been expected to lead the state delegation, decided to remain in Chicago for further news of improvement in the mayor's condition. Following his example Secretary of State Hughes, State Treasurer Martin and State Auditor Barrett cancelled their reservations. Therefore the only important state official in Washington today will be Lieut. Gov. Dohovan, who went east two days ago.

A similar situation existed among Cook county leaders. Following a statement by County Chairman P. A. Nash that the organization would take no official part in the pilgrimage, arrangements for what originally was called the "Cermak special" were cancelled. Nash and other committee leaders such as Clayton F. Smith, A. J. Horan and Moe Rosenberg remained in Chicago.

City Representation Light.

The city hall representation also was light. Controller Szymczak had gone east on Thursday and will be the chief representative of the city at the capital. No other important member of the mayor's cabinet will be at the scene of activity.

The county group was well represented on the special train carrying President Whealan and a number of other members of the county board, but a number of county officials were missing.

Sheriff Meyering and Coroner Walsh were on the Whealan special, but County Clerk Sweitzer, County Judge Jarecki, and others remained at home.

Michael L. Igoe, former national committeeman, went with the county group. So did a delegation from the Iroquois club which included Ernest J. Kruetgen, who has been mentioned for postmaster of Chicago; William Rothmann, Charles J. Vopicka, and Irvin Rooks, president of the club.

Downstaters on Train.

Among the downstaters who rode with the Chicagoans were Justice Warren H. Orr of the state Supreme court, V. Y. Dallman of Springfield, former United States marshal, and Peter Rossiter, chairman of the Sangamon county committee.

While these Illinoisians were starting eastward the rear guard of representatives from other western states bound for the capital was passing through the city. Among those in the city for a short time was Gov. C. Ben Ross of Idaho, who was accompanied by Mrs. Ross.

ELECTORAL COLLEGE MEMBERS GUESTS AT DINNER IN CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., March 3.—(AP)—The men and women who elected Franklin D. Roosevelt — members of the Electoral college—actually met for the first time tonight.

Nearly 200 of them were guests at a dinner given by the inaugural committee at the largest meeting of electors ever held.

The electors, whose work is cut out for them when voters cast their ballots, hold state meetings but the formality of forwarding their ballots to Washington is now done quadrennially by the United States mails.

James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee and postmaster general-designate, was an honor guest at the dinner and addressed the group briefly.

Washington Hotels Accept No Out of Town Checks

Washington, D. C., March 3.—(AP)—New difficulties today presented themselves for inaugural visitors. The Washington Hotel association decided that its members would accept no checks drawn on out of town banks. Their resolution on the subject, which stared from the counter at those who registered, said:

"Members find it necessary that due to unsettled banking conditions throughout the country that checks on out of town banks cannot be accepted."

CHIEF DESCRIBES NEW ROOSEVELT FARM LOAN BODY

Morgenthau Tells of Huge Credit Structure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—A government credit body second in size only to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, was described today by Henry Morgenthau Jr., selected by President Elect Roosevelt to head what Mr. Morgenthau has christened the "farm credit administration."

In his first press conference since the announcement of his coming appointment, the man who has served as Gov. Roosevelt's spokesman and liaison agent on agricultural matters described the set up of the new organization into which will be combined all existing federal farm credit agencies.

2 Billion Loans Outstanding.

Outstanding agricultural loans totaling in the neighborhood of 2 billion dollars, are thus to be brought into an administrative agency which Mr. Morgenthau said would run independently of but in the closest cooperation with the department of agriculture under Henry A. Wallace, secretary designate.

The federal farm board, the federal land banks, the joint stock land banks, the intermediate credit banks, the crop production loan bureau of the department of agriculture, the regional agricultural credit corporations of the R. F. C., and any farm mortgage refinancing system which may be set up later, all are to come under the new administration.

These functions will be preserved by apportioning the work of administration among commissioners in charge of the various types of loans, but their identities will be lost in the new Roosevelt creation.

There may be more capital needed from the federal treasury. Of that, Mr. Morgenthau was not sure.

No More Stabilization.

There will be no more stabilization. Of that, Mr. Morgenthau was positive.

"The new administration is going to get the government out of wheat and cotton as quickly as it can," he said.

The government is entirely out of cotton, virtually out of cash wheat, and almost out of wheat futures, supplied James C. Stone, retiring chairman of the farm board, in the offices of which the conference took place.

Board loans to cooperatives totaled 187 millions, of which 140 millions were sound, Mr. Stone said.

Not so sound, it appeared from the annual report of the federal farm loan board, are the loans of the federal land banks of which $1,128,864,450 were outstanding at the close of 1932.

Land Banks Face Problems.

The land bank system which Mr. Morgenthau will take over cannot continue to operate on a sound basis without an improvement in farm prices, the report stated.

"Increasing delinquencies have presented a problem to the banks in meeting operating expenses and bond obligations," the board declared. "Already the land banks have used up $28,419,000 of the $25,000,000 which the government gave them last year for the carrying of delinquents, and still thousands of delinquents are being carried without any specific provisions for them."

Carry 93,000 Borrowers.

Some 93,000 borrowers who were delinquent were being carried on the emergency $25,000,000.

New funds with which to carry the thousands of delinquents will be one of the first problems confronting the new administration after the reorganization of the agricultural credit agencies.

Federal land banks last year foreclosed on only 2.4 per cent of the loans which were delinquent or extended the board reported. Nevertheless, the banks acquired and sold more real estate last year than any year in their history.

W-G-N'S BROADCAST OF INAUGURATION TO START AT 9:15 A. M.

A detailed word picture of today's inauguration ceremonies will be broadcast by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station. The W-G-N inauguration broadcast beginning at 9:15 a. m. will continue until 3 p. m. with only one interruption. At 9 p. m. the scene at the inaugural ball will be described for a half hour.

W-G-N will present the inauguration broadcast through the facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System. A large staff of announcers, including Ted Husing, Frederic W. Wile, Edwin C. Hill, H. V. Kaltenborn, Robert Trout, John Mayo, Harry von Zell, Don Ball, and Ted Church will be located with microphones at various points of vantage along the streets of Washington, at the President's hotel, the capitol, and the White House. Every move of the official party will be reported.

One of the features to be presented by W-G-N but not carried on the Columbia network, will be a special broadcast from Washington at 9:15 a. m. by Clara, Lu, 'n' Em, those gossiping girls who always are on hand with the chatter and scandal of the day. Clara, Lu 'n' Em are in Washington to see the ceremonies on the invitation of Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the inaugural committee. They will have front row seats at the ceremonies, but their broadcast this morning will be limited to gossip the "gals" have picked up during the last two days spent prowling around at the capitol.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna Simms Will Re-Enter Politics

Albuquerque, N. M., March 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Hanna Simms of Albuquerque, former representative in congress from Illinois, is getting back into active politics.

She announced tonight she would make a state-wide speaking tour and organize a Republican women's league in New Mexico in the interests of Republican candidates at the state election two years hence. All state officers and a United States senator will be chosen at that time.

SILVER HOARDED IN BANK VAULTS; PRICE GOING UP

Advertise in Papers for Metal.

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Silver is being hoarded by the ton in the safety deposit vaults of big New York banks these trying days.

An authorized spokesman for one of the largest financial institutions of the city told THE TRIBUNE correspondent today that holdings of the white metal bars in these steel walled hideaways now are ten times as large as they were six months ago and that the stocks are growing daily.

Turnover on the National Metals exchange rose from 19,600,000 ounces on 784 orders in January to 44,700,000 ounces on 1,788 separate orders in February. During the first two days of March 7,425,000 ounces were traded in a volume which if followed up would run the total for this month up to 75 or 80 million ounces.

Prices Continue to Rise.

Prices on the metal are being pegged up daily. An average of ⅝ cents an ounce was chalked up at the end of today's dealings on the exchange boosting the price to 27¼ cents. Yesterday the rate jumped ¾ cents.

The shares of companies mining silver are benefiting from the public's new enthusiasm over the metal's prospects. International Silver rose 2½ points on the New York Stock exchange today.

So brisk has the demand grown that the financial community was treated the other day to the spectacle of a metal broker advertising in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for silver metal—ostensibly for customers with visions of handsome profits to be made from the present price trends.

Just how much of the metal now being stored up in the bank vaults is intended for speculative purposes and how much for use in fulfilling future orders is a matter of guesswork.

Information Withheld.

The banks, of course, do not give out figures on their individual holdings—having no call to do so. Brokers are just as chary about revealing details of their business—either on "spot sales" or future delivery accounts.

All hands agree, however, that speculative interest in the metal is increasing rapidly and since most people who are rushing to withdraw their funds from banks are casting about for some "safe" medium of investment most any spokesman of the trade will submit is as a reasonable proposition that silver is getting at least its share of the new investments.

Cortlandt W. Handy, president of Handy & Harman, one of the world's largest metal brokerage concerns, told THE TRIBUNE today that both the spot sales figures and the orders from stock exchange firms with his company had increased "very substantially" in the last few weeks.

Sees Speculative Activity.

Orders of the last named class in particular furnish evidence of the growth of the hoarding movement, according to Mr. Handy.

"In fact, when you get an order for a stock exchange house you can put it down right off to the account of speculation," he said. "That goes without saying."

According to Mr. Handy and other spokesmen of the trade speculative interest in silver has been growing virtually ever since the Somers "remonetization" bill began to make headway in congress. Under this bill, which many of the speculators seem to think will be revived in the next session, the United States government would purchase approximately 416,666,000 ounces of silver in the next five years at an average price of 60 cents an ounce, or considerably more than double the present price.

Rising Scale of Prices.

The bill would boost the price on government purchases—to 40 cents an ounce, an increase of 13 cents or so an ounce over present quotations within the first three months after it went into effect. The price for the next three months would go to 50 cents and within ninety days thereafter would be hoisted to 75 cents an ounce.

Thus, as brokers here pointed out today the "hoarder" of silver at prevailing prices could look forward to the possibility of trebling his money within the next year—if congress should be so kindhearted as to enact the measure at its forthcoming special session. Nor would even that be the limit, it is declared.

At one of the hearings of the house committee on coinage, weights and measures while "remonetization" was under consideration, the assertion was made that this or kindred legislation would serve to increase the price to $1.29 an ounce.

Pittman Proposal a Factor.

The proposal of United States Senator Key Pittman of Nevada to permit Great Britain to make the June payment of her war debt in silver is given as another important factor in speculative interest in the metal.

J. J. Murphy, secretary of the National Metals exchange, declared today that this interest was at the highest point it had reached since Great Britain went off the gold standard. The present price compares with a low of 24.44 and a high of 33.45 cents an ounce for the metal on the exchange last year.

Congress' Pledges to Reduce Expenses Bring Small Cut

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—The congress that opened its session last December with such glowing promises regarding economy will go out tomorrow having failed to redeem its pledges. It will go out with a record of having appropriated more than $4,357,000,000.

Within two or three days, according to congressional custom, statements will be published by eminent gentlemen in the house and senate describing their great service in having saved the country a half billion dollars or so.

It is true the total appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933 (which were passed at the preceding session), amounted to $4,800,731,979, while those for the year ending June 30, 1934, on the basis of all but final figures, will aggregate $4,322,138,231.

The facts, however, are that when the figures for both years are reduced to the same terms, congress actually cut only $8,470,175 from last year's total. The most congress can claim is a decrease of $145,627,182.

Fairy Tales for Taxpayers.

It's a time worn adage that figures don't lie. But budget makers and appropriators can make them tell some strange tales. Sometimes they are fairy tales for the taxpayer's benefit.

The appropriations for 1934 fiscal year approved by congress amount to a total of $4,322,138,231. Postal revenues, however, will take care of most of the postoffice appropriations. Postal revenues for the fiscal year 1934 are estimated at $627,293,161. Deducting that amount leaves $3,694,845,070.

Here, however, is where the catch comes in. Included in the 1933 fiscal year figures is the sum of $363,324,000 for emergency construction and other relief, in no sense a regular annual outlay; there also is included the sum of $103,088,059, which is expected to be returned to the treasury under the economy act passed last summer.

Deduct those two items and there remains a net appropriations total of $3,683,215,245.

Result Is Much the Same.

Then reduce the 1934 fiscal year's appropriations to the same basis. The emergency items amount to $4,100,000; the economy provisions attached to the treasury and postoffice bill were pared down so that the expected saving is not more than $16,000,000. Deduct this $20,100,000 and the net remainder is $3,674,745,070.

Then figure the saving for the fiscal year to end June 30, 1933, compared with that ending June 30, 1934.

The two fiscal years, compared, show these totals of appropriations:

1934	3,674,745,070
Saving	$ 8,470,175

That saving may be slightly augmented by last minute changes in the District of Columbia bill. That is the only one of the regular 1934 supply bills not yet finally approved by congress. But whatever amendments there are will not make a difference of more than a million dollars at the most.

Public Debt Interest Grows.

Congress will plead that it made cuts, but that they were swallowed up in the increase of such items as the interest on the public debt from 640 millions in 1933 to 725 millions in 1934 and the increase in the sinking fund from $496,803,478 in 1933 to $534,070,321 in 1934. The total increases in items that the budget makers makers know as "permanent and indefinite" are in fact $113,345,493 and the postal revenues are expected to decrease by $23,811,514.

Even adding those figures to the $8,470,175 brings the cuts engineered by congress to only $145,627,182, which is a far cry from the "billion dollars" that was going to be saved while the campaigns were going.

In addition to the 1934 fiscal year appropriations, two deficiency bills were passed in order to meet expenses for 1933. The first called for $3,756,435. The second, as it passed the senate today, carried $32,489,933, though that figure may be pared down by some $505,000 due to house action taken this evening.

Little Chance for Real Cut.

The total for this session, therefore, now stands at $4,358,385,021, with no chance of it being cut more than one and a half millions.

As an example of economizing, the action of the senate today might be offered. Having the second deficiency bill in its possession it added to it $250,000 for the George Rogers Clark memorial in Indiana; that was Senator Jim Watson. It added $227,000 to for a hotel burned while in use as a government hospital; that was Senator Dave Reed of Pennsylvania. It added $156,000 for work on the senate office building, $48,000 for American participation in the institute of agriculture at Rome, and lastly $50,000 for a suitable memorial to commemorate the 350th anniversary of the landing of the first white family on American shores.

Some Reduction Likely.

Thanks to the house, all but the hospital and senate office building items probably will be stricken out. In the same spirit the senate agreed to the economy provisions of the treasury and postoffice bill by striking out the Bratton amendment which would have saved $140,000,000 and left in the Byrnes amendment which passes the buck to President Elect Roosevelt by giving him almost autocratic powers of reorganization.

Congress, in this session, did not achieve even the economies recommended by President Hoover. Had it followed the advice contained in his budget, appropriations would have been been at least decreased by another $107,278,087.

FOOT CALLED KEY TO THE SECRET OF WOMAN'S BEAUTY

The secret of a woman's beauty, or lack of it, often may be found in her feet, in the opinion of Dr. Louis Diamond. He discussed the relation of feet to feminine beauty yesterday in a talk preceding the annual convention of the surgical congress of the Illinois Association of Chiropodists and Foot Specialists, opening today at the Morrison hotel.

Dr. Diamond, who is president of the Chicago branch of the association, said that women whose beauty is marred by bow legs, thick ankles and similar irregular features, may find the fault in their feet. And if their clothes don't fit them well, feet again may be responsible..

"Bow legs," said Dr. Diamond, "may not be bow legs at all, but something due to turned-in toes and ill-fitting shoes. Ankles may be thick from lack of a three-point basis for the foot on the ground. Ill-fitting clothes are often the result of bad posture, which can be traced to lack of balance of the foot. To correct these ills, walk without shoes, fold and separate the toes, and bend the ankles."

COUNTY SCHOOLS CLOSE MONDAY TO HONOR TOBIN

County schools will be closed on Monday in honor of County Superintendent of Schools Edward J. Tobin, who died Thursday night in his home at 11350 Longwood drive.

County school teachers and many of the 100,000 grade and high school pupils will attend funeral services Monday morning in St. Margaret's church, 99th and Throop streets. Interment will be in Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

Mr. Tobin, who was 63 years old, had been superintendent of county schools for 23 years. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Belle Padden Tobin, and two children, Edward Jr. and Mrs. Ruth Heffernan, whose husband, David J. Heffernan, was Mr. Tobin's assistant.

Under school laws Mr. Tobin's post must be filled by the county board within 30 days. The county board is expected to choose his successor Wednesday. Those mentioned for the post are his widow and County Commissioner Homer J. Byrd, who was for six years before his election to the board an assistant to Mr. Tobin.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TO LOOK IN ON INAUGURAL BALL

Final Day of Private Life Strenuous One.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—Late this evening, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt decided to keep to her original plan of attending the inaugural ball tomorrow evening. She had cancelled the engagement because of the sudden death of Senator Thomas Walsh. But today, when she learned that many subscribers were cancelling their tickets to the charity event because they would not have the opportunity to see the new first lady, she reconsidered.

A request from the Walsh family that the previously planned program be not altered, further impelled her to go to the ball.

Visit Will Be Brief.

"But I will go for only a short time," she said tonight. "The children will stay on for a while. But my visit will have to be brief."

If you're weary of hearing that Mrs. Roosevelt never gets weary, then don't follow her footsteps today. For her farewell to the life of a private citizen had a vigor and a vivacity that would be the envy of many a public official.

Early she went through the morning mists to find solitude in a cemetery before a famous statue. Late she went over the radio into many an American home in a good-by address before she enters the great American home, the White House. And all in between she was busy with big things and at trivial tasks.

Have a look at her today.

Views Statue in Cemetery.

After her breakfast, served in her suite at the Mayflower hotel, she loaded Meggie, her Scotch terrier, into a taxicab and went to Rock Creek cemetery, there to sit in silence before the St. Gaudens statue "Grief," which the late Henry Adams erected as a memorial to his wife. When she lived here in the Wilson administration, Mrs. Roosevelt loved that statue. Today she called it "one of the most beautiful things in Washington."

From the rock the woman who tomorrow will have many running about to see that she is comfortable, motored over to a hotel to "see if my cousins were comfortable."

Now she has so many cousins that nobody knew just whom she meant until she explained: "I called on Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parish of New York. She is my godmother, you know; I was married at her home."

Plays with Grandchildren.

Back at her own hotel, she played with her grandchildren, "Sissy" and "Buzzy" Dall. Do they know their grandfather is to be President? No, they have come to Washington and that Washington is gay, full of noise and excitement. The Roosevelts are not anxious that the youngsters should think "that they hold any different place in this inauguration than any other child in America."

Then there were callers. One of the first was Mrs. Harold Ickes of Chicago, wife of the new secretary of the interior. Mr. and Mrs. Ickes and two of their sons, Raymond and Robert, arrived here this morning. Mrs. Ickes will be able to stay only until Sunday night, for she has to rush back to Springfield and her job in the legislature.

Mrs. Roosevelt's press conference was at 11. She was friendly, but firm. There must be no talk of politics. On other subjects she was expansive.

Family Dinner Tonight.

Yes, in spite of Senator Walsh's death, the family dinner would be held tomorrow night, because "my husband doesn't know just when he can again get so many of the Roosevelt family together."

How many are in the Roosevelt family? "Well, that depends which side you mean. Both sides are large."

She laughed and admitted she really didn't know how many would be at the supper (it's not really a dinner, for you stand up); her best guess was between sixty and seventy.

Would the Republican Roosevelts be there? "They have all been invited."

As for the future social calendar: "I imagine," she said seriously, "that it will be slight. My husband is anxious that everything be done with dignity, but with great simplicity."

Call on Walsh's Widow.

Shortly afterwards she went with her husband to call on Senator Walsh's widow. Lunch was hurried, for she had to get over to the Woman's National Democratic club reception at 2:30. All the feminine celebrities of Democracy in town were at the party.

Mrs. Roosevelt shook hundreds of hands, then hurried over to the Congressional club to shake hundreds more.

Back at the hotel by 4, she accompanied Mr. Roosevelt to the White House to call on President and Mrs. Hoover. In her suite once more, callers, grandchildren, cousins, cabinet wives, dinner, and a radio speech, "just a good-by" before tomorrow's entrance into a new role—the first lady of the land.

APARTMENT MANAGER ROBBED.

Mrs. Roosevelt spent day on-the-go, including visit to White House.

JUDGE JOHNSON RETIRES FROM FEDERAL BENCH

Congress Fails to Act on Appointment.

Judge George E. Q. Johnson retired from the federal bench yesterday, due to the failure of the expiring congress to confirm his appointment. He had served seven months on the bench to which he was appointed by President Hoover after being United States district attorney here for six years.

Judge Johnson will reënter the general practice of law at 105 West Adams street. He will be joined by his old partner, Luther D. Swanstrom, in the firm of Johnson & Swanstrom. Associated with them will be Samuel G. Clawson and Walter E. Wiles, both of whom served as assistants to Mr. Johnson when he was prosecutor, and Saul H. Weinberg.

Sends Capone to Prison.

Judge Johnson's retirement served to recall his income tax prosecutions. While United States district attorney he was successful in convicting and sending to prison the leading criminal of Chicago, Al Capone, and a number of his hoodlum associates. He was the first prosecutor to realize the potential power of the charge of income tax evasion and evoke it against hoodlums. Similar prosecutions are now widespread.

Other defendants convicted by Judge Johnson's efforts include Al Capone's brother, Ralph; Jack and Sam Guzik, Frant Nitti, Terry Druggan, and Frankie Lake, the "Beer Twins"; former Tax Assessor Gene Oliver, former State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien, and Christian P. Paschen, building commissioner during a former Republican municipal administration.

A Coolidge Appointee.

Mr. Johnson was appointed United States attorney on Feb. 14, 1927, by the late Calvin Coolidge while he was President. He was reappointed by President Hoover four years later and in the fall of 1931 began the prosecution of Capone. As a reward for his success he was elevated to the bench on Aug. 17, 1932, pending confirmation by the senate.

United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis has said that he would urge President Roosevelt to reappoint Judge Johnson.

Rumania Quashes Attempt to Introduce Hitlerism

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, March 3.—The first attempt to introduce Hitlerism in Rumania resulted today in the arrest of Ion Ciolak, a deputy belonging to Prof. Cuza's anti-Semitic party. He arrived in the chamber of deputies wearing an imitation of the Nazi uniform, with the swastika emblem on his arm. A storm of protest arose and he was arrested. He was released when he promised not to repeat the offense.

43D HEARING IS HELD ON CITY STATE BANK CASE

The 43d hearing on the indictment in which Attorney Seymour Stedman and seven other officers and directors of the City State bank are charged with receiving deposits while the bank was insolvent was held yesterday before Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude. The bank closed on Nov. 2, 1929, but the case has not yet been brought to trial. Yesterday's hearing was upon a motion, argued by Attorney Stedman, to quash the indictment against one of his fellow vice presidents in the bank, Frank E. Robinson. Judge Trude announced that he would rule on the motion on Tuesday at the 44th hearing of the case.

1,535 JAPANESE PERISH IN QUAKE AND TIDAL WAVE

1,948 Missing and 4,242 Homes Lost.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 4 [Saturday].—Official figures of casualties in yesterday's earthquake, tidal wave, and fires today accounted for 1,535 known dead. One thousand nine hundred and forty-eight persons are missing, and more than 3,000 were injured.

Home office reports at 9 a. m. listed 2,963 houses washed away, 1,279 destroyed, and 6,589 flooded.

The devastated region extends from the southern border of Fukushima province, 100 miles north of Tokio along the eastern coast of the main Japanese island of Honshu, through Miyagi, Iwate and Aomori prefectures a distance of about 300 miles, and across Tsugaru strait to the southern end of Hokkaido island. Three tidal waves were reported in Hokkaido.

Towns Are Leveled.

Destruction was most severe in Iwate prefecture. Only three of 800 houses in Taromura remained standing. Two thousand of the town's 3,000 inhabitants are dead or missing. The towns of Kamaishi [population 23,000], Yamada, Miyako [16,000], Kisenuma, and Omoto were leveled. Kakodate on the northern island also reported heavy casualties.

Ten destroyers from Yokosuka and Ominato reached the stricken area today with physicians, nurses, medical and relief supplies. Airplanes were forced to turn back by a heavy snowfall. An engineer battalion and two cavalry regiments were dispatched to the area by the army. They took with them food, medical supplies and blankets.

Rush to Hills to Escape.

Terrorized residents of scores of towns and villages rushed into the cold streets in the dark as electric currents failed after the quake. In communities throughout the area alarm gongs were sounded and cries of "Otsunami!"—meaning tidal wave—were raised for a period of about 40 minutes after the earthquake.

The majority of the people, knowing what was coming, rushed to the hills to escape the 10 foot wall of water. Fires caused by the quake were left unchecked as the townspeople rushed to safety.

Gale Sweeps Honolulu.

HONOLULU, March 3.—(AP)—A wind of hurricane proportions tore through Honolulu harbor today, unroofing a pier, a market, and a number of houses. The strongest gale confined itself to a narrow path but strong winds, hail, and a heavy rainstorm were general over the island. William Lishman was out on the head when a strip of iron roofing tore through the top of the automobile he was driving.

Close Traffic Fear Tidal Wave.

IQUIQUE, Chile, March 3.—(AP)—Authorities today prohibited all traffic in Iquique bay because of signs of a possible tidal wave. The waters were quiet, but were receding slowly.

C. R. WALGREEN JR. IS SUED BY WIFE; CHARGE CRUELTY

Mrs. Mary June Lake Walgreen filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty, in the Superior court yesterday against Charles R. Walgreen Jr., son of the head of the drug store chain.

The case was assigned to Judge James J. Kelly, and will be heard early next week. Attorney Leonard C. Reid, who filed it, said that the action would probably be uncontested, since a property settlement has already been arranged between Mrs. Walgreen and her husband.

The bill charges that on last Nov. 25, Walgreen seized his wife by the shoulders, pushing her against a door and knocking her to the floor. On Jan. 12, Mrs. Walgreen charges, her husband slapped her face, and on Feb. 27, the date of their separation, he is charged with seizing her arm and twisting her wrist.

Mrs. Walgreen, who is 24 years old, is the stepdaughter of W. O. Cooke, former vice president of the Central Trust company of Illinois. She is living at present at 3910 South Hamilton avenue.

They were married on June 28, 1928. Young Walgreen is 29 years old, a graduate of the University of Michigan, and is in charge of the real estate department of his father's company. There are no children.

DAILY QUAKES TERRORIZE CITY; FLEE BUILDINGS

CUTRO, Italy, March 3.—(AP)—Municipal authorities tonight requested the government to send experts here to study earthquake phenomena which have kept the 8,000 inhabitants of this city in fear since Jan. 23.

An average of two shocks a day, accompanied by rumblings which became strongest this afternoon and caused the populace to flee from buildings, has been felt. The quakes have averaged 5 seconds in duration.

Damage has increased gradually, with cracks in buildings becoming bigger, but there have been no casualties.

Accuses Her Husband of Bringing Home 'Mermaid'

Mrs. Mary Janousek, 6510 South Union avenue, dropped a suit for separate maintenance against Joseph Janousek, a railroad shop foreman, when he agreed several months ago to dispose of fifty tanks of tropical fish on which she charged he lavished his attention, to the exclusion of his family. Yesterday she filed another separate maintenance action through Attorney Victor Frohlich, in the superior court. Janousek, she charges, has built a new aquarium of forty tanks, and in addition has introduced what the bill called a "mermaid," one Mary Doe, into his home.

TIRED OF LIVING.

Alex Milne, 48 years old, a stone cutter, was found dead yesterday in his gas filled room at 3138 Warren boulevard. He left a note stating: "I'm tired of living," and leaving instructions for William Schueter, the landlord, for his burial. Milne is believed to have been dead several days when found.

U. S. Raids Whisky Cutting Plant

U. S. DRYS RAID CAPONE GANG'S SUPPLY PLANT

Invade Ten Bars and Cafes; Seize 17.

Special prohibition agents under Chief Investigator Eliot Ness last night raided the Capone syndicate distribution headquarters in a garage at 2640 South Wells street, and destroyed a supply of imported whisky and other liquors valued, at wholesale prices, at more than $25,000.

According to Ness, the garage had been rented by Burt Delaney, agent in charge of the Capone sales staff and recently exposed as the organizer of the South Water market scavengers' union. Last night's raid marked the third in as many days in which agents under Ness struck heavy blows at the syndicate liquor interests. The two previous raids were on a $100,000 brewery and a shipment of 500 cases of beer.

Agents Break Heavy Doors.

Early last evening Ness and his agents, using crow bars and sledge hammers, broke the heavily buttressed doors of the garage. Inside, cases and jugs were stacked to the ceiling. Although the doors and windows were barred, no guards were found. A special wrecking crew was called, and, working until midnight, the men destroyed the liquor.

The garage, which was used as a warehouse to supply the syndicate's liquor cutting plants, housed 380 cases of bonded whisky, 460 five gallon jugs of bourbon whisky, approximately a dozen cases of champagne, and several cases of assorted cordials and liquors. Many of the cases had been opened.

Among the brands confiscated were Bobby Burns, Coon Hollow, Log Cabin, Dewars, Indian Hill, Campbell's, Weston's, Highland Still, Dunbar, Johnny Walker, Spey Royal, Huntley's, and FitzJames. A guard was placed over the garage and special agents were sent on a tour of Delaney's haunts with warrants for his arrest.

Arrest 17 Persons in Raids.

At the same time agents under Al Aman, chief enforcement officer, made ten raids on saloons and cafes, arresting seventeen persons. In a room in the Merchandise Mart, agents arrested Henry Stone, who, they charged, was the supply man for customers who came to the building. A saloon at 208 West Kinzie street, in which two arrests were made, was said to furnish Stone with liquor.

A recently opened night club, the La Pace, at 81 West Randolph street, was the only loop place visited. There agents arrested Joseph White and Thomas Brown, bartenders. Thirty guests were allowed to leave. The LaFiesta cafe at 2044 South Chicago avenue was also raided and John Thies was arrested as the owner.

Other raids were made at the following places: 171 23d avenue, Melrose Park; 33 Lake street, Addison; 610 South State street; 1122 South Michigan avenue; 154 Desplaines avenue, Forest Park; 7206 Circle avenue, Forest Park; 14204 Edbrook avenue, Riverdale, and 222 East 55th street. Two men delivering alcohol and whisky were arrested in the streets.

Spanked Wheaton Cornet Player Gets a Divorce

Judge William J. Fulton in the Du Page county court at Wheaton yesterday entered a decree of divorce in favor of Byron E. Putman of Wheaton, electrical engineer, cornet player, and Bible class teacher. The judge had indicated on Feb. 2 that he would grant the divorce on the ground of cruelty after Putman said Mrs. Adelaide Putman had spanked him with a slipper to make him stop playing his cornet.

BILL FOR BEER DIES IN SENATE; BORAH BLAMED

He and Brookhart Are Held Responsible.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—The drive to give the nation beer during the short session ran up against a stone wall of senate dry opposition today. Sponsors of the Collier-Blaine bill legalizing 3.06 per cent beer and wine announced they had been forced to give up their fight. Leaders predicted quick passage of a beer bill during the special session.

The opposition of such dry senators as Chairman William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho] of the foreign relations committee, and Smith W. Brookhart [Rad., Ia.], the latter a lame duck, prevented redemption of the Democratic pledge to give the nation beer pending outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Both senators advised supporters of the bill this morning that if an attempt were made to push it today or tomorrow it would be filibustered to death.

Blocked by Borah, Brookhart.

"Senators Borah and Brookhart served notice today they were prepared to talk against the measure," Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] said tonight. "That ended it. The time is too short to override that sort of resistance."

An indication of what was in store for the Blaine-Collier bill came when Senator Brookhart frustrated an attempt by Senator Huey Long [Rad., La.] to get a vote on the measure removing restrictions from the sale of medicinal liquor.

"I would like," Senator Long said, "to make a motion for the benefit of suffering humanity. I want to have the medicinal liquor bill passed."

"I will make a speech against it, if you do," warned his fellow radical, Brookhart.

"Well, I do not want to bring it up," grinned the "Kingfish," "if it means the senator from Idaho is going to make a speech. I mean the senator from Iowa. I beg the pardon of both senators."

When Brookhart insisted on speaking, Senator Long said he did not believe the Iowa senator knew what was in the measure.

Says Even Cannon Approves.

"All the drys are for this bill," Long said. "Even Bishop Cannon did not oppose it. The senator from Iowa is the only one who gets up to object. I'd like to have this bill passed."

Brookhart said he would have to speak against it. "I hate filibusters," grinned Long, glancing impishly around the chamber. "I'll withdraw the motion."

Experts had testified the tax burden could have been lightened by upwards of 200 millions dollars through the passage of beer legislation. With the failure of beer, the repeal resolution represents the only anti-prohibition measure to win approval by this congress.

ELEPHANT SHOT TO DEATH AFTER KILLING KEEPER

HONOLULU, March 3.—(AP)—Daisy, rogue elephant owned by the Waikiki zoo, late today killed her keeper, George Conradt, 60, in a tantrum that cost her her life.

Police with high powered rifles killed the elephant after the Waikiki district was thrown into a panic.

The attack occurred in a rainstorm. The elephant, chained to a tree after becoming fractious, was to have been killed recently, but due to strong public protest arrangements were made only last week to have Conradt, who had been unemployed three months, return to the zoo in his capacity of keeper.

200 Tons of Gasoline Lost in German Plot; 25 Jailed

HANOVER, Germany, March 3.—(AP)—More than 200 tons of gasoline flooded the premises of the Deurag Oil company today when an unidentified person opened all the valves of three tanks which contained almost 400,000 gallons. Twenty-five persons were arrested.

YIDDLES LAUGHS LAST, BUT HE'S A BIT TOO EARLY

Life Is Overflowing with Trouble.

For Yiddles Miller life is full of trouble, and that includes police. He mentioned this feelingly last night as in an abstract manner and for want of something better to do he measured the distance between the bars of his detective bureau cell.

"Police have made my life unhappy," complained Miller gloomily, "just because I've been a pickpocket. Every time they see me on the street they look me up. What chance has an honest man? Here I'm behind the bars tonight, and only two days ago I got out of the Bridewell after working out a $25 fine. It isn't right, and even though the Bridewell's not a bad place these days, I don't like it."

"But there's one thing these police can't do," and here Miller's eyes twinkled happily — "they can take away my liberty, but not my memories."

Without any further provocation Miller's memory hopped back to 1910 when he wandered into the saloon of "Big Jack" Sheehan, a south side giant.

"'Big Jack' was a giant, two times my size," rebalied Miller. "Somehow we got into a wrestling match. He put me down in a hurry, and I had to buy drinks on the house. But he was the real loser. The match cost me only $5, the drinks on the house, but it cost him $200. During the little struggle I frisked his pocketbook, which contained $200. I don't mind telling this now because 'Big Jack' is dead."

And Miller chuckled at the thought.

Changes His Tune.

It wasn't long afterward, though, that Miller changed his tune. After one of the detectives who had been listening to the story of "Big Jack" Sheehan whispered something into Miller's ear Miller immediately sent for the desk sergeant and made a strange plea.

"Maybe you could fix it up with the judge to send me back to the Bridewell," he suggested hopefully. "Maybe a $50 fine this time."

"But why?" queried the surprised sergeant.

CERMAK RALLIES AFTER FAINTING; RESTING BETTER

newspaper men have been contradictory. Today they all declared the mayor has now a good chance to pull through.

But the well worn phrase "He is still a very sick man" was used by the cautious physicians in every interview.

The morning bulletin today said that the mayor had passed a quiet night and appeared stronger and improved. His colitis was less severe and the pneumonia was reported to be subsiding.

Holds Favorable Gains.

In the afternoon this bulletin was followed by another which declared that "the favorable" signs noted in his condition still prevailed and ended with the statement that "his day so far is an improvement over yesterday." He slept considerably during the day.

The glucose feedings by injection into the veins were discontinued today when the patent took more nourishment by mouth than in a week. Tonight he had some broth. Earlier he ate most of a soft boiled egg, a small bit of bacon, a slice of toast and two cups of tea. He asked for more tea, but this was refused him.

Moreover, the mayor was more alert today and his voice which has been a mere whisper was stronger. He asked the nurses if Ald. James Bowler and Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board in Chicago, were still at the hospital and was told that they were.

Later, William Haberkorn, sergeant at arms of the Illinois senate, peeked through the isinglass windows of the oxygen room and the mayor astonished his nurses by recognizing him and saying in a firm voice: "Hello, Bill. How are you?"

Needs to Build Strength.

This improvement, of course, may be traced directly to the second blood transfusion performed yesterday but the doctors said they were hopeful that it would be permanent. The beneficial effects of the first blood transfusion performed last Saturday lasted about four days.

"How about me?" Mayor Cermak asked Dr. Frank Jirka today, the latter reported. "Am I getting better."

"You are," responded the physician. "But you'll get well a whole lot quicker if you get some food into you."

It was after this admonition that the patient delighted the doctors in attendance by eating what was for a sick man a fair sized meal.

Russell Caldwell, one of the persons injured by Zangara's bullets, was readmitted to the hospital today for examination. Caldwell was shot in the forehead and was discharged recently, but an infection has developed since then. His condition was reported not serious.

Mrs. Gill was still in a critical condition tonight. For several days she had been reported on the road to recovery but she took a turn for the worse two nights ago.

DR. MEYER RETURNS

Direct from the sickroom of Mayor Cermak at Miami, Dr. Karl A. Meyer, chief of staff of the county hospital, was optimistic but "making no prophesies" as he arrived in Chicago yesterday aboard the Dixie Limited of the C. & E. I. railway. The patient, he told interviewers, still is in a critical condition, and even if no more complications develop, it will be a week before he is "out of the woods."

The wounded executive has lost about twenty-five pounds in weight, Dr. Meyer believes, and is so weak he avoids even conversation when possible. Yet, Dr. Meyer said, he spends a good deal of his waking hours trying to think up ways for his doctors to get some recreation and rest.

"He's had about all the bad breaks one person could have in this siege," said Dr. Meyer. "He still has colitis. That comes from his pierced liver and the seepage of blood into the intestines. The kidneys are all right now."

"With the best of conditions, how long will it take the mayor to get back strength sufficient for the trip home?" he was asked.

"I should say around six weeks," was the answer. "It would be another three months, with all the breaks in his favor, before he would be ready to do his work in normal fashion. That's the prospect, granted that there aren't any more complications."

New Uniforms for Evanston Police

Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston (left) examining the new uniforms of Policeman Frank Kreml (center) and Kenneth Dickinson.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

For World's Fair

In case you're arrested in Evanston during the World's Fair your arresting policeman will be the dandiest looking policeman in this part of the country, Police Chief William O. Freeman admitted as much last night. It will hold true of any Evanston policeman, he added.

The reason: Evanston cops—or, rather, civic guards, as they prefer to be called—are going to dress up in smart, military-like uniforms. The uniforms, of summery texture, will be ready in time for the Fair.

Blue will be the color, of course, but a lighter blue, for instance, than the blue of Chicago policemen. Caps will have a larger top surface, with more soldierly peaks. On the whole, the uniforms will be more form fitting and will have Sam Brown belts. The motorcycle policemen will emerge as the smartest, with puttees, and inch wide gray stripes down the trouser sides.

HOME OWNERS STORM OFFICE TO PAY TAXES

Collect 2 Million in 1931 Levy in Day.

A rush of small property owners jammed the offices of County Treasurer McDonough yesterday and paid approximately $2,000,000 in 1931 taxes, the record current tax collection for a single day this year. It was estimated last night that taxes had been paid on 10,000 items during the day. The best previous day's record for 1931 tax collections was $1,165,273 paid on 5,000 items.

During the day Mr. McDonough and his attorney, Thomas D. Nash, received numerous telephone calls from attorneys representing large taxpayers who told them that their clients would take immediate advantage of the four payment plan for delinquent taxes, announced Thursday.

Longer Office Hours.

To accommodate taxpayers who wish to meet their current bills, the treasurer announced an extension of his office hours. He said that his employes would forego their usual Saturday half holiday and that his offices would also remain open all day tomorrow [Sunday] to receive payments. The new office hours will be from 8 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. to permit property owners to make payments before or after their working hours.

The lobby of the county building was jammed with taxpayers yesterday. An usher system modeled after that of the movie theaters was installed and kept the majority of the crowd outside the doors of the treasurer's office, admitting only as many persons as could form orderly lines before the sixteen windows at which payments of 1931 taxes were being received. The system was put into effect to guard against pickpockets and to eliminate the crushes and confusion of former years.

Doubles Previous Day's Receipts.

Payments of 1931 taxes up to yesterday morning amounted to $3,972,397, of which $303,427 was received in tax warrants and the remainder in cash. Yesterday's collections were double those of Thursday, when $1,165,273 was paid on 5,000 items.

Sixteen cages, each occupied by a collector and an auditor, received the payments. The employes in these cages worked in shifts, so that no time was lost for lunch hours. In addition, the office at 6 North Clark street was open to receive payments involving tax warrants.

Most of the taxpayers yesterday appeared to be the owners of small homes, said George Hagenauer, auditor for the treasurer. Their payments were often in worn, crumpled bills of small denomination, which they apparently had been accumulating to meet their tax bills.

"There was an unusually large number of men in the lines today," said Mr. Hagenauer. "I took this as an indication that many of them, in spite of unemployment, have found money to save their homes from tax sales. One man said to me: 'The way I figure it, this money we're paying now has already been spent. When we get our 1932 and 1933 tax bills there may be a big enough reduction in them to make it worth while to keep on owning a home.'"

Must Pay 25 Per Cent.

In connection with the plan for payment of delinquent taxes of the 1928, 1929, and 1930 levies, Treasurer McDonough announced yesterday that no taxpayer would be permitted to sign the agreement to pay, under the terms of which his property will be protected from forfeiture and sale, until he has paid the first installment of 25 per cent, plus the full amount of penalties which have accumulated. Failure to meet subsequent payments when they fall due one or two years from now will make the full bill immediately payable, and the usual measure to enforce payment will be instituted.

As an added incentive to taxpayers to sign up under the quadrennial payment plan, Mr. McDonough announced that enforcement of the levy on personal property for collection of real estate tax bills would begin on March 11, the end of the county court term at which County Judge Jarecki loses jurisdiction over the tax objection cases against which he recently entered a blanket order of dismissal.

Legislature Must Act.

The quadrennial payment plan will not be legal until the legislature passes a law authorizing the treasurer to accept such payments. Mr. McDonough said that he would wait two weeks for various civic groups which are working on this and other proposals to put teeth in the tax collection laws to complete their program. If they have not reached an agreement by that time he, with city and other county officials, will present their own bills, already being drafted, at Springfield.

"The Cook county governments will present a united front on this payment plan, regardless of the attitude of the civic groups," said Attorney Nash. "Our campaign slogan in the legislature on this matter will be that if downstaters expect us to collect taxes due the state government from Cook county, they must help us get the money in."

Dr. Gleitsmann Indicted on Two Murder Charges

Two indictments charging murder by abortion were returned yesterday by the grand jury against Dr. Emil Gleitsmann, 3940 North Monticello avenue. The alleged victims of the illegal operations were Mrs. Rosalie Lewis, 26, and Mrs. Mary Koop, 23. Dr. Gleitsmann was placed in jail last Friday when he was held to the grand jury by Judge Donald S. McKinlay in the Felony court.

Donor of Blood for Mayor Often Visitor in Chicago

Virgil Wright, 27 year old Miami electrician, who offered blood for Mayor Cermak's transfusion on Thursday, has often visited here at the home of his uncle, Charles W. Wright, 420 North Pine avenue. Mr. Wright said yesterday that his nephew had revealed in a letter that his blood was first offered to Mrs. Joseph H. Gill, wounded at the same time as was the mayor, but his blood was not the right type. Virgil Wright is employed by Mr. Gill, the wounded woman's husband, who is president of the Florida Power and Light company.

LENTEN FOODS ARE OFFERED AT BARGAIN PRICES

Large Shipments of Fish Received.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Sea foods, dairy and poultry products, fruit and vegetables are being featured today in more than 12,000 food stores of Chicagoland, as the week-end shopping list takes on new variety for the Lenten season.

Many Chicagoans are taking advantage of the bargain price of Lenten foods. The retail prices of eggs, most kinds of fish, macaroni, spaghetti, noodles, cottage cheese, pickles, new potatoes, head lettuce, celery, the larger sized oranges, and many kinds of canned goods have dropped today, as compared with a week and two weeks ago.

Eggs Near Cent Apiece.

Fresh country eggs selling at a fraction over 1 cent each are the lowest in nearly fifty years. Twelve ounce jars of creamed cottage cheese at 13 cents also are a new low price for this season. Brick chesee from 11 to 23 cents a pound set a new low price record.

A wide assortment of sea foods and fresh water fish is on the bargain counter today. It was estimated last night that in excess of 5½ million pounds of canned salmon alone will be consumed in the Chicago area during March and April. Both pink and fancy red salmon have come down in price, two tall cans of the former selling as low as 19 cents and the pound cans of red salmon as low as 15 cents. Some brands containing no skins are offered, a departure in salmon canning this season.

From Lake Michigan, Lake Superior, the Gulf of Mexico, and the Atlantic seaboard, several carloads of fish have been shipped to Chicago this week. The shipments are made in iced, sealed cars. Halibut, whitefish, trout, herring, pompano, oysters, lobsters, crabs, haddock, and perch are most in demand. The prices of all of these are much lower than a year ago.

Butter Price Is Higher.

Butter grading 90 or better is being offered at 23 cents a pound, higher than a week ago despite a drop in the wholesale market yesterday.

A price war, started this week among the manufacturers of condensed and evaporated milk, is expected to be reflected in downward retail prices next week. Most concerns last week dropped the prices paid to farmers for milk to be canned. Production in Wisconsin and other dairy states has increased, as has consumption. Estimates made yesterday indicate that 48 million more cans of evaporated milk were consumed in the United States in 1932 than in 1931.

Strawberries are more expensive this week, being 15 cents a pint today instead of 10 cents. Grocers report that the demand exceeded the supply at low prices, and growers in Florida have been unable to increase the amount of their shipments.

Beef and veal cuts of meat have been reduced in both wholesale and retail markets for today's shoppers. Heavyweight hens for stewing are an outstanding value for large families.

Idleness Grows in France; Total Reaches 330,874

PARIS, March 3.—(AP)—Idleness in France reached a new high point last week, when the total reached 330,874, an increase of 4,188 over the previous week.

BAR NORTHERN WISCONSIN MILK FROM CHICAGO

Bundesen Limits Shipments to 130 Mile Zone

BY PAUL POTTER.

Orders went out yesterday from the Chicago board of health shutting off northern Wisconsin milk and cream supplies from the Chicago market, and for the first time in history placing in effect a zoning system around the producers of dairy products for this metropolitan area.

The orders, signed by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, place the outside limits for cream and ice cream mix at 250 miles from Chicago, and the source of its fluid milk entirely within a 130 mile zone. The dairy plants and farmers are given until March 20 to find other markets for their supplies.

Two Towns Lose Market.

The two creameries farthest from Chicago, one at Barron and another at Stanley, Wis., both are removed from the Chicago market entirely. There are 580 farmers supplying the milk for these plants.

Orders were issued to all dairy plants under Chicago board of health inspection, outside the 130 mile zone, that no fluid milk could be sold in Chicago from these plants after March 20. They are permitted to continue shipping cream or ice cream mix, however.

It is also understood that all dairy plants, regardless of their distance from Chicago, now under board of health supervision but not shipping to Chicago, will lose their permits March 20. The entire program of redefining the milk shed for this city, as placed in effect, is said to reduce from 108 to 92 the number of country plants subject to city inspection.

Consumption Declines.

Coupled with the slackening of demand in Chicago for milk and cream has been a demand on the part of Illinois farmers that they be permitted to sell dairy products in Chicago. Gov. Horner was said yesterday to have expressed an active interest in seeing that no Illinois farmer be deprived of a market in Chicago should he choose to qualify.

Figures obtained from Madison, Wis., showed that in Wisconsin alone there has been an increase of 25,000 dairy cows 2 years and older between January, 1932, and January, 1933. There are 71 dairy cows for every 100 people in Wisconsin, according to the Wisconsin statistician, Walter Ebling.

Most of the plants in northern Wisconsin were placed under Chicago inspection when Illinois farmers were unable to supply sufficient milk that met the requirements of the new ordinance passed in 1926.

Many Surrender Permits.

Many Wisconsin plants qualified under the Chicago regulations at that time have been gradually dropping off. It was found yesterday that nearly 30 plants, involving the output of more than 2,500 farmers, have surrendered their Chicago board of health permits in two years.

Plants formerly shipping to Chicago from Iowa and Minnesota have all been dropped. Only one Ohio dairy still ships ice cream mix to Chicago. But three Michigan dairies hold Chicago permits and two of these are nipped in yesterday's orders by Dr. Bundesen.

As a result of yesterday's zoning rule the number of farms approved by the board of health for shipping milk and cream to Chicago will be decreased to less than 20,000.

PROPOSES VOTE ON ANNEXATION OF 3 SUBURBS

Benjamin Kohout, 6200 West 22d street, Berwyn, president of the Association for the Annexation of Western Suburbs, announced yesterday that a petition to place a proposal to annex Berwyn, Cicero, and Stickney to Chicago on the June 5 judicial ballot will be presented to County Judge Jarecki next week.

The petition will be sponsored by the association, Kohout said, and will point out that 150,000 residents of the three towns would have lower water, gas, and electricity rates under the annexation. He said that the petition will state that duplications in the three municipal governments would be eliminated with annexation. Kohout said that the annexation, if acceptable to voters, would increase Chicago's area by ten square miles. It would be the first annexation since Nov. 4, 1930, when the town of Beverly was made part of Chicago.

Under the law objectors to annexation would have an opportunity to present their protests before Judge Jarecki during a period immediately after the filing.

E. O. SCHILDHAUER HELD VICTIM OF UNKNOWN KILLER

The inquest yesterday into the death of Edwin O. Schildhauer, 27 year old Austin High school bandmaster, who was murdered on the night of Dec. 10, resulted in an open verdict of murder by a person or persons unknown.

It was a routine verdict with the exception of a recommendation that the police continue the investigation.

Supervising Police Captain John Stege, in charge of the investigation, said he had virtually completed his investigation. "We have between 100 and 150 witnesses," he said, "and are close to our objective. The precodure we followed today was advised by Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty. We will clean up the case within a short time."

"When the police bring in a case we will present it direct to the grand jury," Assistant State's Attorney Dougherty told reporters.

At the conclusion of the inquest Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel complimented the police and predicted that their efforts would be productive of results soon.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 87; recovered, 67; stripped, 14 [from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Thursday.]

Court cases: Tom Gill and Jack Stillwagon, charged with automobile larceny, and Jerry Tolman and Ed Yeske, charged with the theft of auto parts, all held to the grand jury by Judge Samuel Trude. James Burgard, charged with auto larceny, held to the grand jury by Judge Frank Padden.

JEHOL CAPITAL REPORTED TAKEN BY JAP TROOPS

Chinese Said to Be Fleeing Toward Peiping.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 4 (Saturday).—Japanese forces entered Jehol City at 10 o'clock this morning, according to an urgent dispatch from Hsinking (formerly Changchun), capital of Manchukuo. Gen. Tadashi Kawahara's 16th infantry was the first unit to enter and met no resistance. The 120 mile road from Jehol City to Peiping swarmed with fleeing soldiers and refugees.

(A dispatch from Shanghai said the Chinese troops were "offering stiff resistance to Japanese invaders seeking to conquer Jehol City.")

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 3.—The long expected crisis in the Peiping-Tientsin area of northern China appeared to be drawing to a head today when the Chinese government at Nanking instructed Gen. Yu Shueh-chung, commander of the Chinese garrison at Tientsin, to reject a Japanese ultimatum that all Chinese troops there be withdrawn.

The Japanese demand contained three points. The first concerned the heavy Chinese troop movements in north China towards Jehol province and Shanhaikwan; the second concerned the arming of the Chinese forts at Taku, on the seacoast near Tientsin, and the third concerned the presence of Chinese troops in Tientsin.

Based on Boxer Protocol.

The Japanese ultimatum was based on the Boxer protocol of 1901, which forbids China to station troops in Tientsin. China, however, has always done so without protest from the other signatories of the protocol. In his reply the Chinese commander pointed out to the Japanese that the Boxer protocol did not apply to Japan alone but to all the signatories. He also charged that the Japanese attack on Shanhaikwan in January was a flagrant violation of the protocol.

Meanwhile, Chinese reports cast doubt on the truth of Japanese claims during the last few days that the Japanese army had practically completed the subjugation of Jehol province. Japanese reports said the Japanese army had swept through this Chinese area with practically no resistance and that all but one city in the province had been captured. That one city was Chengteh [Jehol City] and the Japanese claimed they were within fifty miles of there and expected to take it within a few hours.

Claim Cities Still Held.

Chinese reports, disputing these claims, said the two Chinese strongholds of Lingyuan and Chihfeng were still held by the Chinese defenders. It was said there was heavy fighting at Lingyuan and at Pingchuan this afternoon, and that the Chinese forces were maneuvering to cut the Japanese communications with their base at Peipiao.

Concerning the Chinese position at Chihfeng, where the Chinese commander, Gen. Sun Tien-ying, was reported by the Japanese to have switched his allegiance to the Japanese supported state of Manchukuo and to have opened the gates of the city to the Japanese invaders, Chinese reports said this was false. The Chinese version was that communications with Chihfeng had been interrupted by a heavy Japanese bombardment and by a blizzard, and that communications now had been restored.

Lure Japanese Into Trap.

The Chinese claimed that Chihfeng was still held by the Chinese defenders and that the Japanese had been lured into believing that the city would be surrendered. When the Japanese vanguard approached the city through the mountain pass, however, the Chinese mowed them down with heavy gunfire, the Chinese reports said.

A government communique today admitted the loss of 1,500 men on all fronts in Jehol yesterday.

TWO JAPANESE PATRIOTS TRY HARA-KIRI; FAIL

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, March 3.—Two attempts at hara-kiri were made by members of a patriotic society outside the residences of the premier and war minister today.

Two young men belonging to a right wing organization, Kokusui Taishuto, who had participated in an abortive hunger strike marking disapproval of the government's failure to prosecute in the sugar scandal, asked to see Premier Saito Makoto. When the request was refused one squatted in the gravel, produced a dagger and attempted to rip open his abdomen. He inflicted only superficial wounds.

At the same hour another patriot belonging to the same society, failing to obtain an interview with Lieut. Gen. Sadao Araki, the war minister, stabbed himself in the stomach. Both were arrested. It was said they will recover.

JAPAN WILL SEND NEW ENVOY TO U. S., IS REPORT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 4 [Saturday].—The Tokio Asahi reports that Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador to Washington, will shortly be replaced in an effort to improve relations with the United States. Japan will act coincident with the change in the American administration, the paper said.

The foreign office neither confirms nor denies this. Observers point out that while Tokio desires a change, having once even recalled Debuchi, the question is one of whether there is any one more capable for this most difficult diplomatic post.

Soil of South Yields Spring Crop of Novels

Three Groups Po' Whites Are Described.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"God's Little Acre," by Erskine Caldwell. [Viking.]

"Glen Hazard," by Maristan Chapman. [Knopf.]

THE soil of the south has yielded its spring crop of novels in the trio of tales of po' whites of assorted degrees of po'ness and earthiness, but, oddly enough, not assorted degrees of whiteness, for, unlike many novels about the crackers of the south there is no miscegenation in any of the three books. There is plenty else, however!

MARJORIE RAWLINGS.

"South Moon Under" is about a part of the country hitherto unrecorded in fiction, the Florida scrub. The characters, however, have many of the characteristics of those in the best novels of the Kentucky or Tennessee mountains or of the wilds of the deep south. They are primitive, earth bound souls. They belong to their little piece of earth as much as their little piece of earth belongs to them. They would rather starve there than enjoy whatever plenty anywhere else might provide. But they always manage somehow just to escape starvation.

In "South Moon Under" they manage also to escape the prohibition agents, for moonshining is one of the motifs of the neighborhood. "South Moon Under," a first novel, has the same quality that Elizabeth Madox Roberts' first and startlingly good book, "The Time of Man," had. It gives the reader not only a sense but a certainty of reality. The people are real. The background is real. The talk is real. If the reader feels after reading "South Moon Under" that he "would rather see than be one," at least he is certain that he has seen not only one but many of the people who live so remotely and so strangely that he finds their culture—as well as their language—almost more foreign than he would find many foreign cities. In the Florida scrub most readers would be lost in a moment, not only actually but spiritually. "South Moon Under" is, with Bernard Shaw's "The Adventures of a Black Girl in Her Search for God," the March choice of the Book of the Month club.

If you think that "God's Little Acre" is a religious book, pray be disillusioned instanter. It is about a man who owns a little farm in Georgia on which he is convinced gold can be mined. He has spent fifteen years digging for it when the book opens, during all of which time he has dedicated the proceeds from one acre of his land, which gives the title to the book, to the work of God. The fact that he has never planted anything on that acre, and that he has moved it continuously about as he got new ideas about the exact spot where the gold was to be found, does not deter him from looking upon it as a propitiation of the Almighty.

The idea of spending a lifetime digging for pay dirt on a Georgia farm is essentially comic and the author had unlimited material for an epic of the region. But I feel that Mr. Caldwell got the idea he was writing the great epic of sex, instead of the epic of a half-mad dirt farmer, and he strikes literary pay dirt with his first shovel thrust. What William Faulkner implies Erskine Caldwell records. Mr. Caldwell goes completely berserker at the end of the book, changing the whole tenor of his story in a paragraph. What started out to be gargantuan and Rabelaisian (and never, to my mind, really succeeded in being either) suddenly becomes deadly serious, with assorted shootings and suicides. I should say that Mr. Caldwell fails to make his objective technically; that he misses it artistically (you may believe that there are people in the world who act and talk as these characters do, but you never believe that these particular ones would act and talk as they do), and he does not perceptibly add to the sum of human knowledge of humankind, and that he had a chance, which he completely missed to do an epic, in the gold-crazy old man and his sex-crazy children. Otherwise the book's great popularity is understandable.

"Glen Hazard" is a new kind of novel from that ambisextrous pen of Maristan Chapman. (Maristan is the combination of Mary's and her husband Stanton's first names.) It is about the same kind of Tennessee mountaineers that we met first in "The Happy Mountain," with their quaint idiom, as is that of "South Moon Under," almost a foreign language, and necessitating a glossary in the back of the book.

Many of our old friends from the earlier books are in "Glen Hazard." But it is on the surface a mystery story—who murdered Bill Woody, who might have been pleasantly done away with by at least six persons and good riddance anyway. Its chief interest for readers is not, however, its mystery, but the psychology of the mountaineers in their relations with the sheriff, who was one of them except when he was in the line of duty.

"South Moon Under" is beautifully precise photography, "Glen Hazard" something of a psychograph, and "God's Little Acre" an unsuccessful fluoroscope of three groups of southern po' whites.

BRIEF REVIEWS

BY M. D.

Leonhard Frank, the author of those idyllic and brilliant novels, "Carl and Anna" and "Brother and Sister," has written in respect to subject matter a novel that is considerably more subtle and complicated than the other two. "The Singers" [Holt] describes the lives and fortunes of five men living in Wurzburg, who have felt the terrible unrest and poverty of modern Germany. All of them are unemployed and very near desperation. Among their many illusionary schemes for raising money is the one to organize a quartet and sing on the stage, in vaudeville. When an old money lender, hated and miserly, to whom one of the men is indebted, is murdered by the side of his open safe, suspicion falls on a member of the group. He is arrested and imprisoned but finally released. The reader to the end remains as mystified as the judge about the identity of the killer. Help in some form or other comes to all but one of the singers so the conclusion of the book is brightened by a certain hope.

LEONHARD FRANK.

The daughter of Hans Lux and the son of Theobald Kletterer, both adolescent, fall deeply in love with each other. Hanna and Thomas are beautiful, sensitive young people, tortured and baffled by the chemistry of their desires and needs. Thomas, who is older than Hanna, feels his responsibilities and avoids the passionate urgency of his sweetheart. She meets and is attracted to Dr. Huf, but the dreaded tragedy of the affair is averted by Thomas' realization of Hanna's need.

Leonhard Frank with beautiful economy and poetry of language describes and intimates the pathos of precocious adolescences. The characterization of the fearing, frustrated Dr. Huf is perhaps the most masterly in the book. Tenderness, restraint, power held under strict control and extraordinary sensitiveness are the most characteristic features of Herr Frank, who is one of the finest talents among young German authors.

Among the New Books

FICTION.

Lovers Should Marry, says Nell Martin [Macauley], instead of squabbling over business and money-making.

The Singers, by Leonard Frank [Holt], the distinguished author of "Carl and Anna," is a powerful study of a group of desperate people.

The Eyes of Love, by Warwick Deeping [McBride], again deals in this author's large simplicities of love and pity and tenderness.

NONFICTION.

Garrets and Pretenders, by Albert Parry [Covici-Friede], is a complete and fascinating record of bohemianism in America.

The United States in World Affairs, in 1932, prepared by Walter Lippmann [Harpers], interprets the pressing world problems with which the new administration is faced.

Infants and Children, by Frederic H. Bartlett [Farrar & Rinehart], explains simply and clearly the care of a baby from birth to pre-school age.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Upton Sinclair Presents William Fox [Sinclair], recites a story of William Fox and Wall street.

Vigo, by Bruno Roselli [Stratford], stirringly records the glamorous life of one of the forgotten pioneers and builders of America.

E. H. Young's William and Miss Mole are a kind of watchword for the people who know them. Her novels have a special, indescribable flavor and brilliance that makes them readable ten times over. JENNY WREN, a quiet story packed with the overtones of intense life, is what Lewis Gannett calls "a rarely comfortable and satisfying book" and, says the N. Y. Times, "as delightful as its immediate predecessor. Don't forget to read it! $2.50.

Short Method of Biography Gains Favor

Sympathetic Works Appear in London.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—There is definitely a turn in England towards short but sympathetic biographies of the great men and women of the past. Biography used to be cumbersome and formal; and readers tired of it. The shorter biography, long familiar in France, was tremendously popular with English and American readers when it was written by Gamaliel Bradford and Lytton Strachey; but it became tiresome when the mannerisms of these writers were copied by those of lesser gifts, and we turned against it.

GRANT RICHARDS.

Now jeering has had its day and the less superficially effective points of Strachey—his brevity and his quick skill in portriature—have been recognized as merits, while his caricature has been dropped. Hence the new short biography which is becoming the vogue. To the excellent series already published in London by Sir J. M. Barrie's adopted son, Peter Davies, is added another, to which volumes are being contributed by many well known writers.

First among these is Lord Ponsonby, an aristocrat who has become a Socialist for humanitarian reasons. He has written a life of Queen Victoria, to whom he was page of honor for five years of his youth. Other names are those of Miss Rose Macaulay, Mrs. Catherine Carswell, whose book on D. H. Lawrence, in its new and revised edition, still appears to be a storm center, John Drinkwater, J. C. Squire, Francis Birrell, and Hamish Miles.

Mr. Drinkwater's subject is Shakespeare, about whom it may well be difficult to say anything very new; Mr. Birrell is an admirable writer on eighteenth century subjects [he once expressed publicly a wish that he had lived in that century], while Mr. Miles, who has spent much of his time recently in translating from the French, is an able critic who was said long ago to be writing a biography of George Gissing.

Many publishers have become authors [as for instance Grant Richards], but it is rare for an author to become a publisher. That is what has just happened to Norman Collins. Mr. Collins is the author of a striking, and often dazzling, book about modern literature called "The Facts of Fiction," and he has for some time been assistant literary editor of the London daily, the News-Chronicle, where he worked under Robert Lynd, and contributed reviews of remarkable quality. His reviews showed the utmost confidence. He told all sorts of established writers of their faults and virtues, and was impressively omniscient.

Some readers were irritated by his candor; but they were wrong to be irritated, for Mr. Collins, under his cocksureness, has a fine taste and genuine critical ability. Now he is to take that critical ability into publishing, for he has joined the firm of Victor Gollancz. Mr. Gollancz is already advised by Gerald Gould and Humbert Wolfe, who are influential London critics, both connected with the Observer newspaper. Meanwhile it is to be hoped that Mr. Collins will not discontinue his public criticism, which is too lively to be spared.

On Monday night at 8:15 at Sinai temple Dr. Everett Dean Martin will lecture on "Is a Liberal Education Necessary Today?"

"The Bulpington of Blup," by H. G. Wells, "Ann Vickers," by Sinclair Lewis, and "The Bright Land," by Janet Ayer Fairbank, will be discussed by Ethel M. Colson Brazelton at the Hyde Park Travel club on Monday and on Tuesday at the Nineteenth Century Club of Oak Park.

Friends of American Writers are giving a gala literary and social afternoon Wednesday, March 8, 1:30 p. m., at the Woman's University club, 185 North Wabash avenue, in honor of our Chicago writers.

Among those who will be present are Lloyd Lewis, Mrs. Dorothy Aldis, Mary Hastings Bradley, Mrs. Frank Logan, Miss Ruth Russell, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Alice Gerstenberg, Herma Clark, Vincent Starrett, and Elder Olson.

John Cowper Powys 'Enjoys Whole World Through Solitude'

None could bring against John Cowper Powys the accusation that he doesn't practice what he preaches. Agreeing with Edwin Arlington Robinson that "mostly we go alone" through life, John Cowper Powys has retired to an isolated spot in upper New York state, where he voluntarily and almost completely has severed all connections with the outside world.

Here, alone and able to devote himself to a pure contemplative life, he has written his stupendous novels, "Wolf Solent" and "A Glastonbury Romance." Here also he has delved into philosophical works, formed a concrete and lucid working philosophy of life.

In his last book, "A Philosophy of Solitude" (Simon and Schuster), he reveals his belief in individualism, his emphasis upon the inner life where a man can "enjoy the whole world in the hermitage of himself," which is something "the simplest mind can achieve." A sure discipline over self, an unerring love of spiritual solitude, a joy in individual accomplishments and developments are the creeds of John Cowper Powys' philosophy of life.

ILLINOIS GETS BANK HOLIDAY FOR THREE DAYS

Starts This Morning and Ends Wednesday.

cision to declare a banking holiday while the banks were still solvent.

The heaviest drains were from other cities. Throughout the country banks and industries in moratorium areas were drawing down their balances in Chicago. Added to this was a steady seepage of savings and commercial deposits, the volume of which yesterday grew to large proportions. Loop banks had long lines of depositors at each window in both commercial and savings departments.

The federal reserve report for the week ended Wednesday showed that in seven days Chicago member banks had lost about 10 per cent of their deposits.

New York banks experienced a similar loss. Thursday and yesterday money was going out even faster there. It became apparent that the nation was trying to turn its remaining balances into cash through the two big money centers remaining open.

Call Washington Conference.

After the close of the clearing house meeting this morning it was learned that James R. Leavell, Soloman A. Smith, Melvin A. Traylor, and possibly Gen. Dawes will meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in Washington with the incoming secretary of the treasury, William H. Woodin, to discuss plans for the reopening of the Chicago banks.

The extent of the derangement in the banking system created by the spread of banking holidays and restrictions upon withdrawals is indicated by a survey made by the American Banker yesterday which states that of the 15,000 banks remaining in the country more than 3,000 in 32 states are either temporarily suspended or operating under withdrawal restrictions as a result of mandatory or permissive moratoriums declared since Feb. 14. That was stated before the Illinois, New York and Iowa action.

Sessions Are Protracted.

The session at the Chicago clearing house, located on the sixth floor of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank at Jackson and La Salle streets, began at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

At 8 o'clock there was a two hour adjournment for dinner. At that time Gov. Horner, who had attended the early session, left for his apartment in the Congress hotel.

At 11:30 p. m. there was a recess in the meeting at the Chicago clearing house while officials waited for a message from the east. An informant stated that an effort was being made to persuade Washington that a national moratorium should be declared. Fifteen minutes later Gov. Horner at the Congress hotel received a message from the clearing house requesting him to return to the meeting. Edward J. Barrett, state treasurer, accompanied him.

N. Y. Bankers Reluctant.

During the afternoon and evening it became apparent that there was some conflict of opposing forces not only in Washington but between some of the New York and Chicago bankers.

Leading New York bankers for days have been known to be taking the position that as long as the moratorium fever didn't affect New York banks too seriously it should be allowed to take its course. Their apparent spirit was for protecting New York, however matters were in other sections.

Leading Chicago bankers, on the contrary, have been inclined to believe that the money panic was a national affair and that it should be solved by an action nation-wide in scope. They have further taken the position that the panic should be checked and bank deposits protected before frightened depositors are able in their hysteria to wreck the banks and the whole credit structure.

Chicago's Position Better.

This point of view made little impression until this week on the stick-it-out New Yorkers, who entertained hopes of being the last to hold out. During the last few days, however, New Yorkers discovered that Chicago banks were weathering the storm in much better shape than the New York banks.

The federal reserve report this week showed that whereas Chicago banks still had comfortable excess reserves with the Federal Reserve bank on March 1 and were borrowing no federal reserve money, the New York banks had had to go to their Federal Reserve bank and borrow to the extent of 183 millions.

Eastern Attitude Changes.

These developments were reflected yesterday in New York in a somewhat altered attitude on the part of bankers. Also, yesterday New York banks experienced heavy demands for funds both in New York and from the interior.

The movement of the savings banks was no doubt prompted to some extent by the experience of the Bowery Savings bank yesterday. This bank with 402,000 depositors and total deposits of $534,000,000 was made the object of a serious run.

It was said that the bank was extremely liquid and could meet all calls. On the other hand, it was said that the Bowery and other banks would welcome an agreement to invoke the 60-day clause to check the hysteria which is gripping depositors.

Heavy withdrawals were also in progress at numerous other banks, including such institutions as the billion dollar National City bank. This bank was cheerfully meeting all demands.

Chicago bankers yesterday expressed the opinion that Chicago banks, especially the big downtown institutions, were still in a highly liquid condition and able to withstand heavy withdrawals for some time. Chicago banks, they were agreed, were in stronger condition generally than the banks of any other city, including New York City.

Bankers at Meeting.

Among those at last night's meeting at the Chicago clearing house were James B. McDougal, governor of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank; James Simpson, utility executive and director of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank; James R. Leavell, president, and Stanley Field, chairman, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Philip R. Clarke, president, and Charles Gates Dawes, chairman, City National Bank and Trust company; Solomon A. Smith, president, and Walter B. Smith, director, the Northern Trust company; Melvin A. Traylor, president, and Edward E. Brown, executive vice president, First National Bank of Chicago; Frank Elliott, vice president, Harris Trust and Savings bank, and Abner J. Stilwell, vice president, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

Banks Restrict Withdrawals.

A number of outlying banks in Chicago yesterday put restrictions on withdrawals into effect on their own initiative.

The Security bank of Chicago, 767 Milwaukee avenue, and the Second Security bank of Chicago, Western and Milwaukee avenues, limited withdrawals to five per cent. The I-C Bank and Trust company, 53d street and Lake Park avenue, and the Madison-Kedzie Trust and Savings bank did likewise. The West Side Trust and Savings bank and the Mid-City Trust and Savings bank limited withdrawals to two per cent.

In Du Page county, where bankers early yesterday morning announced that withdrawals would be limited temporarily to 5 per cent, business was reported to be functioning normally.

Harold L. Wilson, president of the Du Page County Bankers' federation and vice president of the Gary-Wheaton bank, said that the plan was working "very satisfactorily." The Wheaton business men's association at noon yesterday passed a resolution commending the bankers for their action.

Gary State Limits Withdrawals.

President W. W. Gaffner of the Gary State bank announced yesterday the beginning of an indefinite moratorium which limits withdrawals of all classes of accounts to 5 per cent. The bank has deposits of $3,500,000.

"The holiday is only temporary," he said, "and will be lifted as soon as the general unrest has subsided or more normal conditions are restored."

Authority for a bank declaring such a moratorium is contained in a bill recently passed by the Indiana legislature, which provides that the bank must obtain permission from the state bank commissioner. Such permission was obtained by Mr. Gaffner from Commissioner Luther Simons at Indianapolis.

PROCLAMATION IN N. Y.

In New York Gov. Lehman made a proclamation, accompanied by a statement by the New York clearing house committee, in which it was said the "unthinking attempt" of the public to withdraw forty billion dollars of deposits at once was "on its face impossible."

"Until early this morning it was my hope," the governor said in his proclamation, "that it would not be necessary to interrupt the continuous operation of the banking system of New York state.

"The spread of hysteria and the restrictions imposed upon the banking facilities of the country through measures adopted in so many states have at last placed upon the New York banks a burden so great that it has finally rendered drastic action imperative here.

"Therefore, at a meeting late this evening the clearing house committee of the New York clearing house, with the advice and recommendation of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, has asked me to proclaim a banking holiday lasting until the close of business Monday, March 6.

Serves People's Interest.

"I make this proclamation with complete conviction that the best interests of the people of the state are being served thereby. This is a time for coolness and leadership. The people of this state and of the whole nation have shown a splendid spirit to date in meeting all the trying problems of the depression. I am confident that this spirit will be maintained.

"The interval which these holidays afford should give responsible officials the necessary opportunity to consider the situation calmly and to prepare the way for an adjustment of our difficulties.

"Now, therefore, I, Herbert H. Lehman, governor of the state of New York, do hereby proclaim and set apart Saturday, March 4, and Monday, March 6, as holidays on which all banking institutions will be closed."

CALIFORNIA GRANTED ANOTHER LOAN BY R. F. C. OF 4 MILLION

Washington, D. C., March 3.—[Special.]—California today obtained another $4,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, this time for carrying on relief work in 12 counties during the months of March and April.

In relief money California has now received a total of $6,529,239 from the federal credit agency. In loans for the construction of self-liquidating projects it has obtained nearly 150 millions, or about three-fourths of the total amount advanced by the corporation for construction work.

Today's loan to California was one of six relief advances approved by the corporation. Indiana received $1,040,256, bringing its total in relief money to $3,354,260. Michigan obtained $1,117,652 to supplement the $13,809,331 previously obtained.

To Virginia the corporation granted $548,829, while $1,233,933 went to Washington and $20,000 to Montana.

Judge Dismisses Fugitive Warrant Against Pastor

Municipal Judge Harry H. Porter of Evanston yesterday dismissed a fugitive warrant charging the Rev. L. Eugene Wettling, 1598 Oak avenue, Evanston, with misappropriation of the funds of the Religious Films corporation of Hackensack, N. J. He took the action after he was informed that Gov. Horner had refused to issue an extradition warrant for the minister. The Rev. Mr. Wettling maintained that he was an innocent victim in the flotation of stock of the company, organized to take motion pictures in the Holy Land.

New Polish Ambassador Prepares to Leave for U. S.

WARSAW, March 3.—(AP)—Stanislaus Patek, new Polish ambassador to the United States, was received today by President Moscicki, Premier Prystor, and Marshal Pilsudski. He plans to leave for Washington about March 15.

CELEBRATE 102D ANNIVERSARY OF PULLMAN'S BIRTH

The celebration of the 102d anniversary of the birth of George Mortimer Pullman brought 5,000 parents, guests, and former pupils to the Pullman Free School of Manual Training at 250 East 111th street last night. Classes were held and the 50 piece school band played selections in honor of the memory of the Pullman car inventor.

Mr. Pullman left a part of his fortune to establish the school for children of Pullman employés. The school was built to house 300 pupils, but now has an enrollment of more than 600. Urban G. Willis, principal, said that there are already more applications for entrance next September than the school can accommodate.

The pupils take a four year course. Among the courses offered to boys are machine shop work, automobile repairing, electrical work, and drawing. The girls study home economics and office work.

Indicted by U. S. on Threatening Letter Charge

Harry G. Green, 38 years old, 3559 Lexington street, was indicted by the federal grand jury yesterday on charges of sending defamatory matter through the mails. His bond was set at $3,000. According to Assistant United States District Attorney Francis J. Kennedy, Green sent threatening letters charging various companies with the infringement of patents. He was fined $250 April 6, 1916, on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Dismiss Bankruptcy Action Against Holding Company

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday dismissed bankruptcy proceedings instituted several weeks ago against the Associated Telephone and Telegraph company, a public utility holding concern, with headquarters in Chicago and subsidiaries in several foreign countries. Judge Wilkerson upheld the company's contention that the corporation, with holdings valued at $75,000,000, is solvent.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

WE WILL TALK ABOUT CAUSES.

Bank holidays and bank moratoria have been declared in half the states of the Union. Let bankers and financiers devise the means of keeping business alive under these trying circumstances and let them discover a program which will permit a reopening of the banks. Let them face the immediate problem. We will talk about causes.

We have been talking about causes now for two years, during which we have won public opinion to our side. We have rung all the changes on the theme that excessive government taxation to meet fantastic government expenses is the prime cause of our troubles. We have said that no cure can come until the cause is removed. We have reasoned with congress and the legislatures; we have cajoled and threatened. We have called attention to the inevitable consequences of the acts of our representatives. Those consequences are now upon us and, even if the present crisis is subdued, the country must expect repetitions of it unless an attack is made upon the underlying error.

The lines of the present difficulty were cast last spring when congress was debating its tax law of abominations. All through that period the markets were dropping. That was said to be merely a coincidence. It may be merely a coincidence, also, that the present crisis has come on the eve of the first payments under the new income rates, with their threefold increase in extortion. In our opinion it is not. The necessity of holding cash to meet those payments has forced individuals and business organizations to become, in effect, hoarders. In addition, the destructive rates of taxation on inheritances have forced the liquidation of estates at a time when the business and banking worlds were already embarked upon a mad career of liquidation. Hoarding breeds panic psychosis and more hoarding.

On Jan. 20, 1932, THE TRIBUNE said: "Relief from the depression will not come from increasing its chief cause, inordinate taxation, but from lightening the burden; and this can be accomplished only by a drastic retrenchment of public expenditure."

On March 2, a year ago, THE TRIBUNE said in an editorial entitled "Into the Abyss": "All the signs would indicate that the government of the United States is the victim of a suicidal mania. If it persists in its present course . . . it will drag business and industry with it into the abyss of bankruptcy. Never before in time of peace and seldom in war has the future of this country appeared as dark as it does today. . . . Obviously, as the income returns will show, the process cannot continue for more than a few months or years at most without bringing ruin upon our heads."

That was written a year ago and it brought protests that we were exaggerating, that we were unduly alarmed and that the future could not be as dark as we had painted it.

On March 21, a few weeks later, THE TRIBUNE said in an editorial, "Legislating Ruin": "At a time when the crying need of the country is for purchasing power and for capital investment in industry, both of which would provide jobs for the unemployed, congress proposes to restrict buying and make capital investment as difficult as possible. Congress should understand that while it can smash every reviving hope of American recovery, by no form of taxation, national, state or local, or all together, can the tax eaters and radicals extort fourteen billion dollars, nor yet ten billion dollars, a year from the people. They can waste the land like a plague of locusts, they can tax and confiscate by every device financial quackery or radical theory invents, but they cannot draw mounting billions from a nation whose powers of production their greed and folly have paralyzed, and whose capital resources they have diverted and exhausted."

These quotations could be continued for columns. Again and again in the intervening months the warning was sounded. It has not been heeded. "A government of vain men," a government of rattled brains, indecisive in thought and weak in action," persisted in its colossal gamble with fate.

The remedy for the evil has always been at hand. It is still at hand. A reduction of the ruinous and confiscatory taxation which has destroyed confidence in government and in banks must be the first step toward recovery. Nothing else will be more than a palliative.

THE TAX-FIXING RACKET.

It is reliably reported that a number of individuals are offering their services to property owners to whom the hope of obtaining tax reductions is held out. The business is solicited on a contingent basis. Property owners who had no complaint under against the fairness of their valuations are encouraged to resist the assessment.

Lawyers who are engaged in this kind of ambulance chasing ought to be disbarred. No reputable lawyer will engage in this kind of solicitation. He will represent a client who comes to him with a complaint against an assessment, but he will not go out of his way to find such clients. Property owners may take for granted the fact that any lawyer who comes around seeking tax business is a shady character who cannot be trusted.

No reputable real estate dealer should be found engaging in the tax racket, either. In every assessment errors are made, errors of judgment and errors of fact. If the board of tax appeals is going to be required to review thousands of fictitious complaints it can have no time to consider the genuine complaints. The result will be a breakdown of the reviewing machinery such as was witnessed in the last years under the old assessment régime; and that can only mean a further setback to an already depressed real estate market.

With the painful and costly experience of the Real Estate Taxpayers' association freshly in mind, property owners in this community ought to have learned that high pressure salesmen of tax services cannot deliver the expected return in tax reductions, no matter how glowing their prospectus may be. They can only interfere with the functioning of government and in the end the taxpayer is the loser. Tax fixing is a racket and always was.

MR. RAINEY AS SPEAKER.

The choice by the Democratic house caucus of Henry T. Rainey for the speakership is gratifying not only to his party in Illinois but to his fellow citizens of this state regardless of party. Representative Rainey is not only a master of parliamentary procedure and a veteran legislator. He is a man of force, integrity, and devotion to the public good.

Seldom in our history have these high qualities been more emphatically needed in the speakership. The possibility of widespread hurt to the nation from irresolute or inadequate control in the house of representatives was fully revealed when the house stampeded early in the session now ending. Mr. Rainey hardly need be reminded of that, and we do not doubt he will exercise all his skill and all his influence and authority to prevent a recurrence of that unfortunate revolt. There are few contributions more essential to American morale than the assurance of an orderly and responsible process of deliberation and legislation in congress. If the Democratic organization is to win the confidence of the nation and meet its critical responsibility in the nation's emergency it must move as a disciplined body, consistently and loyally supporting its leadership in the accomplishment of a clear and sound program.

In this accomplishment Speaker Rainey will have a chief part. He is assured upon the threshold of his new service of the good will of his countrymen, whose sincere hope is for his success in the difficult and fateful office to which he has been chosen.

COALITION FOR JUDGES.

Intelligent citizenship in this community, regardless of party affiliation, must regard with alarm the possibility, if not indeed the probability, of the defeat of competent and faithful Republican judges in the coming election. This is likely to occur if the election is dominated by a strong partisan swing to the Democrats.

To avoid this result, which would be seriously unfortunate for the courts and the community, measures should be adopted voluntarily for a coalition. The Australian ballot law does not permit a candidate's name to appear in more than one column on the ballot. If it were not for this provision, an easy way to avoid the defeat of good judges would be through an agreement to place the candidates approved by the bar on both tickets. As this is impossible, the plan adopted when the Thompson raid upon the judiciary was threatened should be put in operation. Republican judicial candidates at that time elected to run on the Democratic ticket, which represented the opposition. It was not an agreeable alternative, but it was forced by circumstances and the result was the defeat of the raid and the reelection of good judges.

Until judicial election can be made by law nonpartisan, the coalition plan seems necessary to the protection of the bench from the accidents of party fortune. Responsible and public spirited party leadership will recognize this responsibility to the courts and the community. There can be no respectable excuse for the defeat of faithful and able judges by a mere operation of party voting. We do not think this misfortune is certain. Our voters have shown an admirable discrimination in recent years. But the danger, nevertheless, exists, and should be completely eliminated, as it can be, by public spirited action by the party organizations.

The Democratic party leadership may well consider that by putting the approved Republican judges upon their ticket they will assure its success at the polls, a consideration of considerable weight when the possibility exists that there may be important nonjudicial candidacies on the tickets. In such an eventuality coalition would be far from a sacrifice from the Democratic viewpoint.

Editorial of the Day

CHICAGO'S WORLD'S FAIR.

[Illinois State Journal.]

The basic structure for the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition has been completed. There remains the installation of exhibits, interior decorating, landscaping and the many details of dressing the stage for the big show that opens in the summer.

To the early visitor to the exposition grounds the chief interest is the sky line, the completed buildings that rise on "made" land, reclaimed from Lake Michigan. That visitor, perhaps, is not aware of the underground construction that includes ten miles of water mains, ten miles of sanitary sewers and an equal length of storm sewers and the intricate maze of cables and conduits that provide the power, light and telephone service.

The 1933 World's Fair will not be properly appreciated by the millions who will attend. They may be thrilled by the exhibits of a modern world and the promise of a future civilization. They will be beguiled and entertained by the myriad devices installed for their pleasure. But they will hardly realize the magnitude of the task of making the exposition possible.

In view of economic conditions that have obtained from the virtual inception of actual construction for the 1933 exposition, Chicago might have been excused in the abandonment of the project. But Chicago business men and civil leaders carried on. The 1933 World's Fair will be a fulfillment of Chicago's civic slogan, "I Will."

PA'S IDEA OF IT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WE'LL BET A NICKEL (no, we can't risk good money like that; we'll bet a couple of two cent stamps we've had left over) that Mr. Roosevelt, comfortably settled in the White House, gets a letter from Mr. Hoover before tomorrow noon. Nothing about the financial situation or giving England a break on the war debt or anything like that. The letter will say: "Dear Franklin—Sorry, but I think I left the shirt of my sky blue pajamas in the White House, and a green felt carpet slipper and a pair of suspenders. Don't go to any trouble, but if you happen to run across them I'd be very glad if you would send them to me by parcel post. P. S.: And our copper teakettle apparently wasn't packed with the other things and the casters are missing from the davenport and we haven't succeeded in locating the cuckoo clock. As ever, etc." Or, anyway, a letter something like that. You know how it is when you move.

A MARRIAGE JUG SPEAKS.

(Greece, 400 B. C.)

When I poured waters from the sacred fount
Upon the shoulders of a Grecian maid—
She turned from me, her jeweled rings to count,
As though from them her bridehood would have aid.
She cared not for the noble she would wed,
But for his gifts, the brooches of round pearls—
The golden trellis of the marriage bed—
And bands of rubies to confine her curls.

When for Labana with the deep-set eyes,
Who had no flower but Acanthus leaves,
I poured the liquid for the bathing dyes,

RACHEL MACK WILSON.

"TO ME," orates Senator Davis in Washington to his awestruck colleagues, "a child is the hand of God recording on the universal pages of time the history of the human race." Stop, papa, do not spank Junior; think what he is, and do not interfere with his recording on the universal pages of time the history of the human race. How much do we pay senators? Well, never mind; whatever it is, it's too much.

ONCE AGAIN we are forced to remark that we humans are a strangely contradictory lot. At Oxford university, where, according to the general notion, the very flower of young English manhood is gathered, the Oxford Union, an assemblage of undergraduates, by a vote of 750 to 138 emphatically declared "that this house will in no circumstances fight for its king and country." And at the same time we are informed that the pressure of doting American society mammas to have their debutante daughters presented at court is so great that the king has been obliged to proclaim he will hold five courts at Buckingham this year instead of four as usual. Well, if the Oxford men won't fight for him it might be well for the king to call out the American matrons and their daughters in case of war. And when he got ready to advance against the foe he could announce he would hold court at nine in the evening just a mile in the rear of the insolent enemy's front line. Gosh! the rush of the American mammas and debutantes to get to the king's party would just naturally trample the enemy two feet into the ground.

THE DEMOCRATS take hold of the government today, but that's no reason for thinking you can walk up to a bar this afternoon, put your foot on the brass rail, and say to the barkeep: "Andy, a whisky sour, and ask those boys in the back room what they'll have. And wrap me up six bottles of beer, a bottle of Gordon gin, and two quarts of Scotch." Now, now, don't say that no one is so silly as to think such a thing. You'd be surprised.

ANOTHER TERRIBLE EARTHQUAKE and tidal wave in Japan, with hundreds of lives lost! Japan doesn't say so, but maybe she has other ideas in regard to Manchuria and Jehol than just having fun with the Chinese. We all regard this old earth as a complete job, but nature doesn't seem to think so and is apparently still working away on Japan. It may be that nature doesn't like the islands of Japan and has intended all along for them to sink under the ocean. In that case it wouldn't be a bad idea for Japan to look around on the mainland for a home for her people. And Japan seems to be looking. Nations, like us flat dwellers, often have to move the first of May, or almost any other time, whether we like it or not.

DANCE IN SPRINGTIME.

(For Helen Louise.)

(You can hear the music if you listen hard),
Where in the wide world could you find
SUCH a ballet as in your own back yard?
With a two-step forward
And a one-step back,
And a swirl and a twirl and rise on the toes;
Bend from the waist,
Then run and turn—
Turn to your partner and kiss her on the nose!

Taps out the time and they're off once more:
Two steps forward
And a one-step back,
Swirl and twirl and a rise on the toes;
Bend from the waist,
Then run and turn—
Turn to your partner and kiss her on the nose!

PAINFUL TONGUE.

DRS. R. W. MONTGOMERY and G. D. Culver have had a run of patients who came for help for painful tongue. This is a rather widely prevalent malady, but one that physicians do not think indicates any organic disease. Since it is so trivial in itself and is not a signpost of anything that is other than trivial, they are accustomed to tell the complainers to forget their complaints and, with that, to let the matter slide.

All of which is good judgment on the part of the medical fraternity and shows that they know values, but the patient is likely to feel that he is not getting a run for his money. Drs. Montgomery and Culver decided to dig around somewhat to find out what was the cause of painful tongue.

The first conclusion that they came to was that it has nothing to do with cancer. It was neither a symptom of cancer present at the time nor a forerunner of cancer that was to be. Ninety per cent or more of the persons who have painful tongue have a cancer phobia. When the doctor tries to root this phobia out of his patient's mind he is right and what he says should be accepted as final.

The investigation showed that the teeth were not the cause of painful tongue. This applied to rough, jagged teeth, bridge work, plates, decayed teeth, and pyorrhea.

Another structure that was under indictment but that, on trial, was, found not guilty, was the tonsils.

An idea prevails that painful tongue is associated with that large group of skin troubles that passes by the name eczema. Again the verdict was—not guilty.

Smoking and other uses of tobacco also came out with a certificate of character. Eating sweets and fruits has been accused of causing it. A diet that is too rich in fruits, both sour and sweet, and in sugars and sweets of all kinds is one cause of cold sores and fever blisters. There are sufferers from cold sore on the lips who might well learn this and govern themselves accordingly. However, this sort of a diet was not of primary importance in painful tongue.

So much for the accused who were tried and cleared. Two were found guilty. Excessive use of tea and coffee were found to be important causes of the complaint. The remedy consists in quitting the beverages entirely or in limiting oneself to, say, one cup of tea or, in some cases, two.

The principal culprit was indigestion. In every case of painful tongue the physicians and the patient should work out a diet and eating habits which would protect that particular individual from stomach symptoms. This might call for small meals, consisting of very simple foods, but that was the proper treatment for that case.

Simple mouthwashes were used, but changing the diet and eating habits was the foundation stone of treatment.

Of course, painful tongue is quite different from burning tongue, the latter being a signpost pointing toward pellagra, pernicious anemia, or some other form of serious anemia.

NO CANDY WORMS.

W. A. W. writes: Will you please write on the subject of candy worms and if there really is such a thing.

REPLY.

There are no candy worms. The old notion to that effect gets in the neighborhood of the truth in only two places. Children sometimes drop their candy on the floor. Worm eggs may stick to a wet piece of candy. There is a theory that eating an excess of candy and other carbohydrates promotes the formation of mucus. If there is considerable mucus in the digestive tract worms are somewhat more inaccessible to worm medicine.

BLAMES PRIMROSE.

Mrs. L. D. writes: A correspondent wrote you that she had a rash on the wrist and wished to know what to do for it. Advise her if she has a primrose plant in her house to take it out of doors or at least set it out of her way. I was troubled the same way until I got rid of the plant.

REPLY.

If she does not have a primrose plant in her house let her look for some other cause and banish it.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, March 1.—[Friend of the People.]—A Danish woman married an American citizen in 1912. After his death she married a German in July, 1922. 1. What is her citizenship status? 2. If she lost her American citizenship, how can she regain it? M. B.

1. As the second marriage occurred before Sept. 22, 1922, the subject of the letter lost her American citizenship which she had derived by her first marriage and assumed the citizenship status of her second husband.

2. She can again become a citizen by filing a declaration of intention [first paper] and applying for final papers when the same shall be two years old. In other words, she must comply with the general naturalization law because her former American citizenship had originated by marriage to a citizen of the United States and she therefore does not have the exemptions provided in the case of a native born woman who lost her citizenship by marriage.

CONSTITUTES A FELONY.

Chicago, March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two young fellows, 16 and 17 years old, stole a car in Chicago and were caught with it in Indiana and brought back to Chicago. 1. The fellow that owns the car said that he wouldn't prosecute if given $100. If the money is paid to the owner of the car [2] can the state or government still prosecute? F. G.

1. Such an agreement not to prosecute would be invalid as contrary to public policy and would itself be punishable as the compounding of a felony.

2. Yes.

CONTRACT CONTROLS.

Chicago, March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An employment agent sent me out on a job for which I paid $10. I did not sign a contract. I quit the job the same evening. The employment agent refused to give back my money or part of it. I consulted the department of labor in Chicago and they said they could not do anything. They said under a certain law I am not supposed to recover my money or part of it in the case stated. Please tell me if this is right? G. K.

It is the general rule that a person who has paid a stated price for goods or services is not entitled to recover merely because he changes his mind. Hence we would base our answer on the absence of any law authorizing you to collect. Your rights would depend on the wording of the contract.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 4, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—Although the menace of war with Germany looms more threateningly upon the American horizon than ever before, numerous measures to defend the nation appeared early today to be fatally jammed in the legislative machinery of the expiring Sixty-fourth congress. The trouble is in the senate, which is tied up—it seems hopelessly—for the night over President Wilson's measure authorizing American ships to arm to repel German submarines, empowering the executive to supply arms, ammunition and gunners, and to employ "other instrumentalities and methods" to protect Americans and American vessels on the high seas. It is the filibuster against this measure in the senate that is blocking final action on a series of other measures. A small group of senators has tied the hands of congress. These men are: W. J. Stone [Dem., Mo.], R. M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.], A. B. Cummins [Rep., Ia.], A. J. Gronna [Rep., N. D.], W. L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], and G. W. Norris [Rep., Neb.]. With these six are half a dozen others, less active in the filibuster. These men include Clapp of Minnesota, Lane of Oregon, Kirby of Arkansas, O'Gorman of New York, Vardaman of Mississippi and Works of California. The other measures, in addition to the "armed ships" bill, that are seemingly doomed to failure include these: The army bill carrying $337,000,000 for the enlargement, further equipment, and support of the land forces of the nation during the next fiscal year; the espionage bills to prevent the communication of information to the enemy, to establish a stringent censorship and otherwise to regulate the conduct of citizens in time of war, and the general deficiency appropriation bill authorizing emergency expenditures requested by the administration within the last few days.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson will take the oath which makes him President of the United States for another term today, probably at noon, privately and without ceremony in his office in the capitol where he expects to be signing bills during the closing hours of congress. He will take the oath upon the same Bible he used when sworn in as governor of New Jersey and later when he took his first oath as President. It is a family heirloom. On March 6 the President will take another oath at the open air inaugural ceremonies at the capitol, just before he delivers his inaugural address.

WAR SUMMARY.—The London war office reports the British advanced a quarter of a mile on a front of five miles east of Gommecourt in France. Hamadan, important Persian city near the Turkish border, was captured by the Russians. The Germans raided Russian positions a mile and one-half long and nearly a mile deep west of Lutsk on the eastern front. Two more boats, with a tonnage of 14,252, were sunk by submarines.

CHICAGO.—State's Attorney Hoyne's graft investigation of the police department was capped by a startling climax when eight lieutenants of police confessed that former Chief Charles C. Healey, already under indictment, held up eleven police sergeants for $3,200 last July before signing an order promoting them to lieutenants. Michael W. Delaney, long counted as the former police chief's go-between in money matters, confessed that he himself handed the $3,200 to Healy. Then "to make it look good" the former police head called in the lieutenants who had paid him for their promotions and told them they had been advanced in the service because of their honesty and efficiency, according to their stories.

FREE OF DEBT FOR 97 YEARS.

White Pigeon, Mich., Feb. 28.—I just read your editorial on a tax moratorium in which you hit the nail accurately on the head and I hope it will do some good. I live on a 300 acre farm this family bought in 1836—ninety-seven years ago—and from that day to this there has never been a mortgage on it. An inconceivable amount of grilling hard work, sacrifice and self-denial have filled these 97 years to maintain this old homestead free from debt.

Seven years ago I was left a widow alone here and with falling prices and higher taxes it is tough sledding, but I've kept free from debt and had laid up enough in this Michigan bank to help pay my taxes for a while, and now along comes this bank moratorium and ties up every cent of it, allegedly to "save" two Detroit banks.

I worked honestly, economized—lived within my means—saved this little for my old age taxes. Who, anywhere, will help to "save" me when tax time comes? I've done my best and this is not fair. Common sense would tell any one what the farmer needs most is not an easier way to get into debt, but an honest chance to keep out of debt. Then we'd be all right. MARY I. FERGUSON.

DEBTS WHICH ARE NOT PAID.

St. Charles, Ill., Feb. 28.—Why do you object, in this morning's editorial on the Lincoln park bonds, to a policy of refunding the public debt as it matures?

Isn't that the approved method of private business financing? In the Feb. 2 issue of THE TRIBUNE appeared the testimony of Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio railway, before a United States senate committee, that bonds of that road maturing in 1997 [years after the equipment purchased with the money will have become junk] had no sinking fund provision, and of course will have to be refunded.

Another railroad has 168 millions of bonds maturing in 2047, and R. F. C. money is being put into these roads by the tens of millions! He may have intended it for sarcasm, but Mr. Willard is reported to have testified that the buyers nowadays didn't want sinking fund bonds, "because it was too much trouble to go to their safety deposit boxes when the bonds were called."

BESS HAMMOND.

DAYDREAM.

Chicago, March 1.—As cities have a state government over them and states the federal government above them, why not the nations form a world government with the capital here at the Fair Grounds, an ideal spot?

E. SCHELL.

O. K.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Will you please see to it that the President elect and members of his cabinet, also all representatives and senators in congress, are furnished with a first class copy of Orr's cartoon on the front page of THE TRIBUNE this morning? A. S. MCCABE.

A PERENNIAL DISPUTE.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—In today's TRIBUNE, in "Revolutionary Heroes Shown in Rotogravure," by James O'Donnell Bennett, there is mention of Gen. Kosciusko as a Pole. It is very erroneous to claim one of the defenders of liberty and of the American cause as of Polish blood when the facts in the case regarding the nationality of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko prove otherwise. I quote the following from "A Biography," by M. M. Gardner, published by C. Scribner, New York. The original letter was written by Gen. Kosciusko in French to Czar Alexander I.:

"Only one anxiety troubles my soul and my joy. Sire, I was born a Lithuanian, and I have only a few years to live."

Gen. Kosciusko fought for American freedom with no less ardor than he did for Poland's cause. He hated oppression in every form, and this profound love for liberty is touchingly exemplified in his last will and testament. In this document he nominated his friend, Thomas Jefferson, to be his executor. He directed that his holdings in this country, land given him by congress for distinguished service, be liquidated and the proceeds be used by his executor to purchase Negro slaves and free them.

He was oppression's enemy, and it did not matter to him whether the oppressed were Americans, Poles, or Negroes. It is true that he made oath to deliver Poland from oppression, but he also made oath to serve the continental congress and the American people. Neither of these acts would confer nationality upon him. Even after his many sacrifices for the cause of Poland and that of the American colonies he still called himself a Lithuanian. THOMAS SHAMIS.

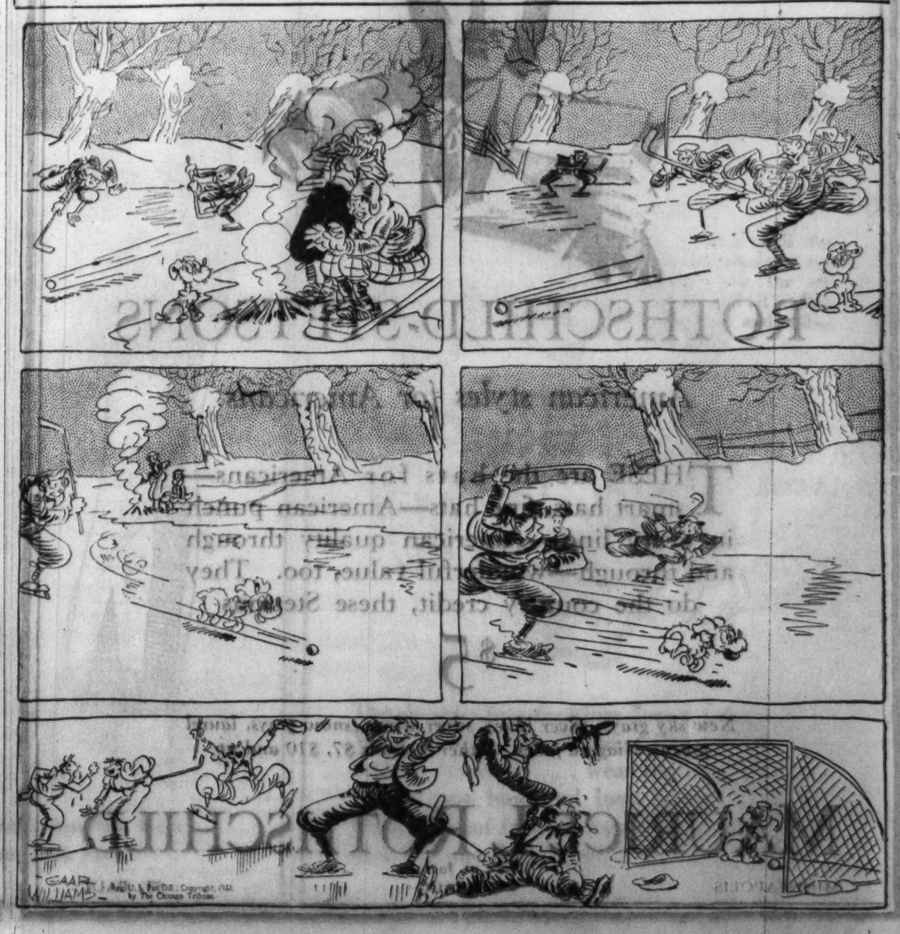
MAYBE IT'S NOT IN SERVICE YET.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Some very foxy gents are employed for doing the brain work of the Chicago fire department. They send men with brier pipes, shovels, cement, and other equipment of labor. They erect a fire box at the corner of West End and Menard. Ah, but the foxy part—presumably, to prevent false alarms—they lock the box and keep the key at the fire station. If your home catches fire at midnight, and you have no telephone, you may rush to the nearest fire box, mount it and bark like a dog. I can't imagine any other purpose in spending taxpayers' money for a fire box. W. J. HOLMES.

HIS TAX BILL.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Just received my real estate tax bill on a cheap five room bungalow with the magnificent reduction of $8 from last year's bill, which, by the way, will be more than I paid last year when I add my personal property tax bill. I do know a fellow that paid $500 last year on a two flat building in the same district I'm in who got a reduction of $156, which is a decrease of 1-3 in taxes as compared to the 1-20 I received. There's equality for you. W. S.

ZIPPER!



ILLINOIS RIVER TRAFFIC RAISED A THIRD IN 1932

Tribune Voyagers Told of Trade Possibilities.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Alton, Ill., March 3.—Traffic on the Illinois river increased one-third last year over 1931 and was almost double that of 1925 during the boom period, and citizens who have greeted THE TRIBUNE's pathfinding boat, the Sea King, first over the new Illinois waterway, are looking for an acceleration of trade that may help jar the depression loose.

Figures just issued by Lieut. Col. Dan I. Sultan, United States district engineer, show that in 1932 the Illinois river, despite its lack of an outlet to the great lakes, saw its commerce growing. Statistically there was an increase of 84 per cent in northbound traffic and of 17 per cent in southbound. The southbound movement towards New Orleans and the sea is twice as large as the northbound and the new waterway is expected to equalize them in a degree and increase the tonnage as fast as the barges are placed on the river.

Between 7 and 10 million tons of freight is estimated as the potential movement [under normal business conditions] for development through the Chicago gateway, and the traffic experts figure that the rapidity with which it gets under way depends upon business conditions.

Figures on River Traffic.

In 1932 the Illinois carried 188,152 tons and in 1931, 140,811 tons, as against 96,080 tons in 1925.

The upbound movement has for its largest items, coffee, canned goods, corn, machinery, olives, garden seed, sisal, stone, sugar, barbed wire, and wood pulp. Much of this is from foreign lands, through New Orleans, such as sisal, coffee, sugar, and wood pulp.

The largest items in the downbound traffic were cement, corn, bottles, boxes, grain, gravel, machinery, soy bean meal, nails and wire, iron pipe, sand, steel bars, tractors, vinegar, and malt syrup.

Oppose St. Lawrence Treaty.

During the voyage the crew of the Sea King has heard vigorous expressions of opposition in the inland ports against any treaty which would put control of the new waterway under the thumb of Canada. That is how the pending St. Lawrence treaty seems to be regarded.

Calhoun county, the hilliest in the state, a narrow, rocky spine between the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, is a great apple country. For many years it has been known as the county without a railroad.

Hardin, a sleepy old river town with one of the best hotels on the river, used to depend upon a ferry, but a fine new state highway bridge now opens it for tourist penetration. Across the river is Jersey county, another apple center. About 60 per cent of Illinois apples, local growers say, are produced in Calhoun and Jersey counties, and the opening of the Illinois waterway now gives a cheap water haul into the Chicago market.

At Grafton, where the Illinois and Mississippi unite, strong opposition was voiced against the pending St. Lawrence treaty which would give Canada joint control of Lake Michigan, which is not a boundary water, and limit the withdrawal of water for navigation purposes to 1,500 cubic second feet by Dec. 31, 1938.

See Peril to Waterway.

"A. L. Smith of Grafton, identified with the waterway movement for years, says this part of the state is exerting all the pressure it can through Congressman Henry T. Rainey, new speaker of the house, who lives a few miles away, for the defeat of the Canadian treaty.

"This section of Illinois," said Mr. Smith, "is expecting great results from the new waterway. The view is taken in Grafton that it would be an infamous blunder if Washington ratified the present St. Lawrence treaty. It would give away Illinois' birthright to the Canadians, who are trying to grab water power. What use would the waterway be with no water under the barge keels?

"This voyage of THE TRIBUNE boat marks the opening of a waterway which is going to develop the iron industry along the route [especially through St. Louis], give a water outlet for our farm products, and enable us to get our commodities cheaply into the great lakes."

Lack Adequate Terminals.

One thing which impresses the voyager is the lack of terminal facilities in some of the river towns. Peoria has a model terminal. Alton, however, which is close to the Missouri, Mississippi and Illinois rivers, lacks adequate terminal facilities, and at most of the ports between Peoria and Pekin and Alton, it seems that while barges have several points at which grain can be loaded or unloaded, other craft have to dock at the fish houses along the bank.

One suggestion made today was that the state waterways department might work out a standard terminal which small ports might construct at small expense.

KIDNAPERS FREE WRIGLEY AGENT; RANSOM IS PAID

[Copyright: 1933, By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, March 3.—Luis P. Florencia, Campeche representative of the William Wrigley Jr. company of Chicago, was kidnaped several days ago, but was soon released when friends paid 20,000 pesos [about $5,800] ransom.

Florencia was in his automobile with his chauffeur a few miles from the capital of the state of Campeche when the car was stopped by bandits. The two were taken to a hiding place and Florencia's friends were notified to leave 20,000 pesos at a lonely spot or both would be killed.

Florencia received a bullet wound in the left arm which is dangerous because of the lack of medical attention during the time he was held by the bandits.

Driver and Helper Shot by Meat Market Bandits

Stephen Kozler, 45 years old, 1740 Sedgwick street, driver for a meat supply company, was probably fatally wounded, and his helper, John Pivar, 17 years old, 1916 Larrabee street, was shot in the right thigh yesterday when two bandits opened fire on them in the meat market of Henry Heinemann at 3620 Clybourn avenue. Heinemann threw a meat cleaver at the robbers, who retreated, firing as they ran. Kolzer was struck in the back. He and Pivar were taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital. The bandits escaped in an automobile.

LUNCH FUND FOR HUNGRY PUPILS PASSES $22,000

The Hungry School Children's fund passed the $22,000 mark yesterday. This amount has been contributed since the fund reopened last September at the beginning of the school year. In the preceding year $48,000 was contributed.

Because much of the $22,000 has been spent already the fund is dependent on the continued generosity of TRIBUNE readers for the maintenance of the free lunches for the needy pupils for the remainder of the school year. Small gifts are as welcome as large ones. Five cents will provide a lunch for a small child and 15 cents will give a meal to a high school or junior high school pupil.

Gifts may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, made payable to the Hungry School Children's fund. Yesterday's gifts follow:

$10—Mrs. O. L. Schmidt.
$6—The Bookhouse for Children.
$5—W. C. M., T. Hohenadel.
$2—L. A. P.
$1—Mrs. J. E. D., Anoymous.

Total ..... $ 55.00
Previously acknowledged 21,965.48

Grand total $22,020.48

Withdraws $1,500 and Loses It to Swindlers

Shortly after he had withdrawn $1,500 from his postal savings bank account yesterday Peter Skopos, 1431 West Harrison street, was defrauded of the money by two strangers who followed him to the street. Skopos surrendered possession of the money to the men on their plea that they wanted his help in procuring a passage to Europe and that they would pay him $500 for his services.

Brother of "Smiling Jack" O'Brien Gets 25 Years

Michael O'Brien, 33 years old, a brother of "Smiling Jack" O'Brien, hanged several years ago for the murder of a policeman, yesterday was sentenced to serve 25 years in Leavenworth prison by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward for robbery of a postal substation. His companion in the robbery, Fred B. Braun, 44 years old, was given a sentence of 15 years. Assistant District Attorney Edward A. Fisher prosecuted the case.

BERGHOFF CAFE IN LOOP HELD UP AS 30 PATRONS DINE

Three armed men yesterday afternoon invaded the bar of the Berghoff restaurant at 17 West Adams street and forced a bartender, Lester Oswood, to surrender $300 from three cash registers. They fled with the money.

Nearly thirty patrons of the restaurant were unaware of the stickup until the men had escaped. The trio worked rapidly, one man stationing himself at the door while another covered Oswood with two pistols and the third looted the cash drawers.

URGE GOVERNOR TO IMPROVE OR END JOB SERVICE

Union League Club Backs Prof. Millis.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Gov. Horner is to be requested by the Union League club to improve the efficiency of the state free employment service along the lines suggested by Prof. H. A. Millis, head of the department of economics of the University of Chicago, who has made a thorough study and reports that of the 24 offices in the service only two downstate offices and one division in Chicago are doing efficient work.

This system represents an outlay of $300,000 a year to the taxpayers, and Prof. Millis suggests that this be saved by eliminating the service, unless it can be greatly improved. The Union League club committee on unemployment adopts this view, and is seeking an interview with the governor.

Plans U. S. Coördination.

It is feared that in view of the present political setup in this service Illinois will fail to measure up to the standard set by Miss Francis Perkins, President Roosevelt's secretary of labor designate, who has announced plans for a great national coördination of employment bureaus to bring a new factor into the idleness situation.

The political ax has been falling in this department, but whether this is a permanent retrenchment or a move to make way for deserving Democrats is not yet clear. The patronage committee has recommended Raymond W. Moore, Democratic committeeman of the 44th ward, for the new director of the service. Mr. Moore was first commended for superintendent of Lincoln park and has the indorsement of all the north side committeemen. Prof. Millis, who is a member of the governor's commission on unemployment, already has put the situation before the governor, without apparent result.

Committee's Report.

The Union League club committee, composed of Harold F. White, chairman; W. L. Pollard, Stanley P. Farwell, and C. S. Pellett, has submitted a report to the public affairs committee of that organization, in which it is said:

"On three different occasions speakers at round table meetings have charged that the Illinois employment service is failing to function properly. W. S. Reynolds stated the service could aid in the reëmployment of idle persons, but that it is not doing so. Prof. Millis declared that of the 24 offices conducted by the service only two downstate offices and one division in Chicago are doing efficient work and that the $300,000 required annually to operate the public offices should be saved by eliminating them if they are not greatly improved. Dr. M. H. Bickham confirmed the criticism made by Prof. Millis.

"The true function of a free employment service and its value as an agent to ameliorate the effects of unemployment were described by Prof. Millis thus: An adequate number of employment offices in convenient localities should know where the jobs are and who the people are who should be sent to these jobs. The state system should be integrated with a national system. The service could stimulate additional interest, for there is work to be done if interest is stimulated and if employers are assured that reliable workers could be furnished. The service should forecast trends in industry and its prospective demands for labor, supervise retraining of the physically handicapped, and provide vocational guidance for new entrants into industry, and should act as a stabilizing influence.

Urge Permanent Staffs.

"To function efficiently the offices should be suitably housed; they should be departmentalized as to sex, skill, and age of the workers; they should be staffed by trained persons with permanent tenure under civil service; they should have the counsel of advisory boards, representing industry, labor, and the public. The service should keep adequate records and should employ statisticians to analyze information.

"The dire needs of the present emergency and the public necessity that governmental service be made efficient or abolished in the interest of economy leads the committee to recommend that the Union League club request Gov. Horner to improve the efficiency of the Illinois free employment service along the lines suggested herein."

Chairman White has asked the governor for an opportunity to discuss the situation and has also asked Dr. B. M. Squires, chairman of the City club committee on idleness, an authority on this subject, to accompany him.

5 INJURED WHEN BUS CRASHES ON SAFETY ISLAND

The driver and four passengers in a Nevin Line bus were injured this morning when a tire blew out, throwing the vehicle against a safety island in South Park way, near 45th street.

Those injured were the driver, William Flynn, 29 years old, of 3301 Cottage Grove avenue; Mr. and Mrs. R. Stanley, 2814 North Maplewood avenue; Miss Clara Hines of the same address and Mrs. L. R. Blakely of Dallas, Tex. Mrs. Blakely received a fracture of the leg and the others suffered lacerations. They were taken to the Chicago hospital. The bus was arriving from Toledo.

Miss Katherine Comley, 65 years old, 3935 North Sawyer avenue, was fatally injured by an automobile last night at 87th street and Western avenue. She died while being taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital in the automobile which struck her. The driver, Mrs. Leona Murray, 30 years old, 207 East 108th street, was held for the inquest.

Mrs. Rose Halperin, 34 years old, 1066 Taylor street, was killed by an automobile yesterday in front of her home. Albert Cosentino, 1519 Elburn avenue, the driver, was held.

These deaths and one other yesterday increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 137. The other victim:

JUDGE PURSUES BANK ROBBERS; SHOTS ARE FIRED

Three bandits who had robbed the Farmers' First National bank at Minooka, Ill., in Grundy county, thirteen miles southwest of Joliet, of $2,000 were pursued for ten miles yesterday by Circuit Judge Frank Hayes of Grundy county, who saw the robbers run from the bank. Several shots were exchanged by the bandits and two officials of the bank who accompanied Judge Hayes. The robbers eluded their pursuers near Joliet at the Brandon lock of the new Illinois waterway.

JUDGE HAYES.

Three bank employés, including a woman, and two customers were in the bank when two of the bandits entered with revolvers drawn. The third man remained at the wheel of their car. Those in the bank were forced to line up against the wall with their hands raised while one of the robbers looted the cashier's cage.

Those in the bank when the robbers entered were W. S. Dirst, cashier, Miss Audrey A. Bell, assistant cashier; Clark Moore, bookkeeper, and C. J. Clennon and John McCanna, customers. Dirst and Moore accompanied Judge Hayes in the subsequent chase.

BOY, 15, MAY BE JAILED 6 MONTHS FOR DEBT OF $2,500

William Weber, 15 years old, 1521 North Mason avenue, a high school sophomore, while driving his grandmother's automobile in October, 1931, struck an automobile in which Mrs. Lucile Saliba, 35 years old, of Berwyn was riding.

Mrs. Saliba was injured and filed suit for damages, and last December a jury in the court of Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude awarded her $2,500. Now William finds himself facing a 6 months jail term because he is unable to pay.

Contrary to general opinion a minor is responsible for personal injuries he may inflict, and the judgment was entered against him. His father, Michael, finds himself unable to pay, and William has no money to satisfy the judgment. Mrs. Saliba's attorneys demand that William be imprisoned for the non-payment of debt under an old law. The plaintiff must pay the debtor's board of 50 cents a day in jail, under this statute.

The boy's attorney, Simon Sutton, asserted yesterday that he will ask that William be turned over to the juvenile court when he surrenders to the sheriff next Monday. Judge Mary Bartelme, in the Juvenile court, may place the youth on probation, the attorney said. If the sheriff refuses to surrender the boy to the jurisdiction of the juvenile court the lawyer will seek a writ of habeas corpus.

Hold Funeral Rites Today for Mrs. Marie Hodek, 92

Funeral services for Mrs. Marie Hodek, 632 Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, a resident of Chicago for 62 years, will be held this afternoon at 5708 West Madison street. Mrs. Hodek died on Thursday at the age of 92 years. She came to Chicago from Bohemia and made her home at 1152 Forquer street. The Chicago fire destroyed property only 250 feet away but spared the Hodek residence. She is survived by four children. The body will be cremated at Bohemian National cemetery.

A. W. Armour III. Quizzes Extortion Letter Writer

Wallace J. Radavicius, 18 years old, 914 West 18th street, who confessed sending extortion letters to members of the Armour family, was questioned yesterday at the federal building. Among those to whom the youth admitted sending letters demanding money and containing threats were A. Watson Armour, 900 Waukegan road, Lake Forest; Laurance H. Armour, 395 North Green Bay road, Lake Forest, and A. Watson Armour III., 209 Lake Shore drive. The latter appeared at the federal building yesterday and questioned the prisoner.

Ground Broken for Edison Memorial Building at Fair

Ground was broken for the Edison Memorial building on Northerly island at A Century of Progress exposition grounds yesterday afternoon. The building in the Electrical group, will contain exhibits showing the discoveries of Thomas A. Edison. French Ambassador Paul Claudel in a letter to President Rufus C. Dawes of A Century of Progress officially notified him that owing to financial conditions the French government has abandoned its original plans to erect a building at the world's fair.

Convicted H. O. Stone Co. President Freed on Bond

Henry F. Norcott, president of the defunct H. O. Stone & Co., real estate investment concern, one of five officials of the company sentenced to 20 years in federal prison and fined $15,000, was released from the county jail yesterday when he scheduled a $20,000 real estate bond.

BANDIT SLAPS WOMAN'S FACE.

BEG YOUR PARDON

It was stated yesterday that Attorney Bennison F. Bartel is counsel for Mrs. Eva Igney in a divorce suit now pending before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath. Mr. Bartel represents Mr. Igney. It was stated that Mr. Bartel received $2,000 in fees and a $4,000 mortgage from Mrs. Igney for his legal work. Attorney Bartel received no fees from Mrs. Igney, and yesterday he stated that he has been paid $360 for his services by Mr. Igney. Attorney Joseph Z. Willner formerly was counsel for Mrs. Igney. He has withdrawn from the case and his successor is Everett Jennings. Mr. Willner yesterday stated that Mrs. Igney has paid him no more than $1,000 for his services. Mr. Jennings has received a retainer fee of $250, he said. Recommendations for fees for Attorneys Bartel, Willner and Jennings all are awaiting the ruling of Judge Sabath next Tuesday.

FREED ON GAMBLING CHARGES.

Albert Laverne, 4538 Sheridan road, and Joseph Schlitz, 3443 Sheffield avenue, alleged handbook operators, were freed yesterday by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman when police admitted that they had raided their establishments without search warrants.

2 ROBBERS BIND BROKER AND WIFE AND LOOT HOME

Two youthful robbers, wearing black masks and armed with revolvers, invaded the country home of Warren A. McCracken, Chicago investment banker, in Barrington township, early yesterday. They bound Mr. and Mrs. McCracken to their beds and then looted the house of clothing, jewelry and silverware valued at approximately $5,000. The McCrackens' small daughter, asleep in their bedroom, was not disturbed.

Included in the loot were a diamond-sapphire bracelet and a diamond ring, four fur coats, evening gowns, a flat silver service and $67 in cash. After the bandits departed Mr. McCracken freed himself and his wife and ran to the home of a neighbor, where he called Patrolmen Howard Hoagland and Anthony Seisser of the state highway police.

Later Mr. McCracken, who is associated with the investment banking firm of Stone & Webster and Blodgett, reported the robbery to Chicago police. Mrs. McCracken, before her marriage, was Miss Dorothy Foresman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Foresman of Kenilworth. Mr. McCracken served in France as a lieutenant of artillery.

POLICE CAPTIVE IS ACCUSER AS WELL AS ACCUSED

Vern Hardtke, 23 years old, 2907 North Kedzie avenue, an exterminator of cockroaches, rats, etc., played a double rôle at the detective bureau last night.

Rôle No. 1 was that of prisoner. He was arrested on a charge of passing a worthless check to a garageman. He explained he had to get his automobile out so he could drive with his fiancée to Waukegan and get married.

Rôle No. 2 was that of accuser. As he stood in row 5 of the lineup he recognized, or thought he recognized the face of Henry Sandie, 24 years old 5137 South Ridgeway avenue, arrested as a robber and gunman, standing in row 1. When the question was put "Does any one present identify Henry Sandie as a robber?" Hardtke spoke.

"Yes," he said. "That fellow held me up at Kedzie and Sunnyside last Monday and took $21. If he hadn't done it I wouldn't have had to write a rubber check to get married on."

A little later, as accuser, Hardtke signed a complaint charging Sandie with robbery. Then he resumed the rôle of an accused passer of worthless paper and was led back to a cell.

OXFORD PACIFIST MOVE SPREADS TO MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER, England, March 3.—(AP)—The union of Manchester university today followed the lead of the Oxford union by passing, 371 to 196, a motion "that this house will under no circumstances fight for its king and country."

In a tumultuous meeting last night the Oxford union, which is a debating club where its members are trained for political careers, rejected by a vote of 750 to 138 a motion to expunge from the records a previous motion declaring that "this house will under no circumstances fight for its king and country." Stench bombs were thrown during the meeting.

Randolph Churchill, son of Winston Churchill, was one of the leaders in the attempt to expunge the motion.

FALL IN HOME CAUSES DEATH.

John Adranowski, 73 years old, 1045 West 31st place, died yesterday in the county hospital as a result of a fall Feb. 11 in his home.

C. O. OWEN, OLD TIME PRINTER, IS DEAD AT 84

Cassius Orlin Owen, 84 years old, chairman of the board of the C. O. Owen company, printers and binders, died early yesterday at his residence at 5640 Sheridan road after a brief illness.

He came to Chicago from New York state on the day of the Chicago fire. In 1888, with the late J. H. Goessele, he founded the Owen printing house, serving as president from that year until 1928, when he became chairman.

Surviving him are his widow, Emily, and his son. Funeral services will be held at 3 this afternoon at the home. Burial will be at Rosehill.

C. A. Ross of Babcock Grain Company Is Dead

CANCERS' CAUSE STILL ELUDING DOCTORS' SKILL

Expert Tells New Tests for Diagnosis.

New York, March 3.—(AP)—The finding of just one of the "long hoped for specific tests for cancer" was reported tonight by James Ewing, M. D., at the annual meeting of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

Dr. Ewing warned listeners that "search for the cause of cancer has failed," but on the other hand he said that "practical research directed to the cancer patient is making rapid, substantial and effective progress." He summarized the findings of cancer workers of the entire world.

Reveal Cancer Presence.

One of them is the discovery that sex gland cancers reveal their presence in advance by producing a pituitary gland hormone. The pituitary is in the head, but its hormones control sex glands to a large extent. Apparently the sex gland cancer sets up extra production of hormones on its own account. Using the medical term "tumor" for cancer, Dr. Ewing said:

"Thyroid tumors secrete iodothyrin. Liver tumors make bile. Adrenal tumors exert very peculiar effects on the secondary sex characters and adrenal function, and the sex gland tumors produce large amounts of pituitary hormone prolan A.

"One investigator finds prolan A in varying quantities in all cases of sex gland tumors, and has elaborated a method by which he is able to determine the presence of such tumors, to estimate the efficiency of treatment and to recognize recurrences before clinical symptoms are detected, and finally predict the structural type of the tumor.

Offers Specific Test.

"We thus have the long hoped for specific test for cancer, but applicable to only one group of tumors—those of the sex cells."

The society's managing director, Dr. C. C. Little, reported that in 1932 fifty-three American communities started cancer control programs, compared with 38 the year before. These programs already affect about one quarter of the country's population.

DR. PAUL YOURD, CHURCH LEADER, DIES IN ELGIN

Dr. Paul H. Yourd, 50 years old, moderator of Illinois Congregational churches and pastor of the Elgin First Congregational church for the last six years, died at his home there yesterday afternoon of a heart ailment. He was stricken during church services Feb. 5.

A native of Pennsylvania Dr. Yourd was educated at Westminster college and Allegheny seminary in Pittsburgh. He had held pastorates in Mount Jackson, Penn., and Marissa, Ill.; Greeley, Colo.; Benton Harbor Mich., and Elgin, and during the war was a director of religious work in American army camps. He was a past president of the Elgin Ministerial association. His widow, three children, father and a brother survive.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at the Elgin First Congregational church.

VON HINDENBURG PROMISES FREE VOTE TOMORROW

Tells Cardinal He Will Curb Excesses.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 3.—President Paul von Hindenburg today announced that he will do everything within his power to insure the freedom of the reichstag elections on Sunday.

The president's statement was made in reply to a letter written by Cardinal Adolf Bertram requesting measures to permit voters to go to the polls without being coerced r threatened.

Von Hindenburg's letter to the cardinal follows:

"I ask your eminence to be assured that I will do everything within my power to safeguard the freedom of the election for our citizenry and prevent excesses in the election campaign, and I am convinced that the reich's government is guided by the same intention."

Five Slain in Clashes.

Meanwhile political clashes continued. Five were killed and scores were injured at Hamburg, Bernburg, Duesseldorf, Hoechst, Kassel, and Bremen. At Hamburg a 70 year old bystander was fatally wounded when communists fired into a parade of National Socialists. A Reichsmannerman died later of wounds received in a clash with Nazis.

A communist was killed at Duesseldorf, at Hoechst a Nazi was slain, and at Bernburg a laborer was killed in a fight with Nazis.

Ernst Thaelmann, head of the communist party in Germany and its candidate for president at the last election, was arrested here today. Yesterday it was reported that he had fled to Copenhagen.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler's storm troopers marched through the capital today flying their banners and tramping for hours in a rain while crowds lined the streets and cheered. They were headed by a detachment of Nazi auxiliary police, while truckloads of regular police foll. ed, many of them flying the Hitlerite swastika emblem. Twenty-five thousand Steel Helmet war veterans will be reviewed by Von Hindenburg on Sunday.

Sweep Foes from Office.

Public officials and civil servants, who are suspected of being opposed to Hitler's Nazis continue to be swept out of office. Their places are being filled by Hitler "regulars." Forced retirements and obligatory resignations of administrative and executive officials in the mighty state of Prussia are being engineered by Capt. Herman Wilhelm Goering, federal minister without portfolio and commissioner for the Prussian ministry of interior.

One of the most glaring examples of the wholesale dismissals is the case of Colonel of Police Quast, who served as a head of police in Oberhausen and Muelheim for 38 years. The only pause in his activity occurred after the revolution in 1918. As police commissioner of Remscheid, he was compelled to take a 20 months' "vacation" at the order of the revolutionary council of workers and soldiers because he was suspected of being a dangerous opponent of the Social Democratic party, then at the helm.

"Fired" for Opposite Reason.

Ironically, the new Nazi "dictators" have sent him on another enforced rest for precisely the opposite reason. They suspected him of not being sufficiently antagonistic to the Socialists, who, together with the communists, Hitler has pledged to exterminate.

A similar incident occurred in the government controlled radio system. Names of five employés were listed—engineers and technical men—as being suspected of harboring political convictions at variance with those cherished by the Nazis.

The radio department told the Prussian commissarial government that it was not concerned with the private opinions of the men who worked for it—so long as they did their jobs well. A message was shot back. It was an unconditional order and the men were discharged.

Reds Flee To Poland.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VILNA, Poland, March 3.—Many German communists, mostly from East Prussia are arriving in Poland. Several groups, including three communist members of the reichstag, escaped to the border in eastern Poland last night, but were turned back by Polish frontier guards because they had no passports. German frontier guards used searchlights to illuminate the frontier to detect escaping communists.

300 Enroute to Russia.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, March 3.—Latvian authorities report that 300 persons have crossed Latvia enroute to Russia from Germany in the past three days. They are believed to be Russian agents fleeing Germany.

Disarm Parley Near Failure; MacDonald to Go to Geneva

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 3.—Only a miracle can save the disarmament conference from breaking down, and in an effort to work that miracle the British cabinet at a special meeting today decided to send Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon to Geneva early next week.

Capt. R. Anthony Eden, undersecretary of foreign affairs, who has been representing Great Britain at Geneva, will return there immediately to hold the fort until the big guns arrive Capt. Eden returned to London from Geneva this week to report on conditions there, and it was on his grave report that the cabinet acted.

European Crisis Called Grave.

The gravest view is taken by the British government of the European situation, and it is felt that a breakdown of the arms conference must be avoided at all costs. If it breaks down, observers predict that all the sore spots of Europe will be exacerbated and even if nothing worse happens immediately, an armaments race is certain to begin. In that event, treasury experts have informed the cabinet, the powers might just as well abandon the world economic conference.

As Britain sees it, the trouble is caused by the French demand for security. The French insist that their superiority in arms over Germany shall not be lessened either by disarming France or by Germany rearming unless France is guaranteed security for the territorial and other advantages obtained by her under the treaty of Versailles.

The French position regarding Italy is equally menacing. Italy demands naval equality. France's reply is that naval equality would mean French inferiority in the Mediterranean, as she must keep a large part of her fleet in the Atlantic.

Germany Kicks Over Traces.

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 3.—(AP)—The general belief that the disarmament conference is staring failure in the face was crystallized today by an incident in the general commission of the conference and by the announcement in London that Prime Minister MacDonald is coming to Geneva soon to assist in reaching an early decision.

The incident in the general commission was an attack by Count Rudolf Nadolny, German delegate, who charged that the conference had been ineffective and voiced acute disappointment bordering on despair. Suggestions that Germany is on the point once again of leaving the conference—which leaders assert would be fatal to the parley—have been whispered freely and gained support from Count Nadolny's statement.

BOY SKATER'S BODY RECOVERED.

The body of Earl Hodges, 12 years old, was recovered today from the Fox river near Aurora. He had been missing since Jan. 8, and it is believed that he broke through the ice while sliding. Earl was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hodges.

U. S. ENVOY URGES FRANCE TO PAY "FOR OWN GOOD"

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, March 3.—Expressing "earnest hope" that France will pay its deferred war debt installment to the United States, Ambassador Walter E. Edge in a farewell interview with French newspaper men today said a number of things he had originally planned to say at the Washington birthday dinner on Feb. 22.

That night, in order to avoid discourtesy to Paul Claudel, the French ambassador to Washington, who had just talked with President Elect Roosevelt, and to former Premier Edouard Herriot, who was the guest of honor, the ambassador deleted the controversial matter from his speech.

Insists on Payment.

Today Mr. Edge said that in the first place the clew to any satisfactory settlement of the war debts problem lies in some form of compensation. He pointed out the desperate unemployment and agricultural situation in the United States and he said "the state of mind does not exist which will accept a one sided solution."

"For instance, it cannot reasonably be expected that the American people will consent to any material reduction on a debt already reduced almost 50 per cent while various trade irritants remain unadjusted. Compensation is not necessarily confined to gold transfers."

Ambassador Edge continued that he considered a quick and definite solution of the debt problem imperative and he doubted the wisdom of a further moratorium.

Warns Against Procrastination.

"Personally, I feel any additional procrastination would be a hideous mistake," he said. "As a true friend of France I earnestly hope a form will be found without delay which will enable the French parliament to approve payment on account of the deferred debt installment.

"This will assure France the same advantages which accrue to other powers in the effort now being made to conclude a settlement. It will propitiate public opinion in the United States. It will answer the charge that France has attempted the reverse of the usual practice in debtor and creditor relationship by stipulating the terms of settlement in advance of negotiation. It will constitute a categoric reply to those critics abroad who seek to demonstrate that the French parliament has refused to honor an acknowledged obligation Otherwise, when the discussions on debt revision get really under way France will be laboring under an obvious disadvantage."

PARAGUAY VOTES TO DECLARE WAR AGAINST BOLIVIA

Senate Is Unanimous on Measure Over Chaco.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, March 3.—(AP)—The senate tonight by a unanimous vote approved a formal declaration of war against Bolivia in the border dispute in the Gran Chaco, which has been in progress since last summer, with many casualties on both sides.

"The government is authorized to declare war on Bolivia," the senate measure said.

The senate and chamber of deputies met on Tuesday to consider the measure. Following adjournment of that session, it was unofficially announced that Paraguay had accepted with minor modifications a conciliation proposal drawn up by Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru.

Authorizes Nation to Declare War.

The league of nations committee of thirteen on the same day agreed to recommend to the governments represented by its members application of a concerted embargo on arms shipment to Paraguay and Bolivia.

Recently the Bolivian chancellory said the Paraguayan government, in considering a formal declaration of war, blocked neutrals' efforts to effect peace between the two countries.

Chile Demands Peruvian Apology.

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 3.—(AP)—The Chilean government today demanded a full apology from Peru for remarks they allege Garcia Calderon, Peruvian delegate to the league of nations, made regarding the Tacna-Arica treaty during discussions at Geneva yesterday.

Ambassador Rivas Vicuna at Lima was ordered to obtain a full explanation from President Luis Sanchez-Cerro of Peru. In the event the explanation was not given the ambassador was ordered to return to Chile, thus breaking off relations.

Panama Flies Protest.

PANAMA CITY, March 3.—(AP)—The foreign office has filed a complaint with the Colombian legation protesting the treatment of Señorita Maria Teresa Vallarino during a recent visit with relatives in Colombia when she was accused of being a Peruvian spy.

Señorita Teresa claimed the charges resulted from a desire for political vengeance by Miguel Franco, the chief of police in Cali, Colombia, against her brother-in-law, who is mayor of Cali. Prior to boarding a vessel at Buenaventura, Señorita Teresa's luggage was searched despite the fact she was traveling on a diplomatic passport.

J. D. Arosemena, foreign minister, pointed out in the protest that the party responsible for the alleged treatment was a high official and requested that customary measures of redress be taken against him.

VATICAN-ITALIAN PRESS END TRUCE OVER GERMANY

ROME, March 3.—(AP)—A truce maintained by the Italian and the Vatican press since a reconciliation in November, 1931, was broken today by a violent editorial in the Fascist newspaper Il Tevere against the Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, over the German political situation.

Il Tevere principally reacted to the Osservatore's statement that the German elections Sunday lose most of their importance because Walther Funk, chief of the German government's information bureau, asserted Germany has changed from a government to a "régime" and would not return to the democratic parliamentary system.

Il Tevere accused the Osservatore of trying to influence the German Catholic Centrist party. "Osservatore contradicts its doctrine [nonpolitical] by its political comment, openly disseminating equivocation in the conscience of its readers," the paper said. It asserted the Vatican paper showed "unnatural solicitude" for German communists while denouncing the soviet régime in Russia. It said this attitude might produce a "most dangerous fall for Catholic immunity."

Scandal Rocks Glasgow; Judge Admits Taking Bribe

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 3.—(AP)—The Glasgow corporation today passed a resolution asking the government to investigate charges against the city administration resulting from a confession by a magistrate in the high court that he had accepted a bribe.

4 LEGS ARE STEADIER!

You're in an unsteady position when a horse rears. You've got to keep him on four legs for a smooth ride—because four supports satisfy a fundamental principle of balance. That's why Eveready Raytheons have four pillars supporting their vital elements. For sure reception.

Photograph courtesy of Universal Pictures, Inc.

WHEN your radio ceases to satisfy, in the majority of cases it's because the tubes have gone bad. Accidental bumps, jolts, jars, the constant vibration of the dynamic speaker, have upset the delicate balance of vital elements propped up on only two supports.

You need Eveready Raytheons — the only tubes on the market with patented four-pillar support. Designed on the fundamental principle of balance in the nature of things, they give maximum performance and maximum life because their vital elements are properly supported. Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes cost no more than ordinary tubes. Yet they are sturdier and will stand up under bumps and vibration. If you want assured accuracy of reception and long-run economy, put Eveready 4-pillar Tubes in your radio.

Eveready Raytheon 4-pillar Tubes are made in all types, to fit any kind of set. They cost no more. Yet they offer surer reception, longer life, and protection against vital elements becoming unbalanced.

ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

WESTBROOK PEGLER

GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK

JOHN BOETTIGER

CHICAGO Tribune reporters and cameramen today are on the job at Washington getting for you a comprehensive account of the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as President of the United States.

Tomorrow's Sunday Tribune will tell the story, complete from every angle and illustrated with the most interesting pictures.

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Tribune's Washington staff, will write the running story of the inauguration.

John Boettiger, who has followed Mr. Roosevelt's activities all over the country since the Democratic convention, will tell the story of the new executive's first day as President.

Genevieve Forbes Herrick of the Tribune's Washington staff will describe the part taken by women in today's ceremonies.

And Westbrook Pegler will reveal to you the sidelights incidental to this day in Washington which you probably wouldn't get even if you attended the ceremonies in person.

Every Sunday is a treat with the Chicago Sunday Tribune—and tomorrow's Tribune will be even more interesting than usual.

Mrs. MacLeish Can Be Proud of 2 Events

Son, Daughter-in-Law to Give Programs.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT is seldom that a husband and wife both are good enough in their chosen professions to appear publicly and when they are, their families have a right to be proud of them. so Mrs. Andrew MacLeish may be forgiven if she is looking very proud and pleased these days [being a modest woman, she couldn't be overly proud] for her son, Archibald, is to deliver a lecture at the University of Chicago on the 14th of this month and his wife is to sing at the Arts club on the 12th.

"Arch" MacLeish and his wife live in the east now, a tiny house in New York and a lovely big farm at Conway, Mass., where they go for long week-ends whenever possible, but they are coming here soon for a visit with his mother and brothers and sister and for the events in which he and his wife are to be the principal actors.

Mrs. MacLeish, the former Ada Hitchcock of Farmington, Conn., is the possessor of a lovely soprano voice and she is to give a joint recital with Jacques Gordon, violinist, at the Arts club on Sunday, the 12th. A buffet supper will be served at 7 o'clock and the music will start at 8:15.

MacLeish Is Known as Poet.

Mr. MacLeish, who has achieved quite a reputation as a poet, is to give one of the William Vaughn Moody lectures at the university, and Dr. James M. Stifler, chairman of the Moody committee, and Mrs. Stifler will entertain at dinner for Mr. MacLeish and his wife that night before the lecture.

About ten lectures on cultural subjects are given each year at the university in the course that was established by the late Mrs. Moody in memory of her husband, who was a writer and a professor at the university at the time of his death. Henry R. Luce, whose wife is the former Lila Hotz of Chicago, is coming from the east to deliver the April lecture in the course. He is the managing editor of a magazine.

Mrs. MacLeish expects her daughter-in-law the day before the musical at the Arts club, but as far as she knows, her son will not be able to arrive in time to hear his wife sing, for he plans to arrive here on the 14th. Mr. MacLeish talked at the Arts club on "Certain Aspects of Contemporary Poetry" about two years ago.

In the same envelope with the Arts club announcement was a card announcing an illustrated lecture by Harold Stark on "Our Attempt at a Native Art" next Tuesday morning at 11:30 o'clock.

Drama League Hears Irish Wit.

Real Irish wit characterized the informal talks members of the Drama league and their guests heard yesterday at the breakfast given in the ballroom of the Drake hotel for the Abbey Players for Mrs. Clarence Hough, president, who presided, asked James G. Condon to extend the league's welcome to the Irish stage folk and a witty as well as cordial welcome it was.

Mr. Condon recently resigned as the abbot of that little known but highly intellectual group of men who under the name of "The Medievalists" meet at the University club and entertain many of the visiting "highbrows," and during the years he was at the head of this almost monastic order he gained the title, "The Witty Abbot," which reputation he upheld yesterday.

Arthur Shields responded for the Irish troupe and all the ladies "fell harder" for this charming young Irishman off the stage than they had done when they saw him on the stage. Burton Holmes also spoke a few words, telling some of his amusing experiences on a trip through Ireland two or three years ago.

A few of those at the party were Mrs. Stephen A. Browning, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. Harry B. Fuller, Mrs. William E. Wright, Mrs. William A. Yager, Mrs. John Kehoe, Mrs. Robert Peacock, Mrs. Walter Peacock, Mrs. James H. Channon and Miss Letitia Channon, Mrs. David F. Bremner, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Welch Dickinson, Mrs. Andrew Sheriff, Mrs. Othe F. Ball, and Frederick B. Tuttle.

Walter Talks on Germany.

"What we need," said Ellery Walter with a gesture toward the 600 women occupying the silver chairs in the large ballroom of the Woman's Athletic club, "is a little Americanism not Socialism or Fascism, but Americanism. You and your sons need to think. You need to think politically."

It was this postscript to Mr. Walter's lecture yesterday morning at the athletic club that produced a show of patriotism nothing less than thrilling. Mr. Walter, the clean cut, adventurous young man who has traveled the world around on one leg and written a book about it, came to talk about "The German Youth Movement." But before his audience would let him go he gave this tonic for some of our present day ills.

"There is a void between the ears of most of our young men," he said, with the quick qualification, "from the political point of view, I mean. Men should be proud to be senators. They should know government from the alderman to the President."

Mrs. Alfred C. Tyler, chairman of the program committee of the Woman's Athletic club, introduced Mr. Walter. He chose to speak on the youth of Germany because he spent most of last summer in that country

Fashion Selections from the New Personal Wardrobe of Norma Shearer

Rough grey wool fashions this suit from the personal wardrobe of Norma Shearer. The jacket shows a deeply notched and wide lapel collar line and the sleeves are given fullness by tucks over the shoulders. The cloth belt knots around the waist line. The pancake beret is of the same material. Miss Shearer carries a grey Persian lamb muff. The suede slippers tie at the sides.

Norma Shearer in her new street suit in bright Kelley green wool. The hip length jacket is belted and pocketed in youthful style and set off by blond fox furs. The saucy beret of a hand knit weave carries out the same green tone. "Kiki" feathers trim the hat.

The waistline jacket of the formal evening ensemble has a rolled collar of leopard skin to match the wide band of leopard skin bordering the hem. The long tight sleeves extend over the hands in two points.

The evening ensemble of cream broadcloth shows clinging line simplicity with golden chains fashioning the shoulder straps and belt. A wide band of leopard skin borders the hem.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Aha! Another swimmer has gone animal tamer on us! Meet Mr. Buster Crabbe [pronounce like sea food], Olympic champion, pow-wowing intimately with jungle majesties and, with "waugha" imperative, cajoling, commanding their activities even as Pershing commanded his armies. [Not that Pershing said "waugh!" to the knowledge of any historian.]

"Waugh!"—and the lions came hither.
"Waugh!"—and the lions raced thither;
"Waugh!"—they bite with all their might,
Or—cease to fight; do wrong—or right
Just—"WAUGH!"

Do you, perchance, remember Kipling's story about Mowgli, the child reared in India by monkeys?

Well, Kaspa goes him one better. The lions of Africa take Kaspa in tow when he's no bigger than a minute, and bring him up to be their Big Boss.

Comes a circus man to darkest Africa. . . . And now you see Kaspa and a number of his pets transported to America, where, despite their wholehearted rebellion they're soon set traveling the sawdust trail.

It's a tough life for the captives, but one beset with thrills for the onlooker. One, too, that's not all bitterness for Kaspa, for love comes to him in the person of the pretty and marvelously understanding school teacher, hired to manage him and teach him English. [How fast the boy DOES learn!]

You may not believe this story [who would?], but, as the cigaret ads say, it's fun to be fooled—sometimes, and this here "King of the Jungle" is one of those fun fooling movies. Not only does it boast excitement a-plenty—it has humor, too—which is a feather in the fez of any picture, animal or—animal. And there are scenes that look most awfully dangerous whether there was any peril connected with them or not.

Certainly you're going to eek and ah-h-hh-hh over a couple of fights—one between a lion and an African bull; the other between a lion and a tiger—and get all het up on account of a circus fire that results in city-wide pandemonium.

The film ends as I know you'll love to have it. The beginning, too, is fascinating—the carefree little boy with his foster lioness mamma and his little foster cub brothers and sisters!

Never having seen him swim, I can't assert authoritatively that Mr. Crabbe acts as well as he cleaves the water. But he does put over a competent job as Kaspa, performing and speaking with remarkable unself-consciousness—especially considering that this is his first movie.

Notable in his supporting cast are Frances Dee, Nydia Westman, Sidney Toler, and Warner Richmond. [What's THAT? Excuse me for a few moments, fans. . . .]

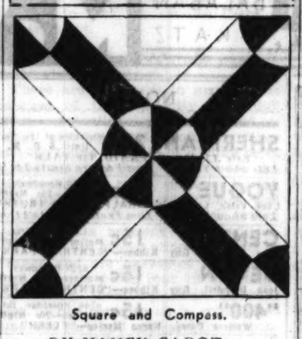
Well, WHO do you think came in just then? Kaspa himself! Mr. Bill Pine, formerly here with Balaban & Katz and now a Paramount coast executive, brought him—Buster Crabbe, the only white man who won a swimming event at the Olympic games—AND two of the cunningest lion cubs you ever saw in your lives. If you think this office wasn't in a state of commotion for a good half hour!

I was strong for "King of the Jungle" before I met Mr. Crabbe. I know I'd like it even better now that I've seen him first hand. One of the nicest chaps you ever met, girls! Regular! And the cubs love him like a papa. They have to be fed every four hours with eight ounces of milk—blood temperature, with raw egg beaten in it. Every morning they get cod liver oil. Castor oil when necessary. And Daddy Crabbe attends to it all.

Mr. Crabbe and the babies are making personal appearance today and tomorrow at McVicker's. Better run over. They're well worth the trip. TAKE THE CHILDREN!

See you tomorrow!

Blue, White Quilt Carries Traditions of Seagoing Folk



Square and Compass.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Square and Compass" is properly pieced in blue and white, carrying as it does the traditions of the seafaring folk and fishermen. The design originated in a little fishing village in Maine. Since that time it has traveled many miles.

If there is a Mason in the crowd he may feel a tremor of emotion as he looks upon the "Square and Compass," which is also the emblem of the Masonic fraternity.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Fabric Gloves Give Touch of Spring Styles

BY RHEA SEEGER.

If you are heartily sick of winter gloves, weary of worn suedes and doeskins, if even the sleek smoothness of a master designed kidskin gloves leaves you cold, try on the new fabrics. Not the wild and dizzy, dottest, striped and printed fabrics that will be much better later on in the season, but the good old street fabrics that are now displayed with a lot of trick new cuffs and other dashing ideas.

For instance, a brand new pinky ivory color that is dress parade enough for snooty black afternoon dresses or even a dinner date. They are made of the softest, most luxurious fabric you ever slipped your fingers into . . . a thick velvety stuff that feels exactly like thick suede. The cuffs are lined way down to the wrist with yellow fabric, and you can buy this model with the colors reversed. The price tag fluttering with this pair of charmers is so low that you will hardly dare to believe your eyes. These also are new gloves for a swanky suit of tweed or other town clothes with a country accent.

The best looking stitched fabric gloves in white are the new slipons with a special new stitch, the seams and tucks are stitched in black, not the old-fashioned count-the-stitches style, but a overcast loop stitch like nothing that has ever before been used on gloves. Not content with introducing a new stitch, the designers slashed out a new curve on the flared cuff which is knockout . . . worn over the sleeve of either suit or coat, it achieves a distinctive snap that is most unusual.

The next fabric glove that will make fashion handlines are the white models with a cavalier cuff of black, that is, the cuff is lined with black . . . they are exceptionally well made, with an inch of white stitching to keep them flared. You can also buy this same model in black with the inner cuff of white and the contrasting stitching of black. And a perfect shade of new deep blue is featured with a dove gray lined cuff. Later you will be able to buy fabric gloves of dove gray and other matching good gray tones to contrast or harmonize with fashionable gray costumes.

Some very good buys are the grand collections of pigskin gloves . . . washable affairs in gray, blue, natural, and black, and unexpectedly low prices are available on these swagger slipon pigskins that are tremendously effective with street, town, or country clothes.

Also, for pigskin enthusiasts, a large and varied assortment of pigskin handbags to exactly match the gloves . . . you will find stunning bags in gray, blue, black, natural, and white. They are fitted with a double mirror, coin purse, several necessary compartments, and come in pouch, envelope, and wrist strap styles. The newest pouch styles are made with a zipper that is controlled by a gleaming chromium ball and chain.

Other eye filling white pigskins that could easily go out with afternoon dresses have clasps and frames and ornaments of gold, silver and copper metal, as well as a lot of good looking prystal contrasts that are as different as they are new and exciting.

Critic Pleased to Announce New Painter

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

It is a cheerful task to announce the discovery of a new painter. Water colors by Sam Malmberg have just been hung in the O'Brien galleries and the exhibit gives us one of those lucky finds that so rarely break the round of exhibitions.

Five sunny colors at the International exhibit last summer in the Chicago Art institute first drew attention to Mr. Malmberg. Recently Mr. O'Brien found more of his work in Mrs. Logan's United Exhibitors' gallery and the enthusiasm which had first been awakened grew to a conviction that here was a little known man of first class calibre.

The present exhibit of Sam Malmberg's water colors speaks for itself. They are gay, vigorous, capable and strong pieces of painting. So good are they that unconsciously one is forced to bring in Whistler and John Whorf and, sometimes, Robert Lee Eskridge, to measure him by. The water colors remain themselves in the face of all comparison. They are undoubtedly among the most brilliant Chicago art shown this year. They were painted in Tahiti and the persuasive appeal of that island has lost none of its charm in these sketches.

The annual exhibition of paintings and prints by the Business Men's Art club opened Thursday in the Lakeside Press galleries. It is a delightful show and interesting when one remembers that these men are all engaged in some profession or business and that art with them is a jolly holiday, pursued for their own pleasure.

The majority of the paintings stand up well, seen in this light. A few of them can stand the broad glare of art as real art. Among these are Alfred De Sauty's aquatint and lithograph, Ferdinand L. Hotz's clever "Great Lakes Design," Leo E. Ruckle's "Early Autumn" and "Head Study," and the "Still Life" by Dr. Joseph J. Singer.

The exhibitions will continue through March and are both well worth seeing.

Dry Skin Needs Constant Use of Creams, Oils

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Wonder how much truth there is to the charge that blondes' skin fades earlier than brunettes'? I wonder if there is any truth to it today. I believe the tradition had root in national studies rather than individual.

In the Latin countries where brunettes abound the food eaten has much to do with the prolonged youthfulness of the skin. Where olive oil is used in large quantity the facial tissue seems to hold up more firmly. Also, of course, plump and fat women are less wrinkled than others.

Here in our country, where brunettes are just as avid for streamline silhouettes, and where brunettes are subjected to the same arid indoor atmosphere and the same weather conditions outside, it's a question if they don't have to battle the same for a longtime young skin as the blonde.

It isn't the coloring of the girl, but the current condition of her skin by which she may judge for herself her future complexion rating. If it is dry and scaling, powder won't stick; or if the skin is patched from roughness—now's the moment to begin corrective work. If the skin is dry and scaly, spread on a base cream of some kind before you rouge and powder. This is most important where there is a tendency to dry skin.

It isn't enough to cleanse the face with cream and call it a day. This type of skin needs constant lubrication and can only get it through local application of cream. If the skin is very dry, better use a good tissue cream when going out into the strong winds or into the sunshine.

The cream foundation is essential to a good powdering job. A heavy powder isn't the solution here. The heavy powder makes the dry skin look drier, if it stays on at all, which it usually does not. But the cream base will solve the worry with a finer powder.

Cream rouge, too, is better for this type of skin. It spreads more easily. The dry rouge often breaks up into specks and flakes.

There's no doubt that the dry skin falls into lines and crinkles much earlier than the oily. Recognizing that you have this type of skin, make up your mind not to go to bed a night without applying a tissue cream or skin food with a good three minute massage to work it in, to force in the needed oils.

Pope Pius Appeals to World to Mark Holy Hour on April 6

VATICAN CITY, March 3.—(AP)—Pope Pius today called upon the world to observe a holy hour on April 6 of exploratory prayer on the nineteenth hundredth anniversary of Christ's agony in the garden of Gethsemane "so all souls may be lifted in union toward God, thus inducing pacification of the peoples and alleviation of the evils created by the crisis."

The pope himself will descend to St. Peter's to venerate the sacrament.

The appeal was made in an open letter addressed to Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani, the vicar of the Rome diocese, in which he requested the clergy and the faithful to observe the hour.

The pontiff expressed the desire that "everybody follow this example, not only in Rome but in all centers," so "the holy year may begin with men of all races and tongues reunited in the heart of Jesus."

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new-made fortune, known as "Nosey Iggy," rows to town and sends Bart help and taxies home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. When Bart realizes he loves Alice he resolves to stay away from Folly island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee and soon finds himself unexpectedly engaged. The Bayleys visit New York and Bart sees them. Ingy Warren has been visiting the island and has invited Alice to Wyattville. Bart tells Alice of his engagement. Alice and her mother are guests of the Warrens for the annual Wyattville flower show. Alice wins first prize. Mrs. Burgess has the Bayleys in for tea. Alice sees a photograph of Trevor Burgess.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

THE EDGE OF A SECRET.

A black dog seemed to be tagging at his heels in that day of waiting back in Wyattville. The whisky, taken in large quantities on the night before, had done him, of course, no good. But it gave him a long morning sleep, which was merciful. He found himself avoiding his mother's worried eyes; when she questioned him his answers were terse and gruff. Why wasn't he down at the office? The office could get along without him for a while. Did he see Lora in town? No, he wasn't going to night clubs just now.

Aunt Augusta's heavy presence loomed over him; but when he tried to talk to her alone he found that she was on another of her expeditions, visiting florists in Hicksville or shopping for Hero's favorite health food.

The hot September day dragged by; Bart should have been, as his mother hinted, at the office. What was the use of it? Insurance bored him. He was always quarreling with his superiors, especially since Folly island began getting on his nerves. And what was Alice doing now? Was she burning her heart out with the horror she had suspected when she looked at the picture and wouldn't let anybody tell her because she was so queer and stubborn?

Bart Burgess got through his day, as criminals do before the hour of execution. There was dinner, he remembered, mother watching him closely.

Bart Burgess went back to his room, still carrying the funny little murderer he had put in his hip pocket. He was tormented with the knowledge that he was no longer alone with the secret which he had borne so long, like the Spartan boy's wolf, tearing and clawing, refusing to be strangled. More keenly still he felt it in the night, when his bed was like burning pitch; he who used to sleep like a soldier dreamed and woke, dreamed and woke.

In the hot stillness of early September he stole downstairs in his pajamas and walked under the moon. Barefooted, the dewy grass gave him comfort. At the still hour when even the tree toads were resting their voices against the rough bark of the pin oaks he wandered beneath the shadowing branches, glad of this little freedom. He had the consolations of a fugitive; the moments of escape were bright and precious to him.

He imagined that Alice was still there in the big house over the hill and wondered what would happen if he strolled cross-lots to the Warren grounds and saw a light, sparking on and off, as he did at a bedroom window. "Alice," he would cry softly. Or maybe he would throw pebbles against her pane. She would come down barefooted as he was to walk beside him on the cool grass. Then very gently he could tell her why he had been cruel, why he had kept the secret from her during all the months when they had played together on Folly island.

Of all the ghosts that might have arisen in this solitary wandering, Trevor Burgess' was the most important. It should have been mother's voice, or even Lora's, to come now and give him comfort. But dad was there, the laughing hunter, advising common sense. "Women like trouble. Don't let them bother you too much. Pick your own course and go ahead." Wearily Bart sat under the trees, arguing with himself and his father, until the sheep dogs in the kennels got his scent and set up a friendly barking.

In a flood of realism, calmed by the dewy grass under his bare feet, he remembered the only thing Aunt Augusta had said about the Bayleys during the curiously constrained dinner hour when he had endured with her and his mother. Disapproving of the Warrens' wild cocktail party, masked as a tea, she had said, "The Bayley child is more dignified than the young girls of Wyattville, and I hope the Warrens aren't going to spoil her. But I'm glad that people are making such a fuss over her. She has good blood in her veins and that tells." An astonishing concession for Aunt Augusta, who measured the human race by the book of Genesis, the inflexible rule of who begat who.

Aunt Augusta knows too much; she's gone beyond her depth and can't get out. Thus ran the reflections of Bart Burgess, quite a different person from the healthy, vigorous boy who had roosted on a damaged catboat only a few months ago, as he lay out under the trees, watching the big, silent house. Over on the left wing he saw a yellow light shining. That would be the library; and he knew Aunt Augusta's habit of coming down late to pick detective stories from the long shelf of modern fiction. The light was for him a deciding beacon; he came to his feet and stole silently back into the house.

When he came into the library she started and stared up over her great horn spectacles.

"Bart, how you frightened me!" She held up the cover of her book, adorned with green skulls and purple daggers. "My heart has almost given out already. Have you read this one? It's about a South American physician who murders people in a scientific way. Gives them diseases, do you see, and lets them expire naturally. One has diabetes, another sunstroke—but this one just coming, I'm afraid he'll have to stab, or something bungling——"

"Aunt Augusta," he broke in harshly. He had seated himself right in front of her so that her eyes could not evade his. "What's this that you and Ingy Warren are cooking up?"

"Cooking up?" Her large face was a blank. He had caught her by surprise. "I don't understand the term."

"Well, never mind terms, Aunt Augusta. It's a serious business and I want to know how far it's gone."

"Barton, please don't employ that tone with me. Consider my age." Then suddenly lowering her voice. "I agree with you. It has gone far enough. If I had known how much it would involve I shouldn't have let that Warren boy persuade me."

"What did he persuade you to do?"

She moved as if to go, but his eyes held her there sternly.

"To put the story together. I know more about the Farnhams than any one else around here, I suppose. If Arthur had lived—and she was just as well born as he was, even if she did go on the stage—I don't intend to say another word. I'm going to bed."

She had lumbered to her feet, but he blocked her way.

"Who are you talking about?" he asked. "Those facts don't belong to you. They're mine, and I've got to have them."

She stood there like a scared elephant faced by its keeper.

"These facts won't do anybody any good," she announced. Then as though to tempt him with the edge of a secret, "Do you know in what way Alice Bayley is related to you?"

He did not reply. What could he say? But suddenly he asked, "Is that why you showed me my father's picture when she was here?"

"I don't know what you mean." Her face was a blank. "Let me pass. I'm going to bed."

Places Landi on Top Rung of Beauty Ladder

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 3.—The handsomest flesh and blood picture yet seen on a movie set by this observer, who has spent nine years looking, is the current appearance of Elissa Landi, barelegged, bareheaded, and clad in one of her costumes—a white crepe tunic—in "Warrior's Husband."

Unfortunately for Miss Landi, some of the charm which is hers in flesh and blood in the past seems to have evaporated in the process of filming, and while she admittedly makes a singularly arresting appearance on the screen, yet her good looks and vitality are even more striking in person.

Her white tunic as an Amazon princess in "Warrior's Husband" has very short sleeves, a collar revealing the throat and is ornamented only by a stamped and jewaled leather belt.

For sheer gripping good looks the Anglo-Austrian girl, with her naturally tawny hair at shoulder length and ungathered; her complexion, dimples, gray eyes and mobile rounded lips, all flashing in animated talk, Miss Landi makes a memorable picture in the Amazon court.

Six former war aviators from the Royal Flying corps—some Canadian, others British—are at work on Paramount's "The Eagle and the Hawk," with an American distinguished service medal winner, Capt. Sterling Campbell, as technical director; the film stars Fredric March and Cary Grant.

Betty Furness is one young film darling whose mother raised her as mothers used to rear their daughters; Betty makes her own clothes and even trims some of her own hats. Miss Furness even sewed the costumes she wore as a cowgirl in "Cross Fire," the film she has just completed with Tom Keene.

Warners never bothered to take even a screen test of Philip Faversham, son of William Faversham, but signed him at once to a contract for "Fellow Prisoners" when the studio found him willing to work. Margaret Lindsay, the Dubuque girl with the Piccadilly accent, is the lead in this film of British war prisoners in Germany.

Watched Betty Blythe getting a set of still photographs taken on the Fox lot yesterday. Betty is playing a part in "Pilgrimage," that studio's film about gold star mothers. A lot of the old allure of "She" and "Queen of Sheba" days still clings with Betty, and she says: "It's wonderful to be back in this atmosphere after all these years that I spent when I imagined myself a ranch wife." Betty also said, "It makes one philosophical to watch these beautiful little chits of 19 and 20 who are the stars now, and think to yourself, 'enjoy it all, dear, while it lasts, for a beauty of 20 finds that her remembrances are the best part of her career when she gets near the 38 or 40 mark.'"

Son, Daughter-in-Law to Give Programs.

Tells Points of Hitler Program.

Hitler—a dapper little man with keen blue eyes and a charming manner across a tea table—has superseded every one. The four things he stands for are abolition of reparations, equality of arms, the defeat of communism, and the reclamation of his country's lost territories, and these four things have the united indorsement of German youth. The kaiser can't come back. The trend is definitely from left to right, from democracy to a dictatorship.

These are a few of the thoughts Mr. Walter left with Athletic club members as the result of his lecture.

He was to have been the guest of Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley and the directors at luncheon, but a lecture engagement in Joliet forced him to pass up everything but the tomato juice cocktail.

Tomorrow afternoon Mr. Walter will be back in town to speak at the University club. The Joseph E. Otises are having a tea party for him and Mrs. Walter after this lecture, and tomorrow night the Walters will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley M. Dixon at dinner.

Mrs. Dudley is to be their hostess at tea on Sunday, and Sunday evening they will be with the Tracy Drakes.

Forum Today on Foreign Policy.

Graham Aldis will preside over the "American Foreign Policy" forum the Council on Foreign Relations is to hold this noon in the grand ballroom of the Hotel La Salle. Prof. Bernadotte Schmitt and Prof. Quincy Wright, both of the University of Chicago, are to discuss our country's policy in Europe and the far east.

Among those who have made reservations for the luncheon are Mrs. William B. Greenlee, Bruce Johnstone, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Richardson, British Consul General Lewis Bernays and Mrs. Bernays, Stephen Y. Hord, Mr. and Mrs. George Packard, Mr. and Mrs. James Waller Marshall, and Mrs. Frank H. Scott.

The decorations are a hanging black velvet background with large white musical notes. Other Chicago girls who will, as is the custom at girls' college proms, "cut in" on the invited men, of whom there are always too few, are Miss Lucy Trumbull, Miss Roslyn Paine, Miss Margaret Frye, Miss Jean Ward, Miss Helen Johnson, Miss Virginia Thatcher, Miss Lorna Beaton, Miss Frederica Sargent, Miss Jean Rawlins, Miss Elizabeth Paine, and Miss Marion Greenlee.

Announce Marriage of Geraldine Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dean Faxon of Highland Park have announced the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Geraldine Faxon Lane, to Rawson Odell Marsh, the son of Mrs. J. E. Marsh of Port Elgin, Canada, which took place at 4:30 last Saturday afternoon in the Presbyterian church in Waukegan. The Rev. Samuel W. Chidester read the ceremony in the presence of the two families. Mr. and Mrs. Marsh will live in Highland Park.

The Juniors of the Alliance Francaise are looking forward to the tea Robert Hall McCormick is planning to give for them on Saturday of next week in his apartment in the McCormick building on South Michigan avenue, for they all have heard from their elders how attractive the apartment is and they are delighted at the chance to see it.

Pierre de Lanux, the distinguished and attractive Frenchman who will be here then, is to be a guest at the tea and also the directors of the alliance. M. de Lanux, who is the official representative of the league of nations in Paris, will give a lecture in French before the members of the alliance on "High and Low Ebb in International Ethics" that afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mme. Lanux is an American and she and her husband both have many friends here.

The junior Thomas C. Dennehys aren't planning a trip this winter, but they have a new blue cineraria plant in their attractive house on Woodland road in Lake Forest to add a touch of spring. It was given to Mrs. Dennehy last Tuesday by the board of directors of the Lake Forest Y. W. C. A. in appreciation of her service for the last three years as president.

Mrs. M. Scott Bromwell [Mari Smith] was elected to succeed Mrs. Dennehy, and the other officers are: Mrs. Dennehy, treasurer; Mrs. Ernest Johnson, first vice president; Mrs. A. Duane Jackman, second vice president; Mrs. Stuart Prosser, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Robert Pugh, recording secretary.

Austin Niblack Returns Home.

Austin H. Niblack is back from his short stay with Mrs. Niblack and their two children at Aiken, S. C., eager to start the Onwentsia hunt as soon as the frost is out of the ground sufficiently and the low land is dry enough. Mr. Niblack says Aiken is very quiet this year, but that he enjoyed his few weeks there, and that Mrs. Niblack and the youngsters won't be back in Lake Forest before May.

Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, who has been visiting the Paul Tietgens in Gainsville, Fla., will be at home today.

Mrs. Stephen Foster of Winnetka will sail from Boston tomorrow on the Saturnia for Europe.

Close upon the news that the 1933 international polo championships are to be played in Chicago the last two weeks in April comes the announcement of another event that always interests the sports followers of society. The Chicago Black Horse troop and the Mounted Band are to hold their annual military exhibition and polo games the evening of March 18 in the handsome big arena of the Chicago Riding club.

One of the polo games this year will be a contest between the Black Horse Troop team and the famous cadet team from Culver Military academy. After this the troopers will vie with each other in jumping competitions, saber exercises, and bareback gymnastics.

The evening will wind up with a polo match between two picked teams from the Chicago area. And among the players will undoubtedly be Prentice Porter, Herbert Lorber, James Hannah, Frank Bering, Barney Balding, Maj. Richard Hunter, and Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening.

Junior Friends of Art Meet Tuesday.

One of the most colorful meetings of the year of the Junior Friends of Art will be the one next Tuesday, when it will be Scandinavian day and Olaf Bernts, consul for Norway; John Knox, acting consul for Denmark, and Arvid Lundbeck, acting consul for Sweden, will be guests. A program of Scandinavian music, motion pictures, and dances will be given. The meeting will be held in the ballroom of the Belden-Stratford hotel.

Tonight the South Suburban Winter club is to hold a Montmartre party at the Olympia Fields Country club. The walls of the ballroom have been done in striking night club designs and a gay bill of entertainment is promised throughout the evening.

One of the gay parties on the north shore this spring will be the bridge party and fashion show the Kenilworth Infant Welfare society is to hold April 5 at the Kenilworth club.

Today at noon the representatives of sixteen women's colleges in the east and the midwest will have luncheon at the Vassar house restaurant to work out a plan for a great and impressive exhibit at A Century of Progress.

BY MARY MEADE.

An unusually interesting letter starts the question clinic today. It comes from B. D. S., and maybe her question will remind you of something you, too, once knew about but have almost forgotten.

She writes: "When I was a child I spent my summers at my grandmother's house. She had a big garden, and in it grew beans and an herb which she called 'bean herb,' or, in German, 'bohnen kraut.' I believe it grew about a foot high and was topped with a small blueish blossom. The leaf was shaped like that of an old fashioned myrtle. This my grandmother put between layers of fresh-picked green, diagonally sliced beans, salted, weighted, and allowed them to ferment, somewhat like sauerkraut.

"During the winter she would cook them with fresh pork and also used them rinsed in clear cold water and made a salad seasoned with a bit of sugar, pepper, vinegar, bacon grease and onions.

An aunt of mine used to put a bit of the herb into lamb stew with green beans.

"I cannot find any one of this generation, or of the last, who knows this herb. If I could find what this herb is I might plant a bit in my garden next summer. Also, when I was a child we used to get at Christmas time at Sunday school small guitars, mandolins, violins, etc., whose tops were made of some transparent stuff of bright colors, somewhat like the modern shiny transparent papers. They were filled with little candies. These candies held small, round, pungent seeds. Can you tell me what they could be?"

I couldn't have when I received your letter, Miss S, but since then I have sleuthed out the answer from a helpful German friend. "Bohnen kraut" is what botanists know as saturcia hortensis, commonly called summer savory. This herb is grown from seed. There is also a so-called winter savory, grown from cuttings, which is a member of the same family and is sometimes called "Bohnen kraut," too. I suspect that the little round seeds in the candies were coriander seeds. One can find them in stores kept by Germans, Scandinavians, and other North Europeans, since the people of those lands are fond of them. That you will be able to find the candies there, I rather doubt.

Next from Mrs. K. D., who wants to know about truffles.

These are strangers to many of us because of their scarcity and high price. Actually they are a kind of fungi growing underground. They may be found the size of a plum or of a medium sized potato. They are unembarrassed by roots, stems or leaves, and appear on the outside black and warty, but on the inside dark brown and full of a network of fine fibers.

Truffles are grown almost entirely in France and are harvested by trained dogs or hogs which root up the fungi, discovering them by their fragrant odor. They come to us in small sized cans and jars and are used for seasoning and garnishing.

RUSSIAN KRAUT WITH MUSHROOMS.

No. 2 can sauerkraut
10 large mushrooms
1½ tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
2-3 cup sour cream
Salt and pepper to taste

Clean the mushrooms and stew in two cups of salted water for 15 minutes. Drain off the water and add it to the sauerkraut. Chop the mushrooms and add with the seasoning. Let this combination cook together gently for 20 minutes. Now brown the flour in a frying pan and blend with the butter. Stir this into the sauerkraut and add the sour cream. [Sour cream may be bought in half-pint bottles.] Let simmer five minutes more and serve.

PRINCESS ROSTISLAV AND PRINCE GALITZINE.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

More than one member of society learned the meaning of "plumbire framboise" and tasted "zakuska assorti moscovite" for the first time last night. All of the city's titled Russians with their guests danced from 8 o'clock until well after midnight at the Maisonette Russe, 2800 Sheridan road, for the benefit of the Russian war disabled.

The atmosphere was Cossack from the red and blue menu cards to the elaborate floor pageant that took the stage shortly before 12 o'clock. There was a five course dinner beginning with the "zakuska," which is Russian for appetizer, and ending with the "plumbire framboise," a grand dessert concocted out of fresh strawberries, whipped cream and ice cream.

Princess Rostislav, wearing a smart black crêpe gown with a huge rhinestone buckle for ornament, was the "author" of the appetizer, and Gregor Piatigorsky, the Russian cellist, who was in Chicago yesterday appearing with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, contributed the recipe for the dessert.

In spite of the hectic week Princess Rostislav has experienced with the death of her father-in-law, Grand Duke Alexander, and the birth of a tiny daughter to her sister-in-law, the Princess Galitzine, she contributed generously to make the party the success it was.

"I think we will raise at least $500 for the disabled white Russian soldiers who are in hospitals here and abroad," she explained. "Every year in the spring Russian exiles throughout the world give benefits for the sake of the injured war veterans."

Prince Rostislav was not present because of the death of his father, and neither was Princess Galitzine, for she is still in St. Luke's hospital, but Prince Galitzine was there to help his sister, Princess Rostislav, with the cash box and the tickets.

Among those present were the Madlener twins, Otto and William, Miss Louise Dewey, Miss Frieda Foltz, Thomas Leiter, Miss Dorothy Ranney, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Stone, Miss Barbara Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Hempstead Washburne, Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, Mr. and Mrs. C. Barney Goodspeed, Maurice Sachs, the Arthur Bissells, and 200 others.

Miss Constance Hasler with her fiancé, John MacLaren Simpson, was wearing a polka dot gold satin gown. Miss Louise Brewer was in blue, Miss Marjorie Goodman in orange velvet, and Miss Martha Fitts in a lovely gown that had gold epaulets.

King George Will Hold Courts in May and June

LONDON, March 3.—(AP)—King George V. will hold royal courts at Buckingham palace May 11, 12, 17, and 18, and June 23, it was announced officially today. Names of Americans to be presented probably will be made public next month. So many wanted to be presented this year the number of courts were increased from four to five.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CLASS DAY.

"In passing I stopped to read the corner stone inscription,
AND MOSES SAID
FOR TODAY IS A SABBATH UNTO THE LORD
A. D. 1901
and my thoughts flew back to the day it was laid. You were there, Jim, but you wouldn't remember," smiled Prof. Fordney turning to one of his students in the class room. "You were a tottering tot of two, clinging to Kelley's neck, who in those days was just a flat foot and constantly chided me about wanting to be a criminologist!

"Samuel Rosenmann was with us, we three had been pals since grade school. How little did any of us realize, that day, what our futures would be! Kelley, inspector of police, Rosenmann, rabbi of that very temple, which by the way is still considered one of the finest in the city, and me—a criminologist, teaching you young fellows the science of crime detection!

"It has been several years since I heard Rosenmann speak. I must attend one of his services in the near future. But, reminiscing will not get on with our day's work.

"Jim, I want you to briefly sum up the important facts of Col. Goddard's last lecture on bullet identification."

"Why . . . why . . . I haven't had a chance to study my notes, professor. I thought you'd give us a few more days on that. However, you didn't catch me off guard with your reminiscence. I've learned your stories always carry a point."

Field Museum Announces Lecture Tours for Week

Next week's guide lecture tours at the Field museum will begin Monday at 3 p. m. The subject will be "Fishes, Past and Present." On other days at the same hour subjects will be: Tuesday, "Minerals"; Wednesday, "Makers of Totem Poles"; Thursday, general tour of anthropological, botanical, geological, and zoölogical subjects; and Friday, "China and Its Art." Parties assemble inside the north entrance.

Impossible to Hasten Child's Development

Parent Can Only Do His Best, Then Wait.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

One of the hardest worked pieces of advice given to parents these days is: "teach your children to have a sense of responsibility."

It is also one that I think causes parents a great deal of unnecessary worry.

"Jim does the things I ask him to," said a father one day a year or so ago, "but he doesn't seem to have any sense of responsibility about them. If he sees a fence that needs fixing he won't feel it's up to him to mend it. Of course, if I say, 'how about jacking up those cedar supports, old man,' he will do it willingly. But I'm worried. He's 15 now and he ought to be getting some sense of responsibility."

Then, one day this winter I ran into the same man and we got talking about children.

"O, by the way," he said, "do you remember my moaning to you about Jim's irresponsibility the summer before last? Well, he's surprised me. We went up to the farm for his two weeks' Christmas vacation. And you should have seen him! He not only saw things that needed to be done, but he did them. All that worry for nothing! I suppose it's all just a matter of time till they grow up. It takes some longer than others."

That's true—perhaps too true, some of us can't help feeling. I believe we do too much worrying for fear our children won't develop all the traits and qualities we want them to have as adults. If they're normal children, normally loved and fairly well reared, they'll grow up. What we need is to give them time and to have a little more faith.

We can't force their development. We mustn't. If it seems slow in some particular that we especially care about, we must remember all boys and girls don't mature at the same speed. One, for instance, may be most highly developed mentally, but emotionally immature—up to a lot of childish seeming nonsense and irresponsible antics in school and at home when he's perhaps 12. Two years later his emotional development will have caught up with his mental and you will find an even, well balanced 14 year old.

Our cue is to do our part to the very limit of our ability, intelligence, and affection—then have faith and wait for nature to do the rest. We can't do it all. Time, alas, turns our boys into men and our girls into women—and mostly into pretty nice ones, too, I think.

Art Institute Announces Decoration Competition

The Art institute announces a competition for the decoration of the Michigan avenue façade of the Museum building. The decoration, comprising flags, pennons, and lettered signs will be used during A Century of Progress. Designs 20x30 inches in size must be drawn to scale in color. They must show the complete Michigan avenue façade of the Art institute with full decorative treatment, together with detail drawings of lettering and flags. The following lettering must be used: The Art institute of Chicago. Official art exhibition. A Century of Progress exposition. Three prizes of $125, $50, and $25 are offered by Chauncey McCormick, vice president of the Art institute and chairman of the committee on A Century of Progress exposition.

Miss Leonard Ill; Cancel Performance of 'Katinka'

The performance of the operetta, "Katinka," scheduled for last night in the Civic Opera house, was canceled late yesterday by Herbert M. Johnson, president of the Chicago Municipal Operetta association, after physicians announced that Miss Electa Leonard, soprano in the title rôle, was too ill to appear. Mr. Johnson quoted the physicians as saying that Miss Leonard might be able to appear tonight.

Worth Evening Ensemble Liked by Parisiennes

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The Worth evening gown and cape costume sketched today is the most popular model of this house, the one chosen most often by fashionable Parisiennes. The Duchesse de Nemours wears it, and so does Comtesse Elie de Ganay. The costume represents the kind of clothes simplicity that the smartest women prefer.

A charming feature of this outfit is its accessory jewels, that are unusual. Three white gold rings are strung on each shoulder strap in front and four white gold bracelets go on the left arm.

Bryson Loses His British Suit Over Film Dismissal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 3.—Lord Chief Justice Hewart today decided against James Van Bibber Bryson in his suit for nearly $20,000 against Universal Pictures, Ltd., charging wrongful dismissal as managing director of the company. Most of the costs were awarded to the company.

Husband Uses Times as Alibi for Bad Nature

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Not all in-law complications are created by the in-laws. There are simple cases of individual "orneriness." We have reason to believe that more than one husband is using the economic condition of the moment to alibi his own bad nature.

To cite one instance: "Leona" and her "Jack" were married four years ago and have lived with her family since the day of their marriage. "Jack" did not have the money at the time of his marriage to set up housekeeping. In fact, he was heavily in debt. Not until after marriage did "Leona" learn of the debts. She immediately set about making these good.

A year ago "Jack" lost his job. "Leona" has kept on at hers, and is trying her best to buy clothes for her husband and provide him with a little spending money after paying their board and room.

Not until his job was gone did Jack begin to complain about staying with Leona's folk. They have been wonderful even he will admit. But now, jobless, the man wants a flat of his own. He doesn't realize how many things would have to be bought.

"The little money we have saved," Leona explains, "wouldn't buy much. At best it would only be a small down payment. I tried to tell him my job is so uncertain I do not dare take the chance."

Leona suggested getting a furnished apartment, but that idea was not good enough for the man. Leona realizes that getting a job these days is terribly difficult—but she does resent the man's airs when he never steps out of the house to look for one. That's what we mean by accusing certain men of taking advantage of the present day job crisis to expose their worst side.

32 FIGHTERS, 8 GOLDEN GLOVES; WHO WILL WIN?

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Thirty-two amateur boxers, the best group that ever has competed in the finals of a Golden Gloves tournament, are preparing for the finals of the 1933 campaign at the Stadium Wednesday night. These lads, four in each weight division, will begin action at 8 o'clock. Three hours later the eight champions will be crowned, winners in a record field of 5,000, which two months ago started competition in 24 cities in seven states.

These 32 boxers will weigh in and pass their physical examinations between 2 and 6 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon at the Stadium. Pairings will be made by lot shortly before the opening of the show. Thirteen of the cities participating in the sixth annual Golden Gloves tournament still have a total of 19 boys in the finals.

Peoria C. Y. O. Lead.

Peoria, Ill. and Chicago's Catholic Youth Organization's championship team lead with three each. Four cities will send two boys each to the finals. The others are individual qualifiers from out of town and from C. Y. O. boxing clubs and unattached entries who fought through Chicago's sectional tournaments.

Six ounce gloves will be used in the flyweight, bantamweight and featherweight classes. Eight ounce gloves, which were ordered for all bouts in the Tournament of Champions, will be used by the boys in the other weights. The other tournament rules, including the one pound weight allowance for each division, will be the same as during the sectionals and the Stadium tournament just concluded.

Big Cut in Prices.

Prices for the finals have been reduced drastically. The scale runs 75 cents, $1.50 and $2.20 for ringside and center mezzanine seats, a reduction of approximately 30 per cent over the 1932 finals.

Immediately after the finals Wednesday the intercity squad of 24 boys will be named. The eight champions, of course, are certain to be included. They will fight the Golden Gloves champions of New York in the sixth of the intercity series which will be held March 29 at the Stadium. Sixteen bouts will be fought. Eight other boys of Chicago's intercity squad will be named for these and their selection will be based entirely on the results of their training period which will begin March 12 at the Illinois Athletic club.

The finals of New York's Golden Gloves tournament, which is sponsored by the New York News, will be held March 13 in Madison Square Garden.

Pick 24 Best Boys.

Chicago's intercity squad, in addition to the eight champions, will include eight runners-up to the champions unless in the opinion of officials boys defeated in the semi-finals by the champions are far superior. There will be eight others chosen as alternates. These may come from the tournament Wednesday or from the Tournament of Champions, since the champions may have eliminated boxers who, if they had not had the misfortune to draw the champions, would have gone on to the finals.

These restrictions on selection of the intercity team are designed to permit the choice of the 24 best boys. Weight also will be considered. Some of the contestants have reduced several pounds in order to fight in the weight class of their choice. If the officials believe that these boys will have difficulty reaching these weights for the New York fights, or that in making weight the boxers will not be at their most effective form, others may receive consideration.

Chicago's Greatest Team.

Chicago will be represented by its greatest team in the opinion of the officials who saw the entire tournament. In 1931 Chicago scored a record victory over New York, whipping the eastern Golden Gloves champion 13 bouts to 3. That team, on which Leo Rodak, who is one of the remaining four contestants for the 1933 featherweight title, was the 112 pound champion and which included such stars as Nick Scialaba, bantamweight champion; Don Gonzales, 126 pounds; Scotty Sylvano, 135 pounds; George Keenan, 147 pounds; and Fred Casserio, 160 pounds, certainly was a great aggregation of amateur stars. If Chicago can duplicate that team New York well may become anxious over the outcome of the impending intercity fights.

JIM PUTS STOP TO BOUT IN HIS FAVORITE STYLE

McMillen, Steinke Draw.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

James Londos still is in control of at least 51 per cent of the world's wrestling championship, despite the earnest efforts of Joe Stecher, once the main stockholder in the corporation, to persuade him to relinquish it at the Stadium last night.

The venerable Joseph, who held Londos to a draw at the Coliseum six weeks ago, did well for a large part of the entertainment, but his years began to tell on him before an hour was up, and James finally made him hold still with a series of body slams and a reverse head lock in 59 minutes and 9 seconds.

The ageing Nebraskan, who has held the title three times, found that not even his patented scissors hold could daunt Londos.

The boxing impresarios present wept and gnawed at their fingernails when they viewed the large numbers peopling almost all of the red seats in the big house, a fine tribute to Dr. John Krone, the patron saint of Chicago wrestling, who was moved beyond words by the attendance, which was officially 16,820 with receipts of $29,579.

Dig Up Favorite Bouquet.

After the preliminary acts had been disposed of and a hireling had gone to the prop room to dig up the bouquet in use at all of Londos' Chicago bouts for the last year, the curtain rose on the feature number of the evening. In comparison with the lesser acts on the bill, the Londos-Stecher business was heavy drama. Stecher was particularly serious about his work, and Londos, obviously respectful of Joe's deadly scissors, mounted his bicycle early and nearly climbed on Referee Emil Thiry's shoulders once to escape it. Stecher finally caught up to the champion and twined his legs around Jim while kneading the latter's jowls with his knuckles for nearly fifteen minutes.

Londos eventually squirmed out of this at about the thirty minute mark and gave Stecher a bit of agony himself with an armlock. The Nebraskan repaid him plenty with a split hold which caused James no end of pain.

Tries to Entrap Londos.

Stecher began to develop a fondness for the corners after fifty minutes, with the idea of luring Londos into another scissors hold, but James didn't like the idea and surprised all present by getting that grip on Stecher himself and applying it so strenuously that it appeared the match was over.

They did a polka along the ropes after Joe finally freed himself, and Londos once more found the Nebraskan's legs wound around his withers, a situation which endured for five minutes. Then Jim found the key to the puzzle and came out of it to repay Stecher for his split hold earlier in the performance.

Within 57 minutes of the allotted time consummated, the boys lightened the burden of the script with a few comedy lines. These included the hurling of Stecher into the laps of the commission and the subsequent pursuit of Londos around the ring for about five furlongs. Then came the curtain with all of the old Londos flourish.

Signal for First Number.

It was 8:20 o'clock when the clang of steel bars and an ominous rumbling emanated from the nether regions of the building, indicating that the first twosome of the evening's herd had been released from the cages below.

This number was composed of Jack Smith of Chicago and Lou Plummer of Waukegan and was a decided triumph for clean play and sportsmanship. The crowd howled its approval when Smith overcame Plummer with a series of headlocks and a flying mare in 10 minutes and 59 seconds.

Jim McMillen, the old Illinois football player, and Hans Steinke, the original German oak, lumbered up for the second skit on the bill, but arrived at no decision, Referee Manngoff finally calling it even after 20 minutes.

Savoldi Scores Touchdown.

After trailing for three quarters, Joe Savoldi, the people's choice of Three Oaks, Mich., who used to lug a football for Notre Dame, rallied and scored four touchdowns in the last period to defeat Joe Cox of Cleveland with a body slam formation in 16:46.

The shortest priced favorite on the program went to the post when Abe Coleman, the Bronx chimpanzee, waddled into the ring. The railbirds took tickets on Abe, not because of any especial information on him, but because they did not like his opponent, George Zaharias of Colorado.

It was this performance which gave the ringside customers their money's worth, for only they could glimpse the touch that is Zaharias, which makes him the foremost ham of the grappling art. Coleman proved to be no slouch at crying himself, and finally earned a dead heat in 30 minutes, a new track record for a match race with Zaharias.

Ray Steele, one of the troupers of the Londos stock company, and Pat O'Shocker, who wasn't even playing butlers in the grunting guild's production of two years ago, but has since risen to some fairly fat parts, appeared in what was called the semi-windup. Steele finally brought down the house and O'Shocker with a reverse body lock in 19:55.

Giants Cross Channel Today to Play Cubs and Eat Steak

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 3.—Flags are waving from every one of Avalon's thousand staffs and Mr. Roosevelt can make off like it's in honor of his inauguration if he wants to. As a matter of fact, however, the gala setting is due to the fact that the New York Giants will arrive at noon tomorrow for two William Wrigley Jr. memorial games with the Cubs, the first of which will start at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The Giants' entourage will include 54 persons. Boat reservations indicate that this party will be augmented by 2,500 persons tomorrow and as many more Sunday. No admission will be charged at the memorial games and an overflow gathering of from 4,000 to 6,000 is anticipated. The fans will be afforded the usual attractions of Catallan island, but a definite program has been planned for the 54 members of the Giant party and the 75 persons who form the Cub group.

Arrangements have been made to entertain 50 nonathletic baseball folk at a beefsteak barbecue at P. K. Wrigley's Rancho Escondido. This will not be a prolonged affair, however, for at 10 o'clock tomorrow night Kiki Cuyler, Catalina 1932 waltz champion, will seek to defend his crown against all comers.

Champ's in the Pink.

The champion has completely recovered from the rigors of four days of spirit muscle stretching and gave out the following statement today:

"I never felt looser or more rhythmic. There are some good boys on both the Cubs and Giants, and I understand that the New York writers have a dark horse glider. I figure my stamina, as well as grace, will break down all opposition in the elimination trials and fully expect to retain the crown."

No camp game was played today, the theory being that it was proper to rest a bit for the Giant game tomorrow. But the lads got little rest, for Manager Grimm put them through the most arduous batting practice of the year.

Toil for Three Hours.

After yesterday's game, in which the Regulars were held to one hit in the first six innings, Boss Grimm was unable to decide whether to be happy about the opposition pitching or sad about the regular hitting. He compromised by making the pitchers and the batters work for three hours.

The drill today caused Grimm tentatively to go back to his original plans for tomorrow's pitching. Unless Charley exercises his prerogative to change his mind daily or oftener, he will open tomorrow with Malone, follow with Leroy Herrmann, and finish with Roy Henshaw. The Cubs are anxious to win all the Giant games and if the score is close at the end of six innings, Henshaw, late of the University of Chicago, may not have his big moment until he has absorbed a little more major league atmosphere.

The regular lineup, with the possible exception of Grimm at first, will start. Jurges will share the shortstop labor with Koenig and Campbell will relieve Gabby Hartnett. Other replacements are probable if the contest becomes lopsided, but otherwise the Cubs will keep their best boys in there battling all the way, according to present plans.

FACE GIANTS

PAT MALONE LEROY HERRMANN

TERRY NAMES TEAM

Los Angeles, Cal., March 3.—[Special.]—Manager Bill Terry today put the finishing touches to the hurry up job of preparing his New York Giants for the opening exhibition game of the season against the Cubs on Catalina island tomorrow. Terry arranged a lineup which, barring mishaps or unforeseen developments, may be the one that will take the field when the championship season gets under way. The battle front for tomorrow will be: Critz, second base; Davis, center field; Moore, left field; Terry, first base; Ott, right field; Jackson, short stop; Vergez, third base, and Richards, catcher.

Harold Schumacher will draw the opening pitching assignment. Roy Parmelee will follow for the next three innings and Johnny Salveson, former Los Angeles High school star, will finish.

PACK UP YOUR TROUBLES, FANS; LYONS IS READY

Sox Mainstay Zips Over a Few for Batters.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 3.—There's at least one thing the long suffering White Sox fans can dismiss from their many worries. That's Theodore Lyons, one of baseball's leading pitchers. The Vinton, La., bachelor is going to take up just where he quit last fall. That means considerable when you recall that Lyons, even though supported by a bad ball club, was a consistent winner.

Lyons relieved the minds of Manager Lew Fonseca and a few others today when he stepped forth voluntarily and devoted about 15 minutes to pitching to hitters. He's on his own training program, so when Ted said he was going to work Fonseca offered no objections. The knuckle ball expert wasn't trying any of his favorite tricks, but he threw well enough to reveal that his arm was as loose as a politician's promise.

It's All Very Promising.

It will be remembered that a year ago at this time Lyons was a real problem and he continued to be such until the flag campaign was about half elapsed. Due to an arm injury caused by a base running accident Lyons didn't throw a ball during the 1932 training season. In fact he couldn't.

Fonseca, accordingly, tendered him rights to take his own time about recovering. It was almost July before the noted bachelor recovered his skill. Hence it is simple to realize that there appears to be no possibility of the 1932 situation. Lyons' absence last season undoubtedly cost the Sox about five victories. As it was, he won ten games after the race was half run.

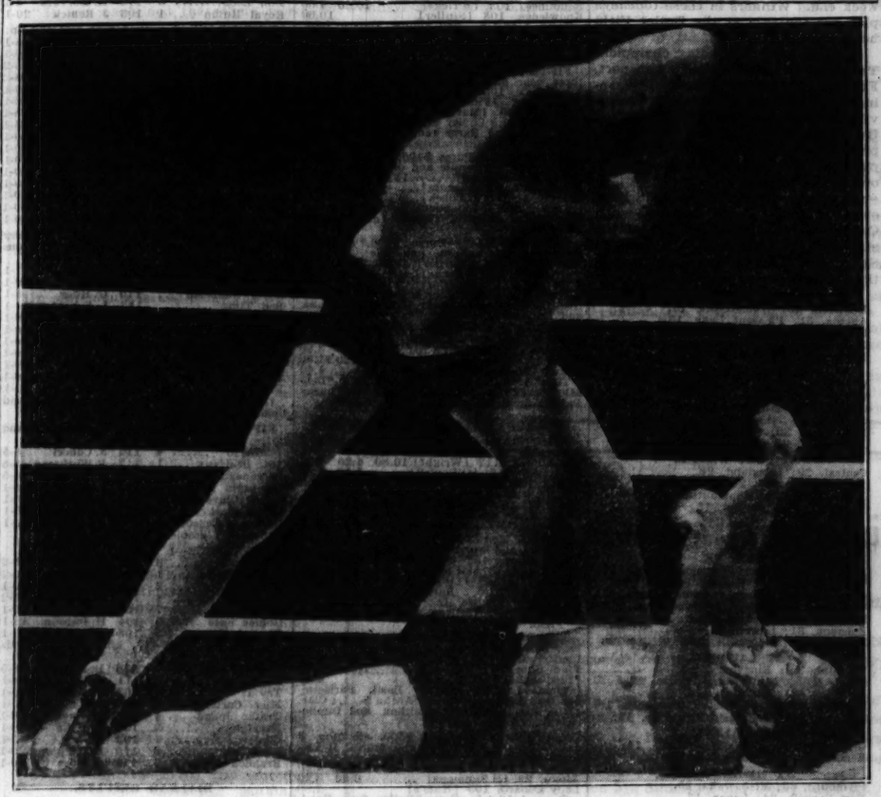
The drill today, conducted under the best sun that has beamed down on the athletes since their arrival, was missed by Jimmy Dykes, the former Mackman. Yesterday Dykes underwent the removal of two teeth. Today his mouth was so sore he asked for a vacation. Instead of his drill on the ball field Jimmy took a Turkish bath so that there would be no break in the process of reducing.

Cancel Infield Drill.

With Dykes unavailable at third base, Fonseca decided to abandon the customary infield practice. Shortstop Luke Appling welcomed this relief because he has a sore toe. He stepped on his own foot. Luke denies it happened during a rush to the dining room. Jack Hayes, the second baseman, also was pleased over cancellation of the infield drill. His legs still are wobbly as the result of too much enthusiasm the first two days. The only member of the inner quartet who had no physical complaints was First Baseman Fonseca, who is old enough to be entitled to some leeway.

During the batting exercises today George Murray, a pudgy right hander from the Dallas club, gave the hitters their first glimpse of a few curves. This exhibition wasn't expected, because Murray by his round shape gave the appearance of one who had been loafing all winter. Now that he has shown something, Fonseca intends to let him put on a show daily. He won 23 games while losing 13 last season, and that indicates he is a horse for work. But whether he is a major leaguer is problematical.

THE GREEKS HAD A WORD FOR IT



Joe Stecher puts a split on Jim Londos, favorite son of Greece, early in their wrestling match last night at the Stadium. Can't you tell by Jim's expression that he intends to get even? He did in 59 minutes and 9 seconds by pinning the veteran Nebraskan with all the flourish that the crowd of 16,800 could expect.

Reiff Seeks to Set Big 10 Mark Tonight

TONIGHT.
Northwestern at Minnesota.
Wisconsin at Ohio State [afternoon].
Chicago at Purdue.
Iowa at Illinois.
Indiana at Michigan.

All members of the Western conference will make the turn into the stretch tonight in the Big Ten basketball championship race. Monday the wire will be reached and the battle over with three games winding up the 1933 schedule.

Interest in tonight's games as far as the final standing is concerned revolves around the result of the Ohio State-Wisconsin battle at Columbus, where the Buckeyes, leaders of the conference, will be seeking their tenth victory, but more importance probably attaches to the efforts of Joe Reiff, captain and forward of the Northwestern quintet, to set a new conference scoring record. Reiff already has scored 147 points in 11 conference games and needs only eight more to break the mark of 154 points set by Johnny Wooden, former Purdue star.

Iowa Plays Illinois.

Joe's chances of establishing a new record are considerably enhanced by the fact that Minnesota, which the Wildcats meet at Minneapolis tonight, is in last place with one victory and ten defeats. In their last appearance here, however, the Gophers assigned Bill Farrell to guard Reiff and he restrained the Purple leader to two baskets and three free throws.

Aside from the Northwestern-Minnesota and Ohio-Wisconsin games, tonight's program includes at least one other game, the battle between Illinois and Iowa at Champaign, which may affect the final standings. Iowa is in third place with eight victories and three defeats and holds the distinction of being the only team to conquer Ohio State.

Other games tonight bring together the hapless Maroons, who have won only one game out of ten, and the ex-champion Purdue team at Lafayette, while Indiana invades Ann Arbor to play the fourth place Michigan team.

Purple Depend on Badgers.

Northwestern's hopes of winning the championship, although they are slim, depend on the outcome of Ohio's game against Wisconsin today and at Indiana Monday. The Buckeyes have won nine and lost one thus far, and a defeat by the Badgers or Hoosiers in their remaining games would leave them tied for the title with Northwestern.

Stagg to Take College of Pacific to Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., March 3.—[Special.]—A. A. Stagg, former University of Chicago coach and recently appointed coach at the College of the Pacific, will bring his new team to Los Angeles Nov. 24 to meet Loyola university. Loyola is coached by Tom Lieb of Notre Dame. It will be Stagg's big game of the season, and will mark the first appearance of the Stockton denominational school in the major sports arenas of Los Angeles.

Records Fall in All Events of State Swim

New records were established in all events last night as the annual two day competition for the Illinois state swimming championship opened at the Oak Park High school pool. Eighteen teams entered the meet. The finals will be held tonight.

Harry Rieke of Schurz started the assault on the records when he swam the 100 yard backstroke in 1 minute, 2.6 seconds. The former mark was 1:07.2, established by Spry of Evanston last year.

Two members of the Rockford team, Walters and Ogilby, shattered records. Walters won the 50 yard free style in :25 and Ogilby swam the 200 yard free style in 2:16.

Hickey of Tilden clipped two minutes and one second from the 100 yard free style event when he won the race in :57.5. Summaries:

200 YARD FREE STYLE RELAY—Rockford, Evanston, Oak Park, Tilden, Maine, Roosevelt. Time, 1:43.6. [New record.]

100 YARD BREAST STROKE—Kasby [Oak Park], Altaris [Peoria], Harchke, Roosevelt], Heyn [New Trier], Isaen [Rockford], Wiesnig [Morton]. Time, 1:12. [New record.]

Wesley Ramey Defeats Jadick in 10 Rounds

INDIANA PASSES NEW PARI-MUTUEL BETTING MEASURE

Indianapolis, Ind., March 3.—[Special.]—Legalization of pari-mutuel betting on horse and dog races in Indiana was passed by the legislature tonight. Gov. Paul V. McNutt probably will sign the bill when he returns Monday from the inauguration in Washington.

The bill provides for payment of license fee and also a percentage of all bets to go to the fund established by the recently enacted law which will give $18 monthly old age pensions to citizens 70 or over.

SIGNS WASHINGTON BILL.

Olympia, Wash., March 3.—(AP)—Gov. Clarence D. Martin signed the Roberts horse racing bill today and, as it carries an emergency clause, it becomes effective immediately. The new law legalizes pari-mutuel betting on horse races, forbidden in this state since 1909.

ARMOUR TECH SWIMMERS WIN DUAL MEET, 48-27

The Armour Tech swimming team defeated Milwaukee State Teachers college, 48 to 27, last night in a dual meet at Bartlett gymnasium, on the Midway. Carlstrom and Kolve scored ten points each to lead Armour, which took first place in six of the eight events.

Armour Tech will meet the University of Wisconsin swimmers at Madison, Wis., next Saturday.

WELL, GOLFERS, IT'S TRUE; BALLS DOWN 10 CENTS

Bargains in golf planned recently by the makers of the game's materials became a fact in one important instance yesterday with the announcement by a nationally known sporting goods firm that its prices on golf balls for the 1933 season had been reduced.

The highest grade ball, produced by this firm last year sold for 75 cents. This year it will undergo a ten cent reduction, selling for 65 cents, or two for $1.25.

St. Louis Flyers Defeat Wichita, 5-0; Tie for Lead

In the Home Stretch

A field of thousands cut to thirty-two. The battle for Golden Gloves narrowed down to the four fightin'est boys in each division! And the final exchange of punches coming up!

Finals in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions will be held at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday, March 8. And Chicagoland's boxing fans will want to be there. And here's all you have to do, Mr. Fan, to assure yourself of an evening of fistic thrills:

Just drop in at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, or at Room 530, Tribune Tower. You have your choice of tickets at 75 cents, $1.50, and $2.20, tax included. All seats will be reserved.

LANE ELIMINATES CRANE HEAVIES IN QUARTER FINALS

Whips Defending Prep Champion, 27-14.

Crane Tech, defending Chicago Public High School league heavyweight basketball champion, was eliminated in the quarter-final round last night by Lane Tech, 27 to 14, at Loyola university gymnasium. Lane Tech, north section representative, rallied to take the lead after the first period and at the half held a 14 to 6 advantage.

It was Crane Tech's first defeat in league competition. Crane qualified for the quarter-finals by winning the west section championship with ten consecutive victories. Durds, Danakus and Polachin led Lane's attack, Duros and Danakus each scored six points, while Polachin contributed two field goals and three free throws.

Lake View Whips Harrison.

In another quarter-final game Lake View, also of the north section, defeated Harrison Tech, 29 to 12, at Loyola gynasium. Harrison became eligible for the quarter-final round by winning a playoff for second place in the west division last Thursday.

In two quarter-final games for the league lightweight championship Austin triumphed over Lane Tech, 36 to 34, while Roosevelt won from McKinley, 44 to 21. The lightweight and heavyweight winners will compete in the semi-finals next week.

A triple tie for first place in the north section of the Chicago Catholic High School league was created when St. Michael's lightweights lost to St. George, 33 to 24. It was St. Michael's second defeat and the team now is tied with De Paul and St. George. It was the final sectional game for both St. Michael and St. George.

Final sectional contests also were played in other divisions of the league. Winners and runners-up in the three sections will compete in an elimination series for the league lightweight and heavyweight championships next week.

Evanston Lights Beat Morton.

Evanston's lightweight team, which clinched the Suburban league championship two weeks ago, closed its schedule with a 41 to 30 victory over Morton at Cicero. It was Evanston's tenth consecutive victory.

771 Prep Fives Open Indiana State Tourney

Indianapolis, March 3.—(AP)—A full day's play in 64 sectional tournament centers failed to unseat any of the favorites in the Indiana High school state basketball meet today.

When the last gun has been fired tomorrow night 717 of the 771 teams originally entered will have been eliminated. The remaining 64 teams meet in 16 regional tournaments next week end. Winners in these tourneys play for the title at the Butler Field house March 17 and 18.

Newcastle, the defending champion, Technical of Indianapolis, Logansport, Froebel of Gary, Martinsville, Washington, Vincennes, Central of Evansville, Muncie, Shelbyville, Columbus, Rushville, Kokomo, and Frankfort, pre-tourney favorites, survived today's play and are expected to meet little opposition tomorrow.

An outstanding sectional fight, however, is expected to develop when Columbus and Shelbyville, two of the strongest teams in the state, meet at Shelbyville. Scores of northern sectional meets today were:

MAROONS MEET PURPLE TRACK TEAM TONIGHT

Chicago and Northwestern track teams will have their final competitive workouts preparatory to the Big Ten meet at the Midway next Saturday in a dual meet at the University of Chicago fieldhouse tonight. Iowa's squad was to have faced the Maroons tonight, but the Hawkeyes decided that their budget couldn't stand the trip and Northwestern agreed to substitute.

Neither of the local teams is expected to create much excitement in the conference meet, but Chicago, on the strength of its victory in the recent quadrangular meet, should romp off with tonight's engagement. Northwestern has the edge in the high jump and can take points in the hurdles and shorter races, but the Maroons have greater general strength and should dominate the longer runs. Jerry Jontry, Maroon 440 man, was declared eligible last week and will add strength to the south sider cause.

Two relays, at the half and three-quarter mile distances, have been substituted for the one mile relay on tonight's program.

MORAN DEFEATS PAUL IN 6 ROUND CICERO WINDUP

STOCKS SOAR ON RUMORS OF U. S. AID FOR BANKS

Inflation Talk Brings Buying Wave.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 3.—[Special.]—Stocks surged forward 1 to 3 points today on reports from Washington that the United States government was preparing to take forehanded measures to deal with the widespread bank difficulties now tying up business throughout the country.

One widely accepted account insisted that the emergency program being drafted would involve currency inflation on a considerable scale.

Brokerage house commentators said that a growing belief that inflation in some measure is near at hand, was probably as much responsible as any thing else for the sudden switch of speculative sentiment to the buying side. "Revaluation" of the dollar on the up side would, it is argued, put equities in position to command a premium—whatever might be its later and more lasting effect not only on the market but on general business.

Shorts Driven to Cover.

The overnight news of further credit expansion, currency increase and a jumping up of the rediscount rate found the market pretty well sold out and therefore ripe for a rally. During the first half hour a whirlwind of rumors came along to boost the bull cause, and nervous shorts set about to cover their obligations, some of which were reported to have been the heaviest in months.

By mid-morning the drive was in full swing, with values soaring as much as 5 points above their previous close and the ticker thumping along at a pace not witnessed since last November. Stiff premiums were quoted on some of the issues most eagerly sought after, that on Allied Chemical, for instance, being set at $10. The demand centered in speculative favorites in which the largest short interest had been built up—presumably in stocks such as Chemical, United States Steel, American Can, Auburn, and the like.

Industrial Leaders Set Pace.

Allied Chemical jumped from an opening price of 37¾ to a high of 79½ before the shorts cornered within its confines could get their feet on the ground. In the later trading, this issue eased off a bit, closing at 77½, up 3 points on the day. American Can rose to 55⅝ and then eased to 54¾, up 2⅜, and American Telephone, after opening at 95⅝, went soaring across par for the first time in a week or so reaching 101½, but only to fall back to 99⅞, up 2 points. United States Steel touched 28 at one time, but finished at 26¼, up 1⅜ points on the day.

The chart lines followed a similar course for the remainder of the list. Closing prices were generally somewhat lower than the peaks for the session, but the net gains were among the best of any session of the year so far, and the bull element went home in a more cheerful mood than it has in many a day.

Volume at about 1,500,000 shares was the heaviest in about three months.

All Groups Join Advance.

No one group stood out in the day's dealings. The tobaccos fared about as well as any, with American Tobacco and Liggett & Myers issues moving up 2 to 4 points.

The rails had another of their good days, with Atchison, Union Pacific, and other trading favorites advancing 1 to 2 points or more. The bankruptcy legislation, which is counted upon to save some of the roads from threatening receiverships, is putting the carriers in a more favorable light to the rank and file.

Investors in some of the favorite mining stocks again had to reach for their shares. Homestake continuing its romp with a further gain of 2% points.

Some of the motor stocks did well and the oils more than held their own.

BANK HOLIDAYS AND HOW THEY AFFECT STATES

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Alabama—After a one-day holiday, banks reopened yesterday on a 5 per cent restricted withdrawal basis order until March 10. Business normal in some localities.

Arizona—Virtually all banks closed, although at least two institutions disregarded orders for a mandatory moratorium until March 6.

Arkansas—Withdrawals limited to five per cent for an indefinite period. No bank closed and many unaffected by holiday order.

California — Virtually all banks ordered closed until March 7 under total restrictions. San Francisco and Los Angeles stock exchanges closed.

Colorado—Banks at Grand Junction and Grand Valley closed.

Kansas — Effective Saturday, all banks were ordered by the governor to place a five per cent limitation on withdrawals until further notice.

Maryland—Banks have been closed under a general holiday extended day to day.

Michigan—The original state to declare emergency measures. Except on the upper peninsula, where banks are open, most of the banks are under five per cent restriction.

Missouri—Gov. Guy B. Park early today declared a two day business day banking holiday effective at once.

Nevada—Banks closed until March 8, pending emergency legislation for limited withdrawals. Courts, schools and public offices also closed.

New Jersey—Only a few banks have taken advantage of authorization to limit withdrawals. None closed.

New Mexico—An optional moratorium until March 8 was declared but many banks did normal business.

New York—A bank moratorium for today and Monday was declared early this morning.

North Carolina—Limitation of five per cent was placed on 15 branches of North Carolina Bank and Trust company, under emergency legislation, but officials declared they would not proclaim a moratorium.

Ohio — Five per cent limitation mostly in effect at 500 of 800 banks which are in restricted operation indefinitely under emergency laws.

Oklahoma—The holiday under which most banks have closed was extended until next Wednesday by the governor. Legislation was being expedited for limited withdrawals.

Utah — Most banks closed until March 8.

Wyoming—Governor issues mandatory order to banks to restrict withdrawals to 5 per cent for indefinite period.

Money Rates Continue Rise; Call Loans Reach 5 Per Cent

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 3.—The money squeeze was tighter today than at any time since moratoria were placed on bank deposits. The official renewal rate on call loans was raised to 3½ per cent, but no money was available at less than 4 per cent, with the banks virtually out of the market.

About half an hour before the closing of the stock market the official rate was raised to 4 per cent; outside funds were then quoted at 5 per cent.

Bankers' bill rates were raised to 3½ per cent bid on short maturities.

The clearing house banks advanced the rates they will pay on deposits of banks, trust companies, and private bankers from ¼ of 1 per cent to 1 per cent.

Deposit Rates Doubled.

The latter rates will take effect on Monday. Rates paid to mutual savings banks will be doubled, or from ½ of 1 per cent to 1, and those to other than those two classes are raised from ¼ to 1 per cent. Rates on the deposits, payable after ninety days, were advanced from ½ to 1½ per cent.

The purpose is, of course, to attract additional deposits, which are being reduced by bank withdrawals from other districts, and to keep in line with advancing rates in the open market. The rates had been reduced to ¼ of 1 per cent on Jan. 25.

Loans were called heavily by the banks and money brokers found themselves temporarily pressed with demands and funds suddenly almost dried up. They bid the outside rate up to 4 per cent, compared with 3 yesterday, and reported great difficulty in getting money at that rate.

All money rates here were jumped from 1 to 1¼ per cent overnight by the reserve bank and the dealers in bankers' acceptances, to meet the strain imposed upon the banks by an immense increase of $732,000,000 in the volume of money in circulation and decrease of $226,310,000 in the gold holdings of the reserve banking system.

Dealers in bills put into effect this morning an advance of 1¼ in their discounts on bankers' bills, which had been decided upon late yesterday immediately after the Federal Reserve bank raised its rediscount rate from 2½ to 3½ per cent. New discount rates are 3½ per cent bid and 3⅝ per cent asked for ninety day maturities and shorter, 3¾ at 3⅝ per cent for 120 days and 4 at 3⅞ for five and six months.

This carries the bill rates to the highest peak they reached in the "run of the dollar" in the autumn of 1931, except for one week in November, 1931, when they touched 3¾ per cent for the ninety day maturities.

Dealers reported that about the only money available in the open market today was that supplied by the Federal Reserve bank. That bank was taking bankers' acceptances from the market and the bank at 3¼ per cent, or just under the asking discounts of the bill dealers.

Philadelphia Raises Rates.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 3.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Clearing House association today announced increases of from ½ to 1 per cent in interest rates on deposits. On time certificates of deposit and time deposits, payable on 30 days' notice or longer, the new rate is not to exceed 2 per cent. The present rate is 1 per cent.

CHICAGO RESERVE RATE UP.

Following the action taken in New York on Thursday, the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago yesterday established a rediscount rate of 3½ per cent on all classes of paper of all maturities effective today.

The Chicago banks yesterday had not followed the example of the members of the New York clearing house banks in advancing interest rates on deposits of outside banks from ¼ to 1 per cent. The rates in Chicago are still ¼ of 1 per cent for demand deposits and ½ of 1 per cent on deposits of 30 days or longer.

City Spending Behind Detroit Bank Troubles

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., March 3.—The collapse of the Detroit banks is due in large part to the financial collapse of the city government, which has indulged in wildcat financing the last three years of the administration of Mayor Frank Murphy. During these years the budget laws of the state of Michigan have been ignored until, in the present fiscal year, ending next June, the city will face a deficit in operating costs of $22,000,000.

That is the estimate provided by the Detroit bureau of governmental research, in a recent financial statement.

The tax delinquency problem began to make itself felt in Detroit in 1929. It was ignored entirely in the preparation of the city budget for 1930-1931. Real estate values were crashing, but in that year the city boosted assessed valuations from $3,681,781,130 to $3,774,861,100. It was not until 1931 that the Murphy administration took cognizance of the dropping values.

City Loans Freeze in Banks.

These high valuations, with consequent inability of people to pay taxes, has resulted in the freezing of more than $180,000,000 in mortgage obligations to the city's banks. Other frozen assets include $11,000,000 loaned by the banks to the city, the legal limit they could lend. But banks also induced manufacturers to lend an additional $8,000,000, and this accounts for some additional frozen assets, as banks have carried the manufacturers.

The Murphy administration has been properly termed the "dew and sunshine" administration, because of the mayor's ability as an orator. He was elected mayor in a hectic campaign in September, 1930, which followed a recall election. His pledge to the people was that he would not permit further bond issues and that taxes would be lowered.

Mayor Murphy took office Sept. 22, 1930, and by the end of the year had increased the city's bonded indebtedness by $45,481,000. The depression was then in its second year. In the following year of 1931 the pledge not to borrow further funds had been forgotten and the "dew and sunshine" administration issued $49,337,000 more bonds. By 1932 the city's credit had been destroyed and only $5,499,000 could be raised by bond issue.

Owes 43 Millions in Notes.

Short term financing had then been determined, and at one time during the last year the city owed $61,000,000 in short term notes to New York, Chicago, and Detroit banks. Today the city owes $43,000,000 in these notes.

The Murphy administration of the city's affairs has been marked by deficits in the annual budget. In the first nine months of Murphy's incumbency of the mayor's office a deficit of $14,000,000 for unemployment relief alone was piled up. Welfare expenditures were not curtailed until after the present chief executive had been reëlected. His votes came largely from the 48,000 families which were at that time upon public welfare.

City bonds and city short term notes comprise a heavy percentage of the frozen assets which contribute to the collapse of Detroit banks and forced the holiday which has swept the nation.

Since 1920 the debt of the city in bond issues alone has increased by $382,925,000.

W. J. Cummings Heads Electric Rail Securities

Walter J. Cummings of Chicago yesterday was elected president of the Electric Railway Equipment Securities corporation, succeeding William H. Woodin, the new secretary of the treasury. Mr. Cummings also becomes chairman of the executive committee of the corporation. He also succeeds Mr. Woodin on the executive committee of the Brill corporation and the American Car and Foundry Motors company.

N. Y. PAYS LESS THAN CHICAGO FOR CIGARETS

'Big Four' Brands Are Two Cents Cheaper.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 3.—The cigaret smoker in New York is faring better in the current price cutting campaign than the man or woman in Chicago and other midwest centers, a survey today revealed.

Any of the "big four" brands—Chesterfield, Lucky Strike, Camel and Old Gold—may be bought in New York for 11 cents a package, or two packages for 21 cents.

The above prices compare with 13 cents a package, or two for 25 cents, now being asked by many of the stores in Chicago.

The New York smoker thus obtained the benefit of the slash in wholesale prices made by the big tobacco companies.

The reduction in package price has greatly stimulated demand, dealers say.

NATION'S GOLD STOCKS DECLINE $116,439,600 IN DAY

New York, March 3.—(AP)—Today's gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank, covering transactions to 3 p. m. today, showed a reduction of $116,439,600 in the country's stocks of the metal.

This was the largest decrease in a single day since the autumn of 1931, when there were several heavy reductions after England's departure from the gold standard.

Gold placed under earmark totaled $109,700,000. This exceeded the previous record for any one day, which was $105,700,000 on Sept. 21, 1931—the day Great Britain went off the gold standard. Exports embraced $3,959,700 to Holland, $2,119,700 to France, $650,000 to Switzerland, and $10,200 to Mexico. There were no imports.

The movement of the foreign exchanges reflected Europe's reaction to the $732,000,000 rise in circulation and the $226,000,000 fall in gold reserves reported in the week's federal reserve report. Although sterling, which late on Thursday had broken away from the official control and rushed up 5½ cents, was again brought under the influence of the authorities, the four gold standard currencies rose to the highest prices in terms of the dollar since the fall of 1931.

Francs rose to 3.96⅝ cents, up 1 11-16 points, and closed at 3.96½ cents. Guilders were up 11 points to 40.60 cents; Swiss francs advanced 13½ points to 19.69 cents, and the belga reached the highest price in the history of the present currency at 14.11 cents, up 3 points. At these levels the exchanges of France, Holland, Switzerland, and Belgium were far above the export gold points.

COUZENS SEES DETROIT BANKS RESUMING SOON

New Law Will Free Part of Deposits.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., March 3.—Satisfied that long strides had been taken toward a satisfactory settlement of the banking conditions throughout Michigan, and especially in Detroit, Senator James Couzens, who came to his home city Wednesday morning to lend his assistance, returned to Washington, D. C., this evening.

He said that as soon as the necessary legislation is passed at Lansing as outlined in statements by the First National Bank of Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, those groups will be privileged to reopen and allow depositors to withdraw a "safe" percentage of their funds.

Detroit Banks Assured Loans.

"It was explained that there were no other requirements to be exacted from Detroit; that Detroit banks could receive their loans, and that there was no mandate that new banks be organized," Senator Couzens added.

"However, I must emphasize at this point that it is wholly in the hands of the comptroller of the currency whether he is satisfied that any national bank anywhere shall be permitted to keep open.

"From the morning statements of both the large Detroit national groups it appears that they have agreed on a uniform policy of continuing the old banks and have also agreed with upstate banks on needed legislation."

In statements issued today the First National bank and Guardian National group announced their readiness to resume banking operations the moment the enabling legislation is passed by the state legislature, and when authorization has been received by the comptroller of the currency.

Banks Explain Situation.

"Right now the answer to the banking problem of the state of Michigan, including the city of Detroit, lies in the hands of the legislature," the First National bank statement reads. The statement of the Guardian bank said the directors were taking action to make available a further percentage of deposits as soon as such action could be authorized.

Both statements carried the announcement that plans for the organization of two new banks, with capital furnished by Henry and Edsel Ford, have been abandoned entirely. The Ford plan, submitted last Sunday night, was to furnish $8,250,000 capital for the two new banks.

House Passes New Law.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the house of representatives passed and sent to the senate the emergency banking bill without a dissenting vote. It will probably be passed by the senate next Monday night upon convening following the week-end holiday.,

In effect the new law will restrict withdrawals from banks on the basis of liquid assets; "freeze" slow moving assets, and permit the bank commissioner to issue stock certificates for deposits held back by these slow assets.

Final passage of the bill, with its signing by Gov. William A. Comstock, will not be possible until next Friday, as final passage is not possible until five days have passed.

In the meantime, release of more money to depositors was discussed today at a conference of four prominent banking executives. A proposal to increase the withdrawal allowance came from the Guardian National Bank of Commerce. No detailed statement was made after the meeting adjourned, further than to state that another conference would be held either tonight or early Saturday morning; that it was the desire of both banks to pay an additional percentage of depositors' balances in the very near future and that whatever plan is finally adopted will be selected with that object in view.

Canadian Bank Deposits Gain.

While Detroit banks were straightening out their financial difficulties, bank officials in the Canadian border cities across the river admitted today that the delay had already resulted in a "substantial increase" in their banking activities. New accounts, they said, have increased in various Canadian banks from 200 to 400 per cent since the Michigan banking holiday was declared on Feb. 14.

American depositors have two options when opening Canadian accounts with American funds. They may deposit American money and withdraw American money, or deposit American funds and be credited with Canadian funds. For every dollar deposited yesterday under the latter option, the depositor was credited with $1.18½ Canadian money. The ratio varies with the exchange.

States and Cities Plan Use of Scrip as Emergency Cash

Columbus, O., March 3.—(AP)—Issuance of state scrip and creation of a state bank advisory committee to counsel the superintendent of banks probably will be proposed to the Ohio general assembly next week.

Attorney General John W. Bricker is drafting a bill to legalize such scrip at the request of the state director of finance, state auditor, and state treasurer, and expects to have it ready for presentation to Gov. George White by Tuesday.

Harry S. Day, state treasurer, said the proposed scrip—to be called "bills of exchange" and issued in denominations of $5, $10, and $20—would be redeemed in currency whenever adequate funds become available. The scrip would be used to meet pay rolls and other obligations of the state and could be used, he said, to pay any bills, including state taxes.

Ohio's school boards also are to be offered a plan advanced by their president, E. J. Howenstine of Elyria, to issue scrip against their tied-up funds. This scrip would be issued to school employés in lieu of salary checks, and held until called for liquidation.

Scrip in Pennsylvania.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 3.—(AP)—Scrip money gained attention today in two Pennsylvania cities where banks have exercised emergency authority to limit deposit withdrawals. Williamsport prepared to issue $30,000 of temporary currency. At Warren the chamber of commerce weighed the advisability of the plan.

Lay Plans in Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., March 3.—(AP)—The Nashville Clearing House association announced today that plans are being formulated for issuance of bank certificates to be used as a medium of exchange. They would be in denominations of $1, $5, $10, and $20.

Mississippi Plans Scrip.

Jackson, Miss., March 3.—(AP)—Jackson merchants and bankers today authorized a committee of five to draft plans for issuing and circulating scrip during the current banking emergency.

In most cities merchants were accepting personal checks in exchange for merchandise. Mississippi banks are permitting withdrawals of $25 and 5 per cent of deposits.

West Coast Makes Plans.

San Francisco, Cal., March 3.—(AP)—Financially crippled by bank holidays and deposit withdrawal restrictions, business in eight states of the far west today began developing new mediums of exchange while legislators worked on remedial and control measures.

The use of scrip was considered in Los Angeles, and in San Luis Obispo the merchants adopted a scrip system, backed by cash pooled by business men, to carry on ordinary trade. Some San Francisco Bay commuters paid their fares with checks. Buckeye, Ariz., adopted a scrip plan.

Many California business houses accepted checks for ordinary transactions as long as they did not require money for change. Some business places even offered premiums for the purchase of trade checks or trade scrip with checks on banks.

Texas Bank Plans Scrip.

Dallas, Tex., March 3.—(AP)—Texas merchants hung out their "business as usual" signs today, even though their banks were closed and they were handicapped in making change. Trading throughout the state was facilitated by announcements that business men would accept checks from identified buyers for necessary purchases.

The First State bank at Overton made arrangements to issue $25,000 in $5, $10 and $20 certificates to be used by its patrons. They would be redeemed after the moratorium.

MOVIE COLONY TAKES CASHLESS PLIGHT AS JOKE

Hollywood, Cal., March 3.—(AP)—Some well paid movie stars found themselves little better off than extras in the temporary inconvenience of the state's banking holiday, a checkup at the studios today revealed.

Appreciating the humor of the situation, the colony seemed to make it a matter of pride to be able to relate that one had a bent nickel on hand for the emergency.

U. S. WILL URGE BANKS TO PAY ON DEPOSITS

R. F. C. Is Ready to Lend Part of Funds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 3.—A national program of moral suasion to bring about a greater uniformity of regulations in states where withdrawals of bank deposits have been restricted by varying amounts, has been undertaken by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The program, a product of the tense banking situation of the last few days, is designed to remove difficulties in the way of loans to banks that are not permitting full withdrawals, although eligible under the law to borrow from the corporation.

It is not contemplated in the corporation's program to relax the strict requirement as to adequate security for its loans. This is set forth definitely in its organic law.

Program Is Outlined.

The program was outlined today by directors of the corporation as follows:

1. To obtain statewide uniformity in the percentage of deposits allowed to be withdrawn by various banks.

2. Loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, on adequate security, sufficient to enable the borrowing banks to meet the withdrawals of an established percentage, with insistence on the requirement that the same percentage be applied on all deposits.

3. Loans would not be made from the corporation to banks having sufficient funds to meet the percentage of withdrawals agreed upon, and the program would apply only in states where the restricted withdrawals have been sanctioned by law.

4. Power to authorize restriction of withdrawals from national banks

Chicago and North Western Railway Company

To the Holders of Chicago and North Western Railway Company 5% Sinking Fund Debentures Due May 1, 1933:

Because of present economic conditions, Chicago and North Western Railway Company cannot expect to provide for its $6,355,000 5% Sinking Fund Debentures due May 1, 1933, in the customary manner, either from earnings or by the sale of new securities to the public. The Company has therefore made arrangements for a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to pay one-half of the amount of such Debentures outstanding on condition that the holders thereof accept General Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds for the other one-half. The plan of accomplishing this arrangement is as follows:

(1) Holders of the 5% Sinking Fund Debentures may evidence their assent to the plan by presenting their Debentures for stamping, as hereinafter provided.

(2) Holders of Debentures who present their Debentures for stamping on or before March 31, 1933, will receive payment in cash of 10% of the face value of their Debentures, upon presentation thereof. This advance payment of 10% is offered to induce prompt assent and will not be made except on Debentures presented for stamping on or before March 31, 1933.

(3) Holders of Debentures assenting to the plan will receive on May 1, 1933, or earlier at the option of the company, upon the plan being declared operative and upon surrender of their Debentures,

(a) payment in cash of an additional 40% of the face amount of their Debentures (or 50% of the face amount of Debentures on which such advance payment of 10% shall not have been made), plus full six months' interest on the Debentures, without deduction on account of the 10% advance payment,

(b) delivery in respect of the remaining 50% of the Debentures of a like face amount of General Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds of the Company due November 1, 1987, more fully described below. As the General Mortgage Bonds cannot be issued in denominations of less than $1,000, interest bearing interim certificates will be issued in denominations of $500 each, entitling the holder to exchange the same, in amounts aggregating $1,000 or multiples thereof, for the Company's General Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds.

(4) All coupon Debentures surrendered must be accompanied by the May 1, 1933 coupon. Registered Debentures need not be endorsed in connection with the presentation of same for stamping, but all registered Debentures surrendered for final payment must be endorsed in blank or accompanied by a detached bond power executed in blank.

The bonds to be delivered to the holders of the 5% Sinking Fund Debentures of 1933 in respect of one-half of the face amount thereof, will be the Company's General Mortgage Gold Bonds due November 1, 1987, bearing interest from May 1, 1933 at the rate of five per cent. (5%) per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of May and November in each year. The Bonds are not subject to redemption before maturity. They will be issued as coupon bonds in the denomination of $1,000 each, registerable as to principal and exchangeable for fully registered bonds. The General Mortgage Bonds and coupons and Interim Certificates will bear a legend to the effect that Federal income taxes will not be assumed by the Company.

The Company's General Gold Bond Mortgage is a first mortgage on 5,023.08 miles of railroad located in the States of Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota and North Dakota. It is a closed mortgage at $165,000,000, of which, on the carrying out of the plan, $126,142,500 will be outstanding in the hands of the public, $26,380,000 pledged and the balance in the Company's treasury or due from Trustee. The first lien mileage includes the entire terminal properties and improvements thereon of the Company in the Chicago switching district; the entire double track main line of the Company from Chicago to the Missouri River; its main line to Elroy, Wis., forming with the main line of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway Company, a main line from Chicago to Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth; the main line through southern Minnesota into South Dakota; the main line from Chicago to Milwaukee, and the main lines from Milwaukee through Oshkosh to Ashland on Lake Superior and from Milwaukee through Green Bay to northern Michigan points. The General Mortgage Bonds outstanding in the hands of the public, including those pledged, will amount to only $30,364 per mile of road.

Application will be made to list the General Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

The foregoing offer of the Company to make payment and delivery as provided in paragraph (3) above, is subject to the authorization by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the issue of said General Mortgage Bonds and to the consummation of the plan, and such payment and delivery will not be made until after the plan is declared operative. In order that the plan may become operative and the necessary loan received from Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it is essential that the holders of substantially all of the 5% Sinking Fund Debentures of 1933 assent to the plan. It is important that such assent be made PROMPTLY, and you are urged IMMEDIATELY to present your Debentures at the office of the Company, 111 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY, by registered mail or through your bank or banker, to be stamped as assenting to the plan.

New York, March 3.—Bonds of the speculative class rallied briskly today, but continued selling of high grade issues with resultant losses kept the securities market out of tune with rising trend in stocks.

Railroad bonds staged the sharpest recovery in the domestic speculative list, while German obligations led the foreign group with gains extending up to four points. The net effect of the day's conflicting price trends was a marked reduction in trading volume.

The rally in secondary liens came before midday, after the entire list had dropped into new low ground for the decline.

Selling Grows Slower.

There was some letup in pressure against prime obligations, but offerings were abundant. Such issues, particularly United States governments, were aided by a moderate amount of short covering. To bond traders, aware that a new administration with power to use emergency measures will take office tomorrow, were more hopeful of early developments which will abate the selling. Out of the conference of bankers and government officials it was believed that some constructive news would come.

United States government securities again were a target for selling, being affected both by mounting interest rates and the direct selling of commercial banks. The imminence of about a billion dollars of new treasury financing seems almost to have been lost sight of owing to the absorbing spectacle of steadily dropping prices.

German Issues Rise.

A recovery of from one to four points in German bonds, including the government 5½s and 7s, was attributed partly to covering of short positions just on the eve of the national elections.

Also benefited by the improved sentiment toward Germans were such issues as Prussia Free State 6s and 6½s, Rhine Westphalia 6s, Saxon Public Works 6s, and others.

Recoveries of one to three points in secondary rail bonds occurred in such issues as Great Northern 7s, New York Central 4½s, Missouri Pacific 4s, Southern Pacific 4½s, and others.

Butler Bros.

Several years ago I bought one $500 Butler Bros. 5 per cent bond, due 1935. I am now offered only 30 cents on the dollar for it. I need the money, but hate to take such a loss. Just the same I do not want to leave myself open for a possibly larger future loss. Before making my decision I would like to have a report from you. Please tell me about the stock also.—J. H. W.

Butler Bros., originally established in 1873, was until 1929 engaged solely in a wholesale general merchandise business. In 1928 the management saw that the number of small merchants had shrunk greatly and that a new source of business had to be developed.

In 1929 the company entered the retail department store business through two subsidiaries, L. C. Burr & Co. and Scott Stores, Inc. This was financed through the sale of $7,500,000 of debentures, due serially Feb. 1, 1932 to 1935. At the close of 1931 110 Scott stores and 18 L. C. Burr stores were being operated.

The venture was inopportune as to time. The company was faced with consolidation and coördination problems at a time of declining prices and decreasing sales. The expansion failed to check the downward trend of earnings evidenced since 1926.

The first indication of improvement appeared in the last four months of 1932, during which period the company operated at a profit. Sales in January, 1933, were exactly even with those of January, 1932.

Volume of sales in 1932 was 10.84 per cent less than in 1931. Loss before interest of $521,000 in 1932 was $1,584,000, which brought deficit for the year to $2,085,000, against loss of $2,542,000 the year before. Net income for 1929 was $1,442,000, or $1.26 per share, against net income of $2,224,000 for 1928.

On Dec. 31, 1932, current assets were $18,178,000 and current liabilities were $2,410,000. Cash was $2,291,000. Working capital was $15,768,000, against $18,202,000 the year before. In addition, $450,000 of bonds matured Feb. 1, 1933.

Funded debt at the close of the year totaled $7,050,000. There are outstanding 1,109,429 shares of $10 par capital stock (reduced from $20 par in 1932). Nothing has been paid on the stock since Feb. 15, 1930.

The 5 per cent debentures are more a speculation than an investment. The capital stock is just a speculation.

INSURANCE MEN TAKE NO ACTION ON RESTRICTION

But Four States Plan to Limit Loans.

The two day session of the executive committee of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners adjourned in Chicago yesterday without making any recommendations on the situation faced by insurance companies as a result of the restrictions placed on bank deposit withdrawals in a score or more of states.

At the same time, it was learned that bills have been introduced in the legislatures of four middle western states placing restrictions on policy loans and cash surrender disbursements by insurance companies. The bills are modeled after the measure presented to the Michigan legislature last Wednesday, which would provide that no life company may pay out in any month in policy loans and cash surrender disbursements a sum greater than the net income after requirements for death, disability, accident benefits and annuities.

Bill Pending In Illinois.

A bill drawn along such lines has been passed by the Indiana legislature and has been presented to the governor. Similar bills are pending in Illinois and Ohio, as well as Michigan.

The measures are designed to ease the pressure on insurance companies resulting from the freezing of the ordinary credit channels through moratoriums and withdrawal restrictions. Since restrictions have been placed on bank deposit withdrawals, the demands on insurance companies for policy loans and cash surrenders have swelled.

J. B. Thompson, chairman of the executive committee of the commissioners' association, said that no action was taken at the meeting in connection with the general situation and that no recommendations were made.

Problems Are Discussed.

"Full discussion of the questions affecting the insurance field, in view of the numerous bank holidays and moratoriums, was participated in by the commissioners and the insurance company executives who were invited to participate," he said.

Plans were made, he added, for the annual meeting of the association which will be held in Chicago on June 1, 2 and 3. The annual meeting is ordinarily held in the fall but will be held this year in June, along with the regular meeting of the executive committee.

During the two day session, the committee heard the views of members of the executive committee of the American Life convention, which was also in session at the Palmer house. The convention is an association of 140 life companies located largely in the western and southern states. Representatives of the eastern insurance companies were also heard.

RECEIVER FOR STRAUS MAKES AN INVENTORY

Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, temporary receiver for S. W. Straus & Co., stated yesterday that he had taken possession of the assets of the investment banking house and was having an inventory made. Until that is completed, he said, he would have no official statement to make public.

It is understood that the receivership will affect the public but slightly, as most of the stock was closely held. S. J. T. Straus announced that the receivership will not affect either the value of the bonds or the properties back of the bonds underwritten by S. W. Straus & Co.

Supreme Court Justice Charles C. Lockwood of New York yesterday named Robert Moses, chairman of the Long Island state park commission, and William M. Calder, former United States senator, as receivers for S. W. Straus & Co., Inc., and S. W. Straus & Co.

Although they were placed in the hands of receivers, an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against S. W. Straus & Co., Inc., today in the New York federal District court by J. D. Rohrbach, an accountant.

Dismiss Bankruptcy Suit Against Associated T. & T.

Judge Wilkerson in the United States District court yesterday dismissed the bankruptcy suit recently filed against the Associated Telephone and Telegraph company, $80,000,000 utility company with headquarters here. The court found the company solvent. The suit was filed Jan. 19 by three small corporations in Vancouver, British Columbia, with a total capital of $402.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—Textile markets were steadier today, although business continued much restricted through banking difficulties. Cotton goods were bought more freely in small lots. Silks were inactive. Wood goods are particularly quiet for this period. Rayon manufacturers are preparing to announce extensive curtailment plans to meet the slowing up of orders. Burlaps are steady and quiet.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets, which have been inactive for a number of weeks, suddenly came to life yesterday and moved upward in a most vigorous manner. Wheat at the top showed 2½ to 2¾ cents above the finish of the previous day, with prices the highest since the middle of January.

Accompanying the bulge was a marked change in sentiment. Brokers who have been pessimistic for many weeks changed their views over night and there was a general rush of buying, not only by the professional element but also on the part of the public.

There was nothing in the general character of the news to account for the buying. The official announcement that Henry Morgenthau Jr. had been selected to head the farm board and would immediately proceed to liquidate the Stabilization corporation's holdings of wheat and cotton served to add fuel to the buying movement.

Bearish Influences Ignored.

Once started on the upgrade, the wheat market kept moving steadily upward, with the May selling at 49½ cents, or 2½ cents above Thursday's finish, before heavy profit taking was able to check the bulge. Many stop loss orders were uncovered on the way up, and sellers of offers were forced to protect themselves. The finish was on a fair reaction from the top, with net gains of 1½ to 1¾ cents, with May and July closing at 48¾ to 48⅞ cents, and September at 49⅞ cents.

Bearish influences were ignored throughout the day, and the fact that May wheat in Chicago went to 1¾ cents premium over Liverpool failed to have any effect. Winnipeg closed 1¼ to 1⅜ cents higher in Canadian funds, but was actually up as much as Chicago when the prices were converted into United States funds owing to a higher rate of exchange.

Corn Prices Also Advance.

Strength in wheat started the corn market on the upgrade and, unlike the former grain, the yellow cereal closed at the best price of the day despite profit taking. Net gains were 1⅛ to 1¼ cents, with May at 24⅜ to 24⅞ cents, July at 26¾ cents, and September at 27⅞ to 28 cents.

Despite the advance the country failed to sell cash corn in volume, and purchases to arrive were estimated at only 20,000 bushels.

Longs were good sellers of oats after prices had advanced around ¾ cent over the previous close, but the finish was at net gains of ⅛ to ⅜ cent, with cash interests moderate buyers during the day. May was 16 cents, and July was 16⅜ to 16½ cents at the last. Rye gained 1¼ to 1⅝ cents for the day, with May at 35 cents and July at 34¾ cents at the last, the strength in wheat and also eastern buying being responsible.

COTTON ACTIVE, UP $1.50 BALE; FINISHES NEAR TOP

Cotton markets were active and strong, following the lead of grain and stocks, and prices at their best were up $1.50 a bale from the morning's low and closed with net gains of a little more than $1.00.

An extremely nervous feeling existed, with part of the buying attributed by traders to Washington interests who were said to be close to the new administration. There also was buying due to fears regarding the stability of currency.

Profit taking at the last carried prices down moderately from the top, with net gains on futures in Chicago of 20 to 22 points, with New York up 20 to 23 points on futures and 25 points on spots, the latter being 6.35 cents. New Orleans was closed, owing to bank moratorium, and will remain closed today.

There were reports of light rains in south Texas, mostly cloudy in the east. T. A. Carter of J. E. Bennett & Co. says trade is waiting upon the Smith bill, which is in the hands of the President, with some hope that it will be signed at once. Prices follow:
